THE END
Preface to BrihatJataka.

In presenting the English Translation of Brihat Jataka, to the Educated public of the world, I make no appeal for their indulgence. This is a monumental work, where the difficulties in translating a beautiful technical and suggestive work in Sanskrit had to be surmounted by hard labour, profound research, want of adequate expressions in a poor and nonconstructive language like the English by the selection of the most comprehensive expressions and by a laborious mental analyses, which would have a tendency to minimise the linguistic incongruities so difficult to reconcile. How far I have succeeded in my attempts to simplify the technicalities by my notes is a matter for decision by the succeeding generations.

In my introduction to the English translation of Sarvartha Chintamani I have plainly referred to these difficulties and doubts and would refer the reader to that work for greater explanations. The priceless commentaries of Bhutta Totphala in Sanskrit on Brihat Jataka, have been fully utilised by me in the course of my work and if I am to express my sense of gratitude to anybody I have to do so to him. Most of the English works on astrology are sorry performances and no reliance can be placed upon them. If Varaha Mihira is to be respected as the author of Brihat Jataka, his matchless commentator deserves even greater credit for the splendid way in which he has not only made clear many of the obscure passages but also for the valuable quotations he has given so copiously and so aptly in the course of his work. Envy and meanness are the index of lower minds and appreciation and generosity are the indications of a nobler psychic development. I shall close this preface with a simple request to my readers that when they read through my notes they can never complain of wasting their time. Their intellects will be sharpened and their knowledge will be expanded.

HUNSARANAHALLI,
Yelehanka P. O.
Mysore Province,
INDIA
I propose to give a very liberal translation of this famous work on horoscope written by the learned Varaha Mihacaracharya, a native of Kapitha village, in the country of Avantika. His father was Aditya dasa and both, father and son seem to have had very comprehensive interests. In my translation of this ancient Sanskrit work I have tried my best to keep to the spirit of the illustrious author more than to his letter, and in this particular I am very ably supported by the immortal commentaries of Bhottotpala, but for whose special labours in this field, the works of Varaha Mihira probably would not have attained to such wide celebrity and to have been so useful as they have been now. Dr. H. Kern in Bibliotheca Indica (Brihat Sambita p 61, Preface) thus observes on the merits of this great commentator—"We owe the knowledge of nearly all the particulars about the predecessors of Varaha Mihira to Bhottotpala. This astronomer seems to have earned his great reputation less by his original compositions than by his commentaries on Varaha Mihira. An original work of his is Bhottotpala Hora astra, a very short treatise in 70 stanzas. A greater reputation has been earned by him in his capacity of commentator. The merits of Bhottotpala as a commentator are held high and methinks deservedly so. To an unusual knowledge of the astronomical and astrological writings before his time, he adds the acquaintance with some authors in other branches of knowledge like Charaka, with a stupendous memory, he combines judgment. Where he knows his deficiency he tells us so with a candour rarely met with among persons of his class. So he admits for instance that he is only superficially acquainted with the technicalities of perfumery (Gandharvabhisakha). With a profound reverence for his author—whom he considers to be an incarnation of the Sun, he earnestly endeavours to explain and to elucidate the text without taking it as a mere pretext for pouring forth his own wisdom. When a passage is ambiguous, he has recourse to the sound method of comparing the words of Varaha Mihira, with those passages of more ancient authors, whom he thinks him to have immediately imitated. This method has the additional value, that thereby precious fragments of authors now utterly forgotten, and perhaps never to be recovered, have been preserved.

The principal works of Varaha Mihira are (1) Panchasiddhantika (2) Brihat Sambhita (3) Brihat Jataka (4) Laghu Jataka and (5) Yogayatra.

Bhattotpala has written commentaries on all of these works as well as on Shat-Panchasika, the author of which Prithuyasa was the son of the famous Varaha Mihira. "The original text in Brihat Jataka extends over 407 stanzas and upon these Bhattotpala has written 7500 slokas (stanzas) as commentaries in the Anustap, excluding the vast number of quotations which may be taken to be at least, not less than one thousand." Thus for about 400 stanzas of the original text, this continuous commentator has given

With the help of the learned commentaries of such a profound scholar as Bhattotpala, the translation of Brihat Jataka, becomes a possibility with the present generation of astrological scholars. Being thoroughly technical, and highly compressed in Sanskrit, the translation becomes extremely difficult, even with the advantage of possessing these full commentaries and when the Sanskrit words admit of two or three different interpretations it is really difficult to say what was the exact meaning which the author of Brihat Jataka attached to it himself.

These difficulties will be pointed out in their suitable places in the course of this book. I shall now give the names of the Chapters contained in Brihat Jataka before I begin to translate the stanzas themselves. The First Chapter is called Samgnyadhayya, or that which explains the technicalities of the subject and it contains 20 slokas (stanzas). The Second Chapter is called Brahajoni Bhedadhayya or that which explains many of the peculiarities of the planets, their sexes, characteristics,
This contains only 8 stanzas. This seems to have been a very important subject which, in my humble opinion, required more elaborate treatment, than that which Varaha Mihira has given to it in his Brihat Jataka. The births of animals, birds, and vegetables are certainly more numerous than those obtained among the human species and although they may not be so important as man is, still the subject required fuller explanation to prevent ordinary students from falling into hopeless confusions when making predictions in the different Bhavas. It is now difficult to say why the learned author has not written more than 8 slokas for it. Even Bhattacharya is not so explanatory as one might expect on such an abstruse and difficult subject as the horoscope of animals and vegetables. In the course of his commentaries in this chapter he quotes only a few slokas from Saranvil which seems to have been a work of great merit before his time.

Then in the Fourth Chapter he treats of Nishaka Adhyaya, or the attainment of puberty, appearance of menses, sexual connection, conception, and so forth and this contains 22 stanzas. In the Fifth Chapter comes the Janma-kala Lahshana Adhyaya or the relation of marks males, cows, peculiarities in birth, chastity and vicious nature of the mother etc. and this extends over 20 stanzas. A description of the nature of the house where the birth takes place, the peculiarities of delivery, and the character and position of the females who collect at that critical time, are also given with a view to correct the inaccuracies of birth time, with reference to actual surroundings on that important occasion. The Sixth Chapter is called the Balarista or the treatment of planetary conjunctions for early death, and those peculiar positions of the planets which prevent early death and prolong the life to greater periods. This Chapter is very important.

The age of the child is first to be determined and then only, other events should be consulted. If good periods or conjunctions of planets came after the man died, they can serve no earthly purpose, and therefore Varaha Mihira, first gives the principal combinations for early death, after an examination of which, if the child is found to possess long life he asks the reader to read the other chapters and ascribe the principal events to their proper periods and sub-periods. This important chapter contains 12 stanzas but the learned commentator has added very valuable and extensive quotations which would be of great use to the students of astrology. The Seventh Chapter is called Ayurdayadhyaya and it treats of the terms of life which each planet is able to give at the time of birth, by its position, direction, collateral strength, exaltation, retrogression etc. And how to find out the total number of years of the life of man, whose horoscope forms the subject of examination. This contains 14 stanzas, but the commentator has given a very elaborate account, which clearly and definitely explains, what must be considered the most important part of the man's horoscope.

In the 8th Chapter, the subject is called Dasantardasa Adhyaya, and it treats of the major and minor periods of planets, with the influences they are capable of exerting during their controlling times. This contains 23 stanzas, and has been largely commented upon by Bhattacharja. In the 9th Chapter, he treats of Ashtakavarga or the relative strengths of the planets and the rising sign (Lagna), by their occupation of peculiar positions, and the extent of good and evil they are capable of producing while they are moving by gochura in the various signs. This is a sort of balance sheet of the planetary influences which should be carefully studied by the astrological readers as it would enable them to measure the quantity of good which may be expected from the planetary positions during the future career of the nature. This extends over of livelihood and what will be the success of the man in his earthly career. This chapter contains only 4 slokas which are very suggestive and which, when properly understood, give the astrological adepts a good clue to the finding out of the avocation or line of business which would best pay a man and the extent to which he can hope to inherit his property. But I must say that Varaha Mihira, could have, with greater advantage, written something more about a matter, which is of paramount importance to all terrestrial creatures, like men Venkatesa, on the other hand, in his Sarvarthaschintamani expands his observations on this subject and takes the readers to great many details which are of the utmost value to the readers of Astrology. Chapter Eleventh gives combinations for Rajayogas and hence it is called Rajayogadhyaya. These are all combinations, which give men political or kingly power, and as such, have little significance for the ordinary masses, most of whom even in their wildest dreams, do not aspire to royal position or power. But this chapter is very important for all those ambitious souls—whether born in royal families or not—who have a great Bhanga Rajayogas, and Rajabharga Neechayogas. In the first case, there are some men, who have humble birth, but subsequently rise to the kingly power. Napoleon and Hyder afford examples for these kinds of luck. The second contains combinations, where mighty kings lost their power and become humble men. History gives many examples, where rulers have lost their territories, and sunk to the level of ordinary men or pensioners.

Then we have Chapter Twelve, called Nabhasa Yogadhyaya, in which according to various permutations and combinations of planets and their relative positions towards each other, about 1300 varieties of conjunctions have been shown to be possible by Bhattotpala in his commentaries. This extends over 19 stanzas. The Thirteenth Chapter is denoted Chandrayoga Adhyaya, and explains the results of the position of Moon from the Sun, the position of benefic planets with reference to Moon and the occupation of the 2nd and 12th houses from the Moon and this contains 9 stanzas. The Fourteenth Chapter goes under the name of Dwigrachayogadhyaya or the results to be ascertained when two or three planets join together in a house. This comprises only five stanzas. The Fifteenth Chapter is called Pravarrajya Yoga Adhyaya, in which combinations are sketched out for giving great religious merit, and explaining the various Sanyasa (ascetic) Yogas. This contains four stanzas. The Sixteenth Chapter bears the name of Rukahasaladhayaya and explains the principal characteristics, which result in the body and mind of man by the influences exercised by the rising constellation at the time of birth. The Seventeenth Chapter takes the readers to the influences resulting from the position of Moon in each of the twelve zodiacal signs and is called Rasishadhyaya. The former contains 13 stanzas while the latter counts 12 stanzas, one for each house occupied by the Moon. The Eighteenth Chapter is also called Rasisila, from the fact that it explains the results of the occupation of each of the houses (Rasya) by the Sun, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus and Saturn. This is an important chapter and extends over 20 stanzas. The Nineteenth Chapter goes under the name of Disti Phaladhyya and it explains the results of the planetary aspects upon each other and upon the Lagna and other houses. This contains 9 stanzas. The Twentieth Chapter is called Bhavadhyaya, and contains explanations for finding out the results of the planets occupying the different Bhavas or significations from the birth or rising sign and this contains eleven stanzas.

Chapter Twenty one is called Ashrayayogadhyaya, and contains directions to estimate the relative position of the nature, both with reference to his own community and that of the society where he lives. Ten stanzas compose this chapter. Twenty-second Chapter goes under the name of Prakrutiadhya and explains the Karakas of each of the planets, in their positions, relative to the others and contains 6 stanzas. Chapter Twenty-three is called Arastadhya or that which explains combinations for all misfortunes, that humanity is subjected to and contains 17 slokas. Chapter Twenty-four goes under the name of Sreejatasadhya and treats of the special combinations, which affect the feminine classes. Here the author gives some combinations, which are peculiar to females, and which cannot be applied to males. Fecundity, chastity, certain bodily peculiarities etc can only be attributed to females and they are all given here. This chapter extends over 16 stanzas. Then we have the important Chapter Twenty-five which is called Niraynikadhya and explains the combinations of planets for death, mode of death and other circumstances connected with that final event of human existence on this earth. This contains 16 stanzas.
Chapter Twenty-six is equally important. There are many who have no horoscopes and who are anxious to know their future in the light of Astrology. This is called Nastajata

Kadhyaya and gives directions to find out the year, month, date and time of the person's birth. 17 stanzas are devoted to explain these principles for finding out lost horoscopes. Chapter Twenty-seven is devoted to the explanation of the Drakshas which are 36 in number and whose knowledge will be useful for various astrological purposes. This contains 36 slokas. Chapter Twenty-eight is called Oopasamkaradhya and contains enumeration of the twenty-seven chapters the author has written, and also the contents of the chapters, he has explained in his Yatra, a work on the solution of questions put and predictions based upon the time at which they are moved. Remembering all these chapters and the contents they speak of I shall now take my readers to a liberal translation of the stanzas in Brihat Jataka dwelling particularly at considerable length where the meaning is obscure, or difficult, and where without explanations the spirit of the author cannot be properly grasped.
The last chapter contains ten verses and the total therefore exceeds a little more than four hundred slokas.

The work is very suggestive and requires very high intellects to properly understand it. The translation simply speaks of the original stanzas as I have grasped them and therefore, may not correctly represent the true meanings of the author. In all works of translation from one language to another; readers should especially remember that the translation gives the purport as understood of the original by the translator and not perhaps as the original author meant. This work of translation becomes extremely difficult when one has to present his ideas from a richer constructive language like Sanskrit, in progress, and yet imperfectly formed language like that of English. The compounding of words, their abbreviations, the various meanings into which words are capable of being interpreted, and the short, pithy and suggestive sutras, which are in the Sanskrit works, can never be appropriately represented in a poor language like the English. Added to this the extensive developments in Astrology, Vedanta, Yoga, Sankhya and Mimamsa Philosophies, which the ancient Sanskritists had made during their earliest periods of existence, throw considerable obstacles in the way of good and appropriate English translation, for the fact that in the English language, most of those ideas, are absent and such of those which are just now beginning to be introduced, are done in their original forms for want of proper English words and syllables. We have nothing like Sutras in the English language and so long as it remains in its present form it is not possible to conceive that any Sutras can possibly be spun out of it. The word Arth in Sanskrit has about 20 different meanings, and so also many other words. So far as I have known of the English language, there is hardly any word which, with the same spelling, has even four different meanings. The Adhyyahiras (words, sentences, verbs, or ideas to be understood) are many in the original Sanskrit, and they cannot be properly represented by any suitable words in the English language. Under these linguistic, shastric, and sutraic difficulties it is absolutely impossible to either properly understand the original Sanskrit texts, or to put them before the intelligent public in a way that would be free from faults or criticism.

Explanation of technicalities used.

In the first stanza, Varahamihira invokes the Sun to give him speech.

Stanza I.

The Sun, who is one of the Ashramurties of Siva, who forms the path for those who go to Moksha, who represents Atma for those who are well versed in Atmarupya, who accepts the results of the sacrificial rites, who is the master of Aharas and Jotishas; who destroys, creates and protects the lokas, who is praised in the Vedas in various forms, who is possessed of many rays and who is the lamp of the three worlds, may he grant us speech.
corporation with the Supreme Intelligence Atma represents the essential principle in man roughly translated into soul Atmaudam are those, who are acquainted with the knowledge relating to soul and who are after Para Bramha Amaras are those who have no Marana or mornis (death), hence the Devatas of the Hindu Philosophy Jatuasham represent the stars and planets, who are shining with light (Jotra). Yajats are those who perform Yagnas or sacrificial rites according to the dicta contained in the Vedas; for these sacrificial rites, the presiding deity is the Sun as all Ahuts or offerings are to be made to him (Sun another form of the Sun) and he distributes their fruits among the various Devatas to whom they are offered. Lokas are fourteen in number; (1) Atala, (2) Vitala, (3) Satala, (4) Mahatala, (5) Talatala, (6) Rasatala, (7) Patula, (8) Bhuloka, (9) Bhuvanloka, (10) Suvarloka, (11) Maboloka, (12) Janav-loka, (13) Tapoloka and (14) Satyaloka Vedas are four (1) Rig Veda, (2) Yajur Veda, (3) Sama Veda, and (4) Atharvaram Veda. The Sun is called Sahasra Kirana (thousend rayed) Thraitilas are (1) Swarks, (2) Martya, and (3) Patala Varahamihira invokes the help of this glorious and mighty Sun to grant him speech to complete his work without any difficulties and breaks He uses the editorial (us) in his book.
Stanza 2.

Although there are great many works ably written by intelligent men in accordance with excellent literary style, many people get dispirited in trying to cross the vast ocean of horoscopical knowledge, to such I offer a small boat, constructed with means of various kinds, short but very suggestive and full of instructive ideas, to enable them to cross this ocean.

NOTES

Varaha Mihira here tries to justify his publication. He admits the existence of grand and elaborate works before his time, but thinks that from their colossal nature, many who approach them (oceans of science) get dispirited when they look to the vast ocean of Astrological science, which they want to cross. The works which were before him were those composed by Vasistha, Gargi, Parashara, Vya, Badarayana, Chamikya, Mandavya, Pulisa, Romaka, Surya, Brahma, Soma and Kasyapa siddhanas. The most versatile works on horoscopy were those of Gargi, Badarayana, Satvacharya, Maya, Yavana, and Vishnugupta or Chamikya. He also declares, that his work is short but very suggestive and written in such varied and rich Sanskrit Prosody (metre) that the readers of his work will find it highly interesting and instructive. I do not know how far this statement of Varaha Mihira can be supported by actual facts. On the other hand Varaha Mihira's, boast that Swalpa Pratita Vichitra martha Bahulam may most advantageously and appropriately be attributed to the Sutras on Astrology composed by Maharshi Jaimini, who was the disciple of Veda Vyasa and the author of the immortal Paravaminamasa. But we are not to find fault with his motto. There is no doubt whatever that his Sanskrit metre is excellent, his ideas grand and his language as concise as possible, which may be classified in merit inferior only to the Sanskrit Sutras.

Stanza 3.

The science of Astrology is called hora sastra from the compounding of the two words Aho and Ratri and the dropping of the first and last letters, and it speaks of the results of the good and bad deeds done by men in their previous births.

NOTES.

Ahas in Sanskrit means day and Ratri means night. The author here suggests that this “Hora” Sastra or the influence of Time, is indicated by the positions of planets at the time of birth.

The words horoscope, horologue (clock) and hour are derived from this Sanskrit root, and signify the influence of time on men and objects. Some people, not understanding the original word Vanchanta properly, think that Varnamahira borrowed this science from the Greeks where Hora means a portion of time as also in Latin. They must commit a greater mistake. I have shown by elaborate and irrefutable arguments that astrology was far more ancient than the age ascribed to Greek and Roman civilization, that the Egyptians, Assyrians, Chaldeans and Assyrians had borrowed their civilizing influences from the Aryans of India in remote antiquity and that many thousands of years before Varna Mahira, appeared the science of astrology had been perfected and left to the succeeding generations for study and guidance. Parasara and Vysa are well known Maharschis and if Vasista was the Purohit of Sri Rama, Parasara was the grandson of that Venerable sage.
Vysa was the son of Parasara and Vysa plays an important part in the Mahabharata. It was he who compiled it, and brought the Vedas together which had been probably gathered and collected by Garga, also a famous astronomer and astrologer.
Parasara must at least be more than 5,000 years old. The word Horasatras was applied to his astrological works and we are now mostly guided by Parasara Horasatras. Therefore Vан-chanta used in this stanza, which means they say, should not be taken in a contemptuous sense. Varga Mahira pays profound respect to Garga, Parasara, Vysa and Suryasidhantasa, and when he uses “they say” he simply means that the greatest men in the field of astrology derived the word Hora by Horastra being compounded and the first and last syllibles dropped out. Bhattacharya explains that the Zodiac and all its divisions are enclosed in the womb of Time and the word Hora therefore means the influence of Time as indicated by the planets, Zodiacal divisions and the stellar influences at the time of birth of any person or object. In the Introduction to the Study of Astrology I have clearly stated about the theory of Karma and the indications of the Karmic results by the planetary conjunctions and aspects at the time of birth. I refer my readers to my other works for a very full explanation of this all absorbing topic.
Hora in Sanskrit is compounded of two letters Ho and Rsa, the former implying the earthly attractions and the latter indicating the solar influences.
Thus Hora means and includes all astral and planetary influences and the results which one can predict from their work in any given directions.
Hora also means 24 ghatas or 1/24th of a day (sunrise to sunrise) as the Hindu day is divided into 60 equal divisions called, ‘ghatakas.’ Hora further means one’s personal influence.
or magnetism as we say, and the way in which it works. All these definitions are correlated, and signify more or less the influence of time upon men and their careers here and hereafter.

Bhattotpala raises the vital question on the use of this knowledge of our past and future and says that by knowledge of the future we will be able to read the existing evil influences and we can also adopt remedial measures recommended in the Shastras, to alleviate the miseries. He clearly indicates that astrology has no fatalism about its doctrine. It simply reveals the penalties for breaches of proper conduct in the previous states of births, and that it is in a man's power to know the evil, and mitigate in the bud before it takes root and produces miserable results.

Stanza 4

In the celestial Chakra (globe) the signs commencing with Mesha and Aswini are each formed by nine padams (quarters) of stars and govern the following organs of Kalapurusha, namely, head, face, chest, heart, belly, waist, lower belly, sexual organ, thighs, knees, buttocks and feet respectively. Ravi, Kshetra, Griha Ruksha, Bha and Bhavana refer to and signify the Zodiacal signs.

Notes

This stanza is beautifully expressed in the original Sanskrit and cannot be so concisely put into English. Varaha Mihira says begin with Mesha and the first nine quarters of constellations from Aswini to form each of the twelve houses of the Zodiac. This celestial circle or globe is divided into 360 equal divisions called Bhagas or degrees, 30 degrees make a Rasi and 2 ½ constellations compose one Zodiacal house. These twelve Rasis from Mesha to Meena govern the following organs of Kalapurusha (Time Personified).

There are twenty-seven constellations named in the astrological works and each of these is divided into four quarters or padams. We get therefore $27 \times 4 = 108$ Nashatra padams. These divided by the twelve Zodiacal houses give nine quarters for each Rasi or house and therefore each padam of a star will roughly comprise $3\frac{1}{2}$ degrees of the Zodiacal circle. The following are the constellations and signs named in ancient works and Garga and Vyasa give correct definitions of them.

Constellations

Purvabhadra (26) Uttarabhadra (27)
Krittika, the four quarters of Rohini and the first two quarters of Mrigashira or $3 + 4 + 2 = 9$ quarters. Mithuna (Gemini) is composed of the last quarters of Mrigashira, the four quarters of Andhra and the first three quarters of Puravasavu or $2 + 4 + 3 = 9$ quarters of the constellations Krittika. (Cancer) is composed of the first quarter of Puravasavu, four quarters of Pushyan and the four quarters of Ashasha or $1 + 4 + 4 = 9$ quarters.

Thus in nine constellations we get naturally four houses and the rest of the houses must be similarly treated with reference to the remaining constellations.

The English equivalents of the constellations have been given on p. 14 of my Astrological Mirror, to which I refer my kind readers. Mesha is always considered as the first Zodical sign in Hindu Astrology and Ashwini as the first constellation for all calculations. When a house is equal to nine quarters of constellations and each constellation furnishes four padams or quarters, it is easily seen that each house is measured with reference to $2^{3}$ stars. Thus Ashwini (4 quarters) Bhara (4 quarters) and the first quarter of Krittika making nine quarters compose the first sign of the Zodical Mesha or Aries. Then proceeding further it is seen that Vrishabha (Taurus) is composed of the remaining three quarters of those organs of the 'Kalaputrisha which are occupied by evil planets indicate want of development or deformity or total loss or absence while those houses which are occupied by beneficial planets indicate good development, beauty, health and strength to the organs governed by them. Mesha indicates head, Sun in it without beneficial aspects will be debilitated. He represents evil influences and is called a malefic. The person who has this combination will have some disorder in the head, according to the intensity of the strength of the evil planet who occupies it. The disorder may be giddiness, paralysis, wounds, scars, derangement, idiotic traces, brain fever, monomaniac, prevarication, stupidity and so forth. If Sani joins Kanya in Kumbha, then the combination indicates complicated complaints in the head. Suppose a person has Sani and Kanya in Vrishchika and without any good aspects, the result will be deformation in the sexual organs, disease, impotency, or something abnormal and unpleasant. If Kanya and Sani occupy Cancer without good aspects or conjunctions then there will irregular development of the heart, pain or disease there and some chest disorders which trouble the man. The six sources of strength of the signs as well as the planets who are there, must be taken into consideration and if the balance is evil, then the organ suffers much or will be marked by its absence or rottenness.

Stanza 5

Meena is represented by two fishes lying close to each other with their heads pointing in opposite directions, Kumbha is shown by a person bearing a water pot, Mithuna is indicated by a man with a club and a woman with a lute, in close embrace, Dhanas is described as a Centaur with the hind part resembling that of a horse and the front of an archer, Makara bears the representation of the face of a deer with the hinder part of a crocodile. Thula presents the appearance of a man with a balance in hand, Kanya is shown by a virgin seated in a boat with crops in one hand and with a light in the other, and the other signs are represented by their names and more in places congenial to their nature.

Notes

Pisces is formed of one fish with its tail against the head of the other and vice versa. This sign will be later on called ubhayodaya or that which can rise either way, for we see a head and a tail on each side of the figure. Kumbha in Sanskrit means a pot and Makara means a crocodile. Thula means balance and Kanya means a virgin. Dhanas means a bow and the rest are easy to understand. The places most congenial to their natures will be controlled by them, and they also have a great likeness for such regions and the products of those regions. Watery surfaces are liked by fish and crab, ordinary jungles and grassy plains are for rams and bulls. Deep forests and caves are for Lions. Streets in the cities are for balances. Towns are for men and women or the couple. Military grounds are for archers.

Crocodiles are fond of watery places. Scorpions are fond of underground crevices and holes. The representations of these creatures are very familiar to our readers to require any further explanations.

Stanza 6

Kuja, Sakra, Buda Chandra, Ravi, Buda Sukra, Kuja, Guru, Sani, Sani and Guru are respectively the lords of the signs and their divisions from Mesha; the Navamsha commence from Mesha, Makara, Thula and Kataka, etc. the Devasadasamsha commence from the houses themselves.

Notes.

This is an important stanza and requires explanation. The whole celestial circle is divided into 360 degrees, and is then divided into 12 equal houses each composed of 30 degrees. A house or such a vision of 30 degrees is called a jural or lunar house. Like, Bhava, Lagna, Rasi, etc.

When this is divided into 2 equal parts each part is called a hora (15 degrees). When it is divided into 3 equal parts each part is called a Decanaka or decanta (10 degrees). When a house is divided into 9 equal divisions each is called a Navamsha (3½ degrees) when a Rasi is divided into 12 equal divisions each is called a Dwadasamsha (2½ degrees). When a house is divided into 30 equal divisions each is called a Thrimsamsha (1 degree). (See my notes on Sarvarthasiddhantam 1st Chapter.) There is a beautiful order given for Navamsha. As there can be no break in the counting of the Zodiacal circle we must reckon always continually round. Divide Mesha into 9 parts each of which is a Navamsha of course.

Taking the divisions regularly we have the 1st Navamsha of Mesha owned by its lord Mars. The second is governed by the lord of the 2nd house from Mesha viz. Vrishabba or Venus. Then the third is governed by the lord of Mithuna Mercury. Fourth by the Moon, fifth by the Sun, sixth by Mercury, seventh by Venus, eighth by Mars, and the ninth by Jupiter. Thus we have had the nine divisions of Mesha regularly governed by the lords of the houses, consecutively from it. After the completion of Mesha we begin with Vrishabha and as Makara begins after Dhanus the last Navamsha of Mesha, the first Na-the Moon, the Sun, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Saturn, Jupiter, and Mars. For Mithuna it begins with Mithuna and ends with the 12th house from it, namely, Vrishabha. The other divisions are detailed in the next few verses.

Varaha Mihara seems to follow Satyasnathy's and Parasara. Gargi and Badarayana considerably differ from him and his great teacher. There are some other writers in astrology who have given Shodasa Vargas or 16 divisions for each house, and base their results on the relative strength which these divisions of time furnish the planets. Each planet seems to possess a peculiar body whose composition differs from those of the others and which possesses peculiar properties of attracting and repelling the component parts of the solar rays. The solar ray seems to contain all the ingredients humanity wants but in its radiation and reflection it seems to undergo material changes and often produces results which are quite antagonistic in their results to their parental rays. Take the pure solar ray as opposed to the ray which is reflected by the body such as Saturn. In the first case, the ray produces biliousness, energy, generosity and good health. But when the same ray is reflected by the body of Saturn, it becomes darkness in color, produces inactivity and heaviness, misery and darksome thoughts and an indescribable abhorrence for all good work. Take the 5th degree of Aries as the birth time. Then we get the following Shadvergas for this Lagna Mesha is governed by Kūja. The lord of Lagna is therefore Kūj I. The birth has taken place within the first half of Mesha. It is an odd sign and the 1st half or Hora in Mesha is governed by Rāvi. The lord of the Hora is therefore Rāvi II. The birth degree falls within the first 5 degrees of Mesha and therefore the lord of the 1st Drakkana is its own lord Kūja. The lord of the Drakkana is therefore Kūja III. The Navamsa of Mesha extends over 31 degrees and therefore the birth has fallen in Taurus governed by Venus. The lord of the Navamsa is Sukra IV. The birth is in the 5th degree each Dwadasamsa will be 24 degrees. The birth has taken place in the 2nd Dwadasamsa. The lord of this Dwadasamsa Vishabha is Sukra V. The birth has fallen in the 5th degree. In all signs the first 5 degrees in the Ithumamsa are governed by Mars and there-

Lord of Navamsa and Dwadasamsa is Sukra and lord of Thrimsasam is Kūja. Thus in the Shadverga or sixfold source of energy 3 divisions are governed by Kūja, one by Rāvi and two by Sukra. The evil predominates and the results must be judged as such.

The lord of the Thrimsamsa is Kūja as Mesha is an odd sign, and as the birth has fallen within the first 3 Bhūgas or degrees, it is governed by Kūja as will be stated in the next stanza. The six sources of strength for a Lagna that falls for example in the 5th degree of Mesha are I. House lord is Mars, II. Hora lord is the Sun, III. Drakkana lord is Mars, IV. The Navamsa lord is Venus, V. The Dwadasamsa lord is Venus and VI. the Thrimsamsa lord is Mars. Analyzing we find three sources are governed by the house lord which is good, two sources are governed by Venus—a benefic—this is also good but Venus is inimicable to the lord of Lagna. Mars and one source is governed by the Sun which is bad, but as the Sun is a friend of Mars the evil is partly mitigated.
name of Rikshasaudhi (junction of two Rasis or constellations.)

Notes.

Thrimamsa implies in Sanskrit 30th division. When a house of the zodiacal circle is divided into 30 equal divisions each is technically called a Bhaga or degree of the Western Astronomers. In odd signs like Mesha, Mithuna, Simha, Thula, Dhanas and Kumbha the arrangement is as follows —

Dg. 5 5 8 7 5
Mars, Saturn, Jupiter, Mercury, Venus, = 30 degrees.

In even signs like Vrishabha, Kataka, Kanya, Vrishchika, Makara and Meena this is reversed viz—

5 8 7 5 5
Venus, Mercury, Jupiter, Saturn, Mars, = 30 degrees.

All these are elaborately explained in my Astronomical Self Instructor, 4th Edition (See pp. 97 to 101). The learned Bhatotpala refers to the last Navamsha of Kataka, Vrishchika and Meena as Riksha sandhis and children born during these junctural periods hardly live unless powerfully aspected or joined by energetic benefics.

Riksha means in Sanscrit both a zodiacal house (Rasi) and also a constellation (Nakshatra).

As already explained, the end of Kataka is completed by the last padam (quarter) of Aslesha, the end of Vrishchika by the last padam of Jaista and the end of Meena by the last padam of Raivathini. Thus the double significance of Riksha is most appropriately used by Varaha Mihira. In a future chapter the author gives sandhis as dangerous to the prolongation of a child’s life. (See p. 3)

Stanza 8.

Kriya. Thavuri, Jitheema, Kulya, Laya, Pethona, Juka, Kowri, Thanka, Akokero, Liridroga and Antheya are names for Mesha, Vrishabha, Mithuna, Kataka, Simha, Kanya, Thula, Vrishchika, Dhanas, Makara, Kumbha and Meena respectively.

Notes.

Varaha Mihira in the first chapter has given some curious names occurring in astrology and which are not usually found in the ordinary Nighantu or dictionaries. This simple fact seems to have been taken advantage of by some ignorant and ill-informed Astrologers, Translators and Orientalists and several crude theories have been advanced with the object of showing that Varaha Mihira borrowed his astrological-astronomical knowledge from the Greek and Chaldean works. This is an important question which cannot be solved in a few sentences devoted to the explanatory notes of an English translation.

I have already pointed out the merit of Bhatotpala, the creditable commentator of all the works of Varaha Mihira in the Astronomical Magazine, Vol. VIII, but for whose valuable explanations, quotations, criticisms and collections, the world should have known very little of Varaha Mihira, and what is more fortunate, the works of a host of most eminent Astrologers who preceded Varaha Mihira in this noble science. Parasara, a voluminous writer on Astrology and other shastras, works in Sanskrit, was the father of Veda Vyasa, and he must have been at least 5,000 years old as we find Vyasa figuring prominently in the war of Mahabharata and the subsequent horse sacrifice performed by the victorious Pandus to exculpate themselves from the famous butchery we see in the war between the Kurus and the Pandus Mahabharata was written by Vyasa. Apart from this we have now a few copperplate grants made to Brahmins by the Emperor Janamajaya and these have the Kalhyoga year clearly given on them, thus placing their own venerable age beyond the least shadow of doubt. These are more than 4000 years old. Chidambaram Ayar, B. A. who made a hasty and ill digested translation of Brihat Jataka in 1880 was neither a good Sanskrit scholar, nor a good Astrologer. He possessed considerable capacity in real mathematics, and with the help of Sundaram Shroutu, he began his work of English translation of Varaha Mihira's difficult and technical works. Under notes to this stanza he thus observes—"All the above names excepting Kubira and Antyabha are evidently Greek names—a circumstance clearly indicating that the intercourse between the learned men of India and Helias was more than superficial." If a reader carefully peruses the commentaries of Bhaskara II in this stanza, he is struck with the absence of any reference about these terms either to the origin of Greek or Persian Astroligical sciences. II is famous commentator was so way inferior in capacity or astronomical ability to Varaha Mihira. He is original and to a critical mind he even shows greater acumen and comprehension of this difficult subject than his author. If really these terms were of Greek origin, he would have made a note of these significant facts in his excellent commentaries. Laya is purely a Sanscrit word for Leon and the Latin word Leon (simba) probably derived its form from its more perfected sister Sanscrit. Then again Chidambaram Ayar is entirely wrong when he says that Hrid Rogas is a Greek word. Hrid or Hridaya refers to heart in Sanscrit and Rogas means disease. This is specially applied to Kumbha whose lord Sat is also lord of the 12th house Makara from it and a child born in Kumbha suffers from heart disease. The term kriya refers to a goat or sheep in Sanscrit and it is a great pity that even a Brahmin gentleman, through ignorance, should have run away in these philological matters, like those of his less informed brethren, the orientalists engaged in such works.

In Chapter VII—Varaha Mihira clearly refers to Maya, Yavana Mambha and Parasara and Bhaskara says that Yavana was a learned Mulooba (Musulman). Wherever there was a necessity to acknowledge the source of information these authors did so with a grace and frankness which are simply admirable. There is no use of passing off hasty remarks and we cannot so easily accept foreign origin for Sanscrit words as Col. Todd could do in his Rajastan for, he confounds Hercules with Him kulas (from his own imagination) and Maharsents Atus with the Greek Atrius. Such hasty conclusions are dangerous and are greatly misleading. Helias or Helias was the name for the sun

The other rasi, viz Simha, Kanya, Thula, Kumbha and Mithuna are called Dinabala Rasis. These with Mithuna are called Sirshodayas. Meena is called Oobhodaya.

Notes
Prustodayas are those which are supposed to rise with their Prasta or tail and Sirshodayas are those which rise with their anus or head. Oobhodaya is that which rises both with head and tail. Meena is represented as composed of two fishes one with the tail of the other towards its head.
Thus in either way, in Meena there will be one head and one tail on each side of it. The Zodiaceal signs are all not uniformly strong at all times in this manner by explanations with a view to help the student in judging of the powers of planets and 5th in a Rasi.

write little and suggest much. The first words kruṣa (crude) and sunyā (beneficial) indicate that the 1st, 3rd, 5th, 7th, 9th and 11th signs are cruel and the rest 2nd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 10th and 12th are beneficial. Then again he says all these are regularly masculine and feminine. All cruel signs therefore become masculine and all beneficial signs become feminine. The same Rasas again become movable, fixed and common or double-bodied. Mēsha, Kātaka, Thula and Makaṇa become movable signs. Vriṣabha, Simha, Vrischika and Kumbha are fixed signs. The rest Mithuna, Kanya, Dhanas and Meena are common or double-bodied signs. Mēsha, Simha & Dhanas represent East, Vriṣabha, Kanya and Makaṇa represent South, Mithuna, Thula and Kumbha indicate West, while Kātaka, Vrischika and Meena show North. All the twelve signs are odd and even regularly. In Mēsha, Mithuna, Simha, Thula, Dhanas and Kumbha the first sign (or the first half of the sign) is governed by the Sun and the second by Moon. In even sign Vriṣabha, Kātaka, Kanya, Vrischika, Makara and Meena the first sign is governed by the moon while the second half is governed by the sun.

When a sign is divided into 3 equal parts (each part gets therefore about 10 degrees) each part is called a Drakkanas. The first Drakkanas in a sign is governed by the lord who rules that sign. The second part is under the control of the lord of the 9th house from it and the master of the 3rd Drakkanas is the lord of the 9th house from it. If we take Mēsha and divide it into 3 equal divisions, then we get 3 Drakkanas. The first Drakkanas is governed by Mars the lord of Mēsha. The second is governed by the Sun the lord of the 5th house and the third is governed by Jupiter the lord of the 9th. Similarly for Vriṣabha Vēṇuśa, Mercury and Saturn are the lords of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Drakkanas respectively. For differences of opinion on these points see my elaborate notes on the English Translation of Saṃkrāntiśāchāratmanī.

Some writers on astrology say that the first house is governed by the lord of that house while the second house is governed by the lord of the eleventh from that house. They further say that the lords of the Drakkanas are (1) the lord of the first, (2) the lord of the 5th, and (3) the lord of the eleventh respectively.

NOTES

The author Vaiṣṇava Mihira, whose reading seems to have extended to all the extant works on astrology during his time, here and there uses the word Kacita which means some other etc. He appears to attach some sort of contempt, but at the same time he seems to admit that they were men of great reputation from whom quotations by him were not considered disgraceful or beneath his dignity as a writer of great merit. The commentator Bhātottiptala occasionally puts in the names of Yatana, Maniṭha and Yatanaśārīra for this term. This shows that in the opinion of this great and learned commentator these above named writers existed before Vair
tion. The exact seventh house or division of a house of a planet or sign will be the 180th degree of the position he or it occupies. If the Sun is Paramocchha in the 10th degree of Aries then his Paramaneecha or greatest fall will be in the 10th degree in Libra. A few facts require some explanation. Exaltation is different in its results from deep exaltation, the last being the most powerful position for a planet to occupy. Rakhu and Ketru are not mentioned here. It would be interesting to know why their exaltations and debilitations have not been mentioned by Varaha Mihira. This author mentions Rakhu twice only in his book (Stanza 3 and 5 of Ch II) and Ketru only once in Stanza 3 of Ch II, and in the latter part of this verse he refers the readers to other well known works on astrology, for more detailed information. The general consensus of opinion about Rakhu and Ketru shows that Rakhu is exalted in Taurus or Vrishabhha and Ketru in Scorpio or Vrishchika. Bhatotpala quotes Maharshi Gargi on the use of these exaltations of planets the Sun and the Moon. "If the Sun and the Moon occupy exaltation the person becomes rich and famous." He also quotes Yavaneswara to the same effect. In dealing with this verse Bhatotpala points out a grammatical inaccuracy of the author when he says those, ten, instead of Dasha the 10th Mahaa (tiers) three times instead of the 2nd and so forth. Of course if we take the author as he has put it, then the words may be interpreted to mean that the first 10 degrees in Meeha are Oochha for Ravi (Sun) and so on. The commentator quotes Yavaneswara on this point, where that author clearly says Desuma the 10th degrees as the deepest exaltation for the Sun. Various other authors have also been distinct upon this point and Varaha Mihira, in his anxiety to be brief, has introduced for metrical purposes shorter forms, which, to a less cultivated mind, may appear to be misleading or a little against the grammatical rules.

Stanza 14

The first Navamsa of movable, the middle Navamsa of the fixed and the last Navamsa of the double-bodied signs are technically called Vargottama Leo, Taurus, Aries, Virgo, Sagittarius, Libra, and Aquarius are Mudhrikonas for the Sun, Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus and Saturn respectively.

Notes

We have already seen that when a Zodiacal sign is divided into nine equal divisions, each is called a Navamsa. All the Navamsas do not seem to possess the same efficiency. Later on certain combinations of planets are given by this author in which he lays great stress and value upon the Vargottama Navamsa. Varga means divisions of a sign and Oottama means best. This simply means the best among the divisions in a sign. The signs of the Zodiac have already been divided into Chara movable others fixed, and Dwiswabhava common or double-bodied. In Meeha, Katakha, Thula, and Makara the first Navamsa goes under the name of Vargottama. The middle or the 5th Navamsa of Vrishha, Simha, Vrishchika and Kumbha becomes Vargottama, and the Antra or the 9th Navamsa of Mithuna Kanya, Dharma and Meeha goes under the name of Vargottama. Thus on a careful examination it will be seen that if the Navamsa of a sign becomes the same as the sign itself, it is called Vargottama. If I shall give the details to avoid confusion to my astrological readers. The Moon has the first 3 degrees as exaltation in Taurus and the remaining 27 degrees form his Moolatrikona. Venus has the first 10 degrees in Libra as his Moolatrikona and the rest as his own house. The Sun has the first 20 degrees in Leo as his Moolatrikona and the remaining ten degrees form his own house. Saturn has the first 20 degrees as his Moolatrikona in Aquarius, while the remaining ten degrees form his own house. Mars has the first 18 degrees in Aries as his Moolatrikona and the remaining 12 degrees form his own house. Jupiter has the first 16 degrees in Sagittarius as his Moolatrikona while the next 17 degrees form his own house (SwaSakshetra). Mercury has his Moolatrikona in Virgo from the 16th to 26th degrees inclusive as his exaltation in the first 15 degrees and the remaining degrees viz. 21st to 30th inclusive form his own sign. But the author of Sarvali, a well-known astrological work of old reputation, gives a different version.

In Aries, Mars has his Moon in sign in the 1st 18 degrees and the 1st 12 degrees form his own house.

In Sagittarius, Jupiter has the first ten degrees as his M. T. and the rest as his own house.

In Libra the first 17 degrees are as his M. T. for Venus and the rest are as his own house.

Oopachaya means improvement or increase but there seems to be some difference in opinion on this point. Bhatotpala very cleverly tries to justify his author but I myself see that his justification is a poor apology. Some say that Oopachaya houses or planets in them do not always give increase but only indicate improvement under certain definite conditions. The 6th house, for instance, is an Oopachaya. It denotes debt, enemy and disease. A good planet in any Bhava increases that significance, while a bad planet destroys it. In the 6th house, Saturn, for instance, destroys its significance. Enemy, debt and disease.

Thus there is improvement in a man's position, says the commentator. But if good planets occupy the 6th they increase the Bhava (significance) and therefore there is improvement to the 6th house. Thus in the case of evil planets there is improvement in the man's fortune and health while in the case of good planets there is improvement of the very well and hence its significance. I think to me more a quibble than a real explanation which offers satisfactory solution by a learned scholar. But Ilatotpala is a great commentator and I leave the readers to draw their own inferences. Some plead that when evil planets or those who are inimical to the lords of the Oopachaya combine or aspect them, they cannot give improvement and therefore the Oopachaya is not a permanent signification but changeable with the condition of the houses and planets in them. This view is supported by the quotation of Bhatotpala from Gargi. But Varaha Mihr and his great authority Satyacharya consider that these four houses are Oopachayas, irrespective of their conjunctions or aspects, and this view is also supported by quotations from Yavanacharya. Here Bhatotpala cleverly escapes from a dilemma where his own view was generally expected.

With due deference to Varaha Mihr, Satyacharya and Yavanacharya, I beg to differ from them and say with Bhagavan Gargi, that some modifications must be made with the condition of houses and those of the planets who occupy or aspect them. Take an example. Suppose a man is born in Meeana. Then the 11th from it will be Meesha. If it is occupied by Mora, he will be exalted and will be in an Oopachaya. Suppose Kanya is the Lagna of a man and Kanya is in Meeana. He will also be in the 11th from it and therefore man Oopachaya.

Suppose in the first case he has the aspect of Gargi in the 7th house occupying Kanka, where he is exalted, and in the second instance Gargi is in Meeana debilitated and aspects Kanta in Kanka, what would be the results in these two Oopachaya cases? Varaha Mihr and his school of astrologers would have us believe that the results which Gargi would give in his occupation of an Oopachaya Lagna will be similar or same in both these cases? Gargi and his school, on the other hand, tell us to differentiate between these two sets of Oopachaya combinations and attribute good results to the first, where the planet is exalted and aspected by another benefic, also in exaltation, while in the second set much less good should be ascribed on account of the debilitations of planets and their mutual aspects.
Common sense and general principles of astrology revolt against the first explanation while the second set stands to reason and rhyme. There may be truth in both.

Stanza 16.

Kalpa, Swa, Vikrama, Griha, Pratibha, Kshata, Chithotha, Randhra, Guru, Mana, Bhava, Vyaya are names of birth second, third etc. houses respectively. The fourth and eighth from Lagna are technically called Chaturashra, the seventh goes under the the name of Dyuna and the tenth is called Agnya.

Notes.

Birth house (Lagna) is called Kalpa denoting strength, Swa means wealth, Vikrama indicates courage, Griha shows house, Pratibha means intelligence, Kshata denotes wounds or sores, Chithotha signifies cupid or that which is born of mind. Randhra means accidents, or breaks in life, Guru denotes Preceptor, Mana indicates respect, Bhava shows domestic concerns, and Vyaya indicates loss.

The fourth and eighth together technically go under Chaturashra and Dyuna signifies the seventh and the tenth house shows Agnya or command.

Stanza 17.

Kantaka, Kendras and Chatustaya denote quadrants and there are Septama 7th) Lagna (1st), Chatursha (4th) and Kha (10) Dhanam rasis (signs). The Nara Rasis (masculine signs) are Mithuna, Kanya, Thula, half of Dhanas, and Kumbha and these are powerful when they happen to be birth signs. The Jalacharas (Aquatic) are Kataka, Meena, the second half of Makara, and these become powerful in the fourth. Kita Rasi (Vrischika) becomes powerful in the 7th, and Pasu Rasis (quadruped) Mesha, Vrishabha, Simha and the 2nd half of Dhanas and the 1st half of Makara become potent when they become the 10th houses.

Notes.

If we draw a square in the zodical circle, it will have four angles of equal dimensions and each of them is called a quadrant. Thus the 1st, 91st, 181st, and 271st degrees become the Kendras or angular points or if we take the 0, 90, 180 and 270 degrees they indicate Kendras for any house or signification. The first, 4th, 7th and 10th houses are technically called Kendras and they have other names like Kantaka (enemies or pricks) and Chatustaya meaning four places. The others are denoted here with a view to show the technicalities which are used in the astrological works.

Stanza 18.

Those houses next to Kendras are called Pana Pharas and those next to Panapaharas are designated Aupakalivatwa. Hibuka, Amba, Sukha and Varsma denote 4th house, Jamitra den-notes 7th, Thirukona shows 5th, Meshrana and Kamva are names for Dasama (10th)

Notes
Further on we have Baddarayana stating that signs as quadrants are the most powerful, the next in strength are the Panapharas and the least powerful are Aupokharama Panapharas as being next houses to the Kendars will be the 2nd, 5th 8th and 11th houses, from Lagna Aupokhramama will then be their next houses or the 3rd, 6th, 9th and 12th houses. The other names are some of the technicalities which occur in the astrological works quoted here for reference.

Stanza 19
If the lord of the birth, Jupiter or Mercury occupy or aspect Lagna (birth) it becomes most powerful. If other than these planets aspect or occupy it, it will not be so. All signs in Kendars are powerful. Signs in Panapharas are of moderate strength while signs in Aupokharamama are powerless. Biped signs are powerful during day. Quadruped signs in the night and Kita Rasi during the two twilights. The measure of the Rasis from Mesha to Kanya inclusive is 5—8—7—8—9 and 10 multiplied by four respectively. The other half from Thula to Meena in the reverse order. Salaya (3rd) is called Uuschikya Ravana is (9th) denoted as Thapas and Trishtkouma.

Notes
The most important question here dealt with by Varaha Mihira is his statement about the measurement of the zodiacal signs. But for the invaluable services of collection, collation and explanation offered by Bhatotpala, the stanza should have been very obscure as it makes no reference to any division of time, beyond the suggestion offered by him to multiply 5—6—7—8—9 and 10 by four. But what these 20—21—22—32—33— and 40 could have been it would not have been easy to say. Quoting Salayacharya, the commentator makes a distinction between a Bhaga of a Rasi, and its equivalent of the Chasahalas. Thus the Bhagas of the Rasas multiplied by 10 will give the extent of the Rasas in Vigahitas or 5th of a ghatika, which in itself would be 16th of a day or 24 minutes of English Time. Mesha and Meena would get 200 v ghitas or 3½ ghitas. Vrisabhara and Kumbha will measure 4 ghitas or 240 v ghitas. Mithuna and Makara get 280 v ghitas or 4½ ghitas. Kataka and Dhanus would get 320 v ghitas or 5½ ghitas. Simha and Vrischika would get 360 v ghitas or 6 ghitas. And Kanya and Thula would get 400 v ghitas or 6½ ghitas. This makes the Zodiac as of oval shape, with one end sharpened while the other end is broader. The measurements given here must not be mistaken for those which actually represent their durations or extension. For it would be absurd to suppose that a profound mathematician like Varaha Mihira would arbitrarily fix the measurements of the Rasis (signs) when they are certainly changeable with the latitudes and longitudes of places, whose knowledge can be determined by the works on Jyotisha Siddhantas. The learned commentator explains that the author has given these Manas (measurements) with a view to enable the students to find out the proportions of the limbs of persons born in the different signs and of the distances to which stolen articles have been removed from their proper places. Whichever organ or part of the body is occupied by the longest sign it will be longer and whichever is occupied by short signs will be proportionately short. If it is of middle size then the organ will also be similar. The author of Sarvala says Meena, Vrishabha, Mesha and Kumbha are Hraswa Rasis or short signs Mithuna, Dhanas, Kasa and Makara are Sama or moderately sized Vrischika Kanya Simha and Thula are Dirgha Rasis or long signs. These measurements must only be employed to find the proportions of the bodily organs, distances and the sizes of the stolen articles etc. and not for measuring the extent of the Zodiakal signs. This part of the work should be entirely learnt from the Mathematical portion of astrology or Gautha Skanda. Dwipada (Bipeda) Rasis are Mithuna, Thula, Kumbha Kanya and the first half of Dhanas, Chatushpada (quadruped) Rasis are Mesha, Vrishabha, Simha, the first half of Makara and the second half of Dhanas. Kta denotes in Sanskrit insects and these are Vrischika, Meena Kataka, and the second half of Makara. Varaha Mihira has committed the name of an important planet Sukra (Venus) as giving great strength to the Lagna by his conjunction and aspect. Other writers including Gargi and Badarayana clearly give him great prominence when Venus occupies Lagna or birth.

A great point of interest here is the quotation he gives from Brahma Gupta, who is titled here as a Dhatta and who certainly preceded as a famous astrological writer, Bhatoipala. Bhatoipala finished his priceless commentaries on the Brihat Jataka in the Salivahana Saka 898, to which we have to add 73 years to bring it on to the Christian Era. Thus we see that Bhatoipala completed his important commentaries in 971 A. D. He must have been in the prime of life and not much advanced in years and probably was born about the early part of the tenth century. Varaha Mihira’s works were already five hundred years old, and they must have been the most famous during Bhatoipala’s time, which re-mainly without suitable commentaries until this erudite writer took up the difficult task of writing commentaries. This desideratum be supplied with a knack, erudition, comprehensiveness and diligence, which entitle him to our greatest respect and love.

Stanza 20

Bloodred, white, green, darkish red, smoky, variegated, black, golden, yellow, whitish yellow, darkish white, and fish tint are the colors of Aries etc., respectively. The signs of planets get Plava in the direction of their lords. The second from the Sun becomes Fast.

Notes

Bhatotpala has here exhibited great depth of knowledge and gives long commentaries. The colors are:

1. Mesha = blood red
2. Vrishchika = white
3. Mithuna = green
4. Kataka = darkish red
5. Simha = smoky white
6. Kanya = Variegated or many colored
7. Thula = black
8. Vrishchika = golden
9. Maha = yellow
10. Makara = whitish yellow
11. Kumbha = darkish white
12. Meena = the color of the fish

This may be of many colors, but generally the fish color may be yellowish dark. For ought we know it may also mean all the colors which may be seen among the finny tribe. Plava means hollow or pit. Mars owns Aries and Scorpio and he governs south. In the south therefore, these two signs Aries and Scorpio get the technical name of Plava. Kataka is ruled by Chandra and he governs North West. In this direction the sign Kataka gets the Plava Technical, and so for all planets and signs. This Technicality will be useful for giving the directions taken by thieves and missing articles. Also this will be useful for conquering enemies if the kings or their generals follow in the direction of Plava, for that means hollow and the opponents will be cornered and conquered there. As regards the colors of the signs, the use will be with reference to the identification of the colors of animals and plants in dealing with the Fryans jampas or those which are not born through the human sexual organs. The second house from the sun is denoted Fast and this Lagna is recommended for all traveling purposes. If that is adopted then the sun will occupy the 12th house. If this house is also occupied by a good planet, it denotes fortune to the Native. In closing this first chapter, the clever commentator thus summarises his remarks which may be quoted here for ready reference, as they clear many doubts and difficulties in the path of progress in the astrological studies. In this first chapter, which goes under the name of Samyugadhyaya (Chapter on Technicalities) many names are given, some of which have root meanings, while others simply convey a Technical symbol. The following are mere symbols—Hora, Daschikya, Hibaka, Thrikona, Dyanam, Meshuranam, Ripha, Chaturasa, Kantaka, Kendra, Chatustaya, Papa, pana and Aupokliyam.

The first sign is called Thana and Kalpa, and from these the body and health of the man must be consulted.

The second is denoted Katamba and Swa—and from this must be examined the condition of the general family and wealth.

The third goes under the names of Sabaja and Vikrama—the physical strength and brothers must be examined from this sign.

The fourth has the names of Bandhu, Vasma, and Sukha—and from this must be known relations, houses and happiness of the person.

The fifth denotes Putra and Buddh and reveals the state of children and intelligence.

The sixth has the names of Ari and Kabata and gives clue to enemies and wounds or sores.

The seventh is called Dasa, Chithotha and Jamitra and therefore denotes wife, passion and marriage.

The eighth denotes Marana and Randa, or death and sins.

The ninth is called Shubha, Guru and Thapas.

Shubha means Dharma or charities, Guru means parents, preceptors etc. Thapas denotes rituals and religious contemplation.

- All these items have to be examined with reference to the ninth.

The tenth house is called Aspada, Karma, Agnya or residence, profession or calling and command or authority respectively.

The eleventh house is called Bhava, and Aaya. The first means, education character, etc. The second signifies gains or pecuniary earnings.

The twelfth is called Vyaya and signifies expenditure.

The 3rd, 6th, 10th and 11th houses are termed Oopachayas for their power of improving men's fortune. In these houses even evil planets give good results. The benefits increase the events or objects indicated by the houses except in the 6th house, where they produce the reverse effect viz., they destroy or suppress the events indicated by that Bhava. The evil planets destroy those events signified by the 1st, 2nd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th and 9th houses and increase the results in the rest of the houses namely 3rd, 8th, 10th, 11th and 15th. Thus it will be seen that benefits as well as maladies in the produce good, because both of them there destroy the results indicated by that house. 6th indicates debt, enemies and diseases. The good planets, cut these short as also the evil planets, and a man who has less or none of these three significations, certainly will be a very happy man. The names of the Bhavas are indicative of the results. The 3rd house is called Parakrama or strength and courage and planets increase that Bhava, 6th house denotes death and sins and that is increased by evil and beneficial planets and so also the twelfth. This is supported by a good quotation from Sri Dvatharthi. These are the general principles. But when any special combination or result therefrom is foretold or mentioned these do not interfere with such special cases, and the reader are warned not to think they are contradictions in Astrology. For beginners in Astrology, almost all points appear debatable and contradictory. One planet is said to give gold, while another is said to take it away. Even the broad principles of this science often appear to be confusing. All this disappears before the dawn of knowledge and experience, and I would ask patience, application and diligence from the students and readers to dispel these doubts.

CHAPTER II
Grahayoni Prabodha.

STANZA 1.
The Sun represents the Atma, the Moon mind, Mars strength, Mercury speech, Jupiter wisdom and happiness, Venus passions, and Saturn sorrow of Kala respectively. The Sun and Moon are Raya, Mars is Commander-in-Chief, Mercury is Yuva Raja, Jupiter and Venus are ministers, and Saturn is servant.

Notes.
The movable and immovable universe have been represented to be organs of Kala Parashu or the Time Eternal Personified in the shape of zodiacal signs and constellations. From this it will be seen that the planets form part of His body, and therefore the different characteristics of the Divine Body are now enumerated or indicated by the heavenly planets.

When there are many planets, it may be pertinently asked why Varaha Mihira a great Astronomer and Mathematician, should have taken the influences of only seven planets. I beg to refer my readers to my lengthy and learned dissertations upon these points in the Astrological Magazines published by me. As only seven principal planets have been known to exercise direct and tangible influences on the earth and its numberless phenomena, the ancient astrologers confined their researches to them. The Sun represents the soul or vitality of the Kala Parnash. Moon represents his mind. Mars indicates physical strength. Mercury the power of speech. Jupiter, Knowledge and happiness arising from that knowledge, Venus denotes sensual pleasures and Saturn represents sorrow. As all creation is embedded in the womb of time, and as its influences on phenomena are detailed in the astrological works under the guise of planetary bodies, the author calls the Sun Kalatma or the soul of the Kalapurna.

The various characteristics indicated here for the planets show their influences on men born under their direct control and their strength or weakness will be a guide to judge of the strength or weakness of the bodily organs as well as the characteristics enumerated above pertaining to men. "In the case of all the planets" says the author of Saravali "when they are strong they produce strength in results indicated by them, and when they are weak they produce weakness in such results. But with Saturn the results must be reversed." The Sun and Moon represent royalty or protective agency. Mars indicates the military power. Mercury the power wielded by heir apparent or Yura Raja. Jupiter and Venus indicate counselling or ministerial influence and Saturn represents mental services. This affords some clue to the means to be employed in securing power or advantage. Whichever planet occupy the Oopachayas at the time of birth, the personages, indicated by those planets, would become instrumental in furthering the interests of the individual or he will be successful in life, if he made applications to them. Suppose Mars powerfully occupies one of the Oopachayas, then the man will be patronised by military authorities or he should attempt to push on his interests through such commanders. It is well known that when some patronise people others, without any ostensible reason, throw obstacles in their way. This is due to such planets occupying unfavourable positions in the horoscope without power and against Oopachaya planets.

Stanza 2.

Neli and Surya, are names for the Sun Chendrana and Sitaram stand for the Moon Hemmo, Vit, Gnya, Bodhana and Induputra are names for Mercury Ara, Vakra, Krupedrik, Avanaya denote Mara, Kosa, Manda, Suryaputra and Asita stand for Saturn.

Stanza 3.

Jiva Angira, Saraguru, Vachasampathy and Ijya are terms for Jupiter. Sukra, Brigu, Brugusuta, Sita, and Asaphyt are names for Venus. Thomas, Agn and Asura are names for Kaban. Sikhi stands for Kethu.
Their other names must be learnt from well known works in the world.

Notes

Amara Kosha gives 37 names to the Sun and these are indicative of the various phenomena because the author gives only a few names here not much in use and desires the readers to learn the rest from well known works in Sanskrit. Rahu is called Agni and Bhatotpala derives it as one who has no and yu bright rays. Varaha Mihira, his predecessors and Bhatotpala speak of Rahu as a planet who has dark rays. The discoveries of modern science are yet in their infancy, and the means, which are at their command are certainly composed of glasses by whose medium they do their work of examining the planetary phenomena. On the other hand the ancient Rishis claim great mental development and they have recorded in technical language what they actually saw with superior sight. All discoveries are made with the help of instruments constructed by the development of mind. Mind is constructed by the invisible energies in the atmosphere as manifested by the rays of the Sun. Telescopes and microscopes, spectrosopes and heliometers cannot penetrate certain objects when they offer resistance or obstruction. Mind, the most subtle and invisible energy yet discovered, in nature can remove all obstruct. In fact, when it is purified from its gross earthly surroundings; when it is elevated by the study of sublime subjects like astronomy, and when it is ennobled and expanded by deep contemplation and concentration on the Infinite Intelligence it becomes the grandest power Mahatma or expanded atma or soul will acquire a power before which, the word impossible in the physical or planetary planes, would be found meaningless. Therefore we have two sets of philosophers Those who expand their intellects with reference to external earthly phenomena by the construction and use of terrestrial machinery and those who have gone into the very root and cause of mind, and who consequently soar far higher than the first set can ever hope to do. The first set can only see through what it arranges in the shape of machinery. The second more purified will soar far higher and see the very essence of all phenomena. If some theories explained here are against the accepted views of modern sciences, the readers are not to run away prejudiced, and shelve the older theories as antiquated; on the other hand, the modern views must be accepted with the greatest suspicion for they are highly tentative and at best in an experimental stage, liable to be frequently modified. These views of modern astronomers are being so rapidly replaced by their own admirers and students that people are in great bewilderment as to what would be the fate of the to-day theories ten years hence. The ancient theories have been uniformly recognised and respected by the succeeding generations so much so that even to-day they comprehend all the latest discovered facts and fancies and still leave ample room for contemplation and original research.

Stanza 4

The Sun is dark red, the Moon white, Mars blood-red, Mercury green, Jupiter white, Venus neither white nor black, Saturn black.

Notes

The use for these colors will be found in identifying the thieves &c in questions affecting lost persons or articles. As there is some difference in the colors attributed to the planets they may be noted here for the information of my readers. The Sun has a copper color while Mars has purple red. Moon and Venus are represented by some to be pure white, while Jupiter is given a deep golden color.

Stanza 5

Copper color is governed by the Sun, white by the Moon, blood-red by Mars, green by Mercury, yellow by Jupiter, variegated colors by Venus and black by Saturn. The Sun has Agni as adhivata. The Moon Ambu, Mars has Kamara. Mercury has Kesava. Jupiter has Indra. Venus has Indran. Saturn has Kaha. The East &c is governed by the Sun, Venus, Mars Rahu, Saturn, Moon, Mercury and Jupiter. Waning Moon, Sun, Mars, Saturn, and Mercury in conjunction with them, are malefics.

Notes

In the preceding and this stanza, a distinction is made. There the colors of the planets are given to identify persons &c and in this to identify the objects &c. Also the gains and losses of objects with the colors above named during the periods and sub periods of planets and the flowers to be used in the worship of planets in the remidal measures adopted for lessening the evil influences of planets. In the invocation of planets the Gods and Goddesses named for them should be worshipped. Yavanaszara says to the same effect. When a thief takes away an article, his name will be one of the names of the God or Goddess who governs the planet of the rising sign at the time of question. In travelling, a person is advised first to worship that deity which governs the planet who is the lord of that direction. Saravali says to a similar effect. The directions given about the cardin-nal points enable a person to find out which side the door of the room of confinement faced at the birth of a child. The Sun, Venus, Mars, Rahu, Saturn, Moon, Mercury and Jupiter indicate the East, South-East, South, South-West, West, North-West, North and North-East respectively.

North.

Moon when full is a benefic. When weak (as on Amavasya day) a malefic. Mercury is good when in good conjunction and evil when he joins evil planets. The commentator says that Chandra is Kshina (weak) from the second half of the 8th lunar day of the dark half to the 1st half of the 8th day of the bright half of the lunar month and that he will be Poorna (full moon) on other days. This is for general consideration. But for Ayudhaya (longevity) the Moon will be Kshina (lean or powerless) from the end of the 12th day of the dark half of every lunar month to the end of Amavasya, till he is not passed the solar globe Yavanarathwa maintains that the Moon is never a papa or malefic planet. He says that the Moon is moderately strong from the 1st to the 10th day of the bright half of the lunar month, from the 10th of the bright half to the 5th of the dark half of the lunar month he is full moon or very powerful and from the 5th to the last of the dark half of the lunar month he is powerless. But he is not a malefic. The use for this knowledge is, that if evil planets pre-dominate, the man becomes evil natured, when the benefics are powerful, he becomes good and with the mixture of good and evil planets the nature of the man will be also mixed.

The question of Devatas and Adhi Devatas is an important one. A full discussion of this here is out of tune in a short note like this. Devatas may be explained as the essence of events or objects, and Adhi Devatas are the adjunctional energies which help the Essential Forces. There is a difference between active forces and passive energies. The active forces are called Gods while the passive ones are styled Goddesses. Agni is the Essence of Fire, and controls solar disc. Amba is water and the Forces representing it governs moon Kamara or Shaniwukha is the reputed son of Siva and represents the Essence of Martian strength.
He governs Mars Kesava represents the protective agency or energy and governs Mercury Indrah represents the Devata energy and he controls Jupiter Indra and Surya is the feminine energy of Indra, and this Goddess rules Venus Kaha is Brahma and he represents the creative energy Saturn is under his control. Saturn represents life, means of livelihood and death and he is aptly placed under the creative force designated Brahma.

The above are agencies of the several planets to whom remedial measures must be dedicated in our attempts to soften the rigour of evil influences. I refer my readers to the contributions published by me in the Astronomical Magazine.

Saturn and Mercury are impotent. Venus and Moon are females and the rest are masculine. Fire, earth, sky, water and air are ruled by Mars and

Notes

Fumoucha are those who have no potency to couple with the opposite sex. On account of some defect in the organs or whose sexual organs are not capable of having any intercourse. Persons who have Saturn or Mercuryaspecting the body or their conjunction will have this defect. Powerful Moon and Venus give the feminine sex and the Sun, Mars and Jupiter represent masculine power and make the person also male and manly. By this the sex of the thiries &c. can also be ascertained. Mars rules Fire, Mercury rules the Earth, Jupiter the Sky, Venus the Water and Saturn, the Air. Varaha Mihira has not named the lordship of the Sun and the Moon. But that the Sun rules the fire and the Moon the water, has already been stated by the author in Stanza 5. In the periods of the planets the color of the person will be predominated by the influence of the planet and the corresponding Mahabhoota (See bl. 21 ch. VIII)

Stanza 7

Notes

This is a very difficult stanza for translation as it apparently deals with the different castes found in the Indian Peninsula and also as it refers to the characteristics most famously known as Satwa, Rajasa and Shhamasa. If astrology is to be taken as a universal science, then it may be questioned that in this verse it betrays a narrowness of vision that would quite unfit it to be a comprehensive science, applicable to all nations. Like medicine, astrology has its universality as well as its particular locality.
It is in this way. When Guru and Sukra are called Vipras they represent Brahmins in India and when these are powerful the horoscope may be attributed as belonging to a Brahmin in India. But when Guru and Sukra are strong in the horoscope of an African, an American or a European where the particular kind of castes found in India are not existing how should the astrologer be guided in his prediction about the caste of the native? The answer is simple Vipra in Sanskrit means one who is pure, that is one who is entirely devoted to the service of God. In countries where Brahmins, as a caste, do not exist, then it applies to all those persons who devote their time to the contemplation of God and who are priests of real merit and pious living. When there is no caste as Kshatriya, the planets include all men who pass muster under the military orders. Vasisas are to be similarly interpreted. All those who have mercantile instincts and who depend upon commerce for livelihood may be called Vaisyas and Sudras are agriculture's servants and industrial men. Antyajas are those who are pariahs or outcasts in India, and who follow pariah occupation of killing and removing dirt in other countries. Principles of science are always applicable to all countries and all nations alike, but with local or general modifications. A man may be called a king in one country, a president in another and a leader in the third. The functions performed by them will almost be similar, and a real adept in any science looks more to the spirit of the verse than to its letter and quarrelling over technicalities without catching their spirit, will be like nursing a body when the soul has passed away.

The following are characteristics for Satwa:

A man who has Dnya (kindness), Sthiratwa (fixed purpose), Satya (truthfulness), Arjya straight going, Brahmana and Deva Bhatti regard and respect with faith in good people and Gods.

Rajas—one who performs sacrifices, who is fond of poetry and general literature, of women and possesses courage.

Thamas—deceitful, stubborn, lazy, cruel, revengeful and sleepy.

In Bhagavadgita, a work of immortal merit for which the greatest Advaita Philosopher Sankaracharya has written invaluable commentaries as also other famous Acharyas, we have a clear description of what these characteristics denote, what acts constitute them and what result could be produced by adhering to them. (See Bhag Ch. XII and XVII)

The creative energy of Brahma called Prakriti, has given three principal characteristics to humanity called Satwa, Rajas and Thomas and with these binds the permanent Atma, a ray of Para Brahma or Supreme Intelligence. Satwa is pure and causes light to others. It gives happiness and wisdom to mankind. Rajas denotes desire for objects, and binds the Atma by the ropes of Karmic results. Thomas is denoted by ignorance, makes all people passionate, and avaricious, and causes laziness, sleepiness and negligence in doing good work. Satwa gives moral happiness, Rajas makes him do Karma and Thomas causes him to do bad work. When Satwa supersedes and controls Rajas and Thomas then it will be elevated and will therefore be able to see the grand and glorious bliss of Para Brahma. When a person dies, when Satwa predominates, he gets into heavenly bliss, when Rajasa prevails at the time of death, he will have Karma and get birth again under Karma conditions, and when Thomas prevails at the time of death the person will take births again in lower orders of creation.

Actions done when Satwa Predominates result in knowledge and happiness. Deeds done when Rajas prevails result in sorrow and misery and acts done under the control of Thomas result in producing ignorance and debasement of mental faculties.

Men, with developed Satwa, attain to blissful regions, men with development of Rajas take birth as mortals and men whose Thomas predominates go down to infernal regions or lower orders in creation. Satwikas worship or satisfy Devatas or higher forms of beneficent energies, Rajasas worship Rakshas and Yakshas while Thamases-worship the devils and love spirits. Under these, therefore comes, the classification of food so necessary to man but so prejudicial to him when promiscuously consumed. People seem to laugh at the idea when Vedantists lay down rigorous restrictions on the food we consume, the clothing we wear, and the surroundings we select. This is a grand mistake, the neglect of which, leads men to most injurious results. The composition of different vegetables and animals differs most radically in the various species and genera and to say that men get the same blood and flesh same energy and mental strength, same morality and nervous capacity, without reference to the various kinds of foods used would be asserting a principle more stupid than which we can hardly conceive in the logic of any nation.

Worship includes contemplation and concentration. These powers produce results as per objects upon which they work, and this distinction must be kept clearly under our vision. An executioner and a highly develop ped yogi are both capable of great concentration. A benedictory king and a tyrannical sovereign possesses great powers of concentration but with different results. The first concentrates his thoughts upon the minutest details of his administration and grants redress to them and thus benefits humanity and gets merit.

The second bestows great attention upon the very same details with a view to extirpating from the people under all circumstances and introduces misery and ruin to his nation and is directly to himself. It should be the noblest attempt of every man to select the best place, the best clothing, the best climate, the best subject for contemplation and direct his best energies to attain good name here and eternal salvation in the life beyond. Therefore at the time of birth planets indicate the nature of the child, and it is for the parents and guardians to afford all facilities to suppress evil propensities and to increase good tendencies. Man is a motley cursorily formed compound where the component parts, while undiscerning dominating uniting power,

Statues 8 to 11 inclusive

- The sun has a well proportioned body, is blemish and possesses short hairs.
- The moon has well rounded body, much wind and phlegm, intelligent, sweet speech and good eyes.
- Mars is youthful, liberal, blemish, sicken-minded and possesses a thin wrist.
- Mercury has gurgling speech, fond of joking, and has a mixture of air, phlegm and bile.
- Jupiter has a corpulent body, golden locks and eyes, moral, and is phlegmatic.
- Venus is fond of happiness, handsome, fine eyes and black mingles and temperament compounded of wind and phlegm.
- Saturn is lazy, has yellowish eyes, lean tall body, stout teeth and rough hairs. He is of a windy temperament. Saturn governs nerves, the Sun rules hands, the Moon controls the blood. Mercury the skin. Venus the sperm. Jupiter the brain and Mars the marrow.

Notes.

The characteristics of the planets...
the strong control of these planetary influences. Astrology is a science which deals with men and their surroundings as being directly influenced by the planets, so we are not much concerned as to what the planets may be really in their own places but are highly concerned with their direct influences on men and their environments. We have to understand these characteristics as being possessed by men who are born under the direct influences of the several planets. Further on we have Varaha Mihira speaking to the same effect (Ch. V. Verse, 23). The characteristics of a man may be determined either by the lord of the Navamsa rising in Lagna or by the most powerful planet in the horoscope. The last portion of the stanza is also very important. Men have good or bad health. When evil planetary periods and subperiods come in, such diseases may be predicted which arise from the Dhatus (nerves, blood &c.) directly controlled by the evil planet or planets as the case may be. In questions affecting loss of persons or properties the rising sign and its lord furnish details for their identification. So also in questions about diseases, the lord of the Navamsa rising in the Lagna may determine the kind and extent of disease by which the person suffers at the time.

For a careful observer of human nature, these verses are of immense value as furnishing landmarks in the science of Astrology by which they will be able to identify the people of all grades and place them under the control of the particular planet whose special characteristics he most possesses. Thus if a man is ordinary in height, fair in complexion, royal in nature, bilious in temperament, having short hairs and honey colored eyes, an astrologer at once places him under the presidency of the Sun. That is the man will be born in the Lagna ruled by the Sun or occupied or aspects by him or he may be the lord of the Navamsa, which rises at the time of his birth. Where a man is all, briskly with stout bones and teeth generally lazy in habits, dark in complexion and prematurely old in appearance he may be placed at once under the influence of Saturn.

Stanza 12.

The Sun controls Devasthan, the Moon watery place, Mars the fire place, Mercury the gaming place, Jupiter the treasury, Venus the bedroom, and Saturn the heap of dirt.

The Sun governs rough cloth, the Moon rules new clothes, Mars controls, burnt clothes, Mercury rules soaked clothes, Jupiter controls neither old nor new clothes, Venus controls strong clothes, and Saturn rules rags. Sun governs copper, Moon precious stones Mars gold, Mercury bell metal &c, Jupiter silver, and when he is in his own house he governs gold. Venus pearls and Saturn governs iron, lead &c.

Saturn controls Svara, Venus Vasan, Mars Grishma, Moon Varsha, Mercury Sarat, Jupiter Hemanta, and the Sun Grishma. These seasons may also be indicated by the lord of the Drekhana rising in the Lagna at the time of question or consultation of lost horoscopes.

Notes

The Sun governs all places of worship in a house or elsewhere and by this the birth place may be identified. The Moon controls bath rooms, wells, tanks and all watery places, while Mars rules over fire places (kitchens, furnaces). Mercury controls playgrounds, Jupiter rules over treasure rooms.

Venus controls places of sexual enjoyment and bed rooms, and Saturn rules over heaps of dirt and filth. These two chapters are the keys to the whole study of astrology and a careful analysis of the various planetary characteristics is needed to indicate the results, which a man enjoys under their periods and sub-periods. The different kinds of clothes governed by the planets are named here, and during their periods and sub-periods the man either wears such clothes or deals with them. The metals serve the same purpose. The Hindu astronomers have divided the cyclic year into 6 divisions called, Vasanta (Chaitra and Vaisakha) April and May, Grishma (Jyastra and Ashada) June and July, Varsha (Shravana and Bhadrapada) August and September, Sharat (Asvina and Kartika) October and November, Hemanta (Margasira and Pushya) December and January and Svara (Magha and Phalguna) February and March. As Inanu and English months differ I have given the seasons roughly in English months. Occasionally there may be slight differences. First refer to the planet in the Lagna for predicting the Ratha or season, if there are more than one planet in the rising sign the season must be determined by the most powerful among them. If there is no planet in the Lagna then the planet which governs the rising Drekhana in the Lagna determines the season. Bhagatnata quotes Manthra on this subject. The commentator points out an omission of the author here in not stating the Divisions of the Vedas called Sakhas (branch). He quotes from Varsha Mihira's Laghu Jataka, about this—Rig Veda is governed by Guru, Athar Veda is ruled by Buda, Sama Veda is controlled by...
Kuja and Varah Veda is ruled by Sakra; when planets are powerful they give the native inclination in their own Sakas and these are also useful in remedial measures where evils indicated by planets must be averted by those mantras (incantations) which are found in the Vedas ruled by them.

STANZA 13.
Planets aspect ¼, ¾, ¾ and full in the 3rd and 10th, in the 5th and 9th, in the 4th and 8th and in the 7th respectively. Saturn, Mars and Jupiter have special sights and are powerful inaspecting 3rd and 10th, 4th and 8th and 6th and 9th respectively.

Notes.
These planetary aspects have been very minutely described in the Astrological Magazines as well as in my translation of Sarwartha Chintamani to which I refer my readers. All planets aspect the 7th house in full.
But the aspecting of Sani is the most powerful in the 3rd and 10th houses from him. Mars aspects most powerfully in the 4th and 8th houses and Jupiter in the 5th and 9th houses. Their aspecting is consequently not so powerful in the 7th house. In the case of other planets 7th aspect is the best for them.

STANZA 14.
An Ayana, a Kabana, a Varana, a Rathu, a Masa, an Ardha and a Sana will be the time allotted to the Sun &c. respectively, for the fulfillment of any act or deed indicated in a question. Pungent, salt, bitter, mixtare, sweet, sour and acid are the tastes attributed to the Sun &c. respectively.

Notes.
Ravi—Ayana—6 months.
Chandra—Kabana—minute or short time.
Kuja—Varana—week.
Buda—Rathu—two months.
Guna—Masa—one month.
Sakra—Ardha—half of a month—a fortnight.
Sani—Sana—one full year.

Find the lord of the Navamsa at the time of the question and also calculate how many signs he is from his Navamsa. This number denotes the Ayana &c. according as the Navamsa lord is the Sun &c. Take an example.
In Mesha at the time of question, rises the Navamsa of Thula. The lord of this is Sani. Suppose Sakra is in Meena in the Navamsa. Then from Thula he is 6 signs from himself. For Sakra the time allotted is a fortnight. Therefore the success of an enterprise if it is so, must be predicted within 6 fortnights or about 3 months from the date of question. Suppose a man is sick and a question is put to an astrologer about the patient. After proper calculations he fixes the Lagu and the Navamsa and by their strength &c. he says either the mendic is or lives as the case may be. The next question would be if he lives, then will he be cured, if he dies within how many months or days or hours he dies. To such questions this Stanza will give a clear explanation; and so also for the recovery of stolen articles, for the return of lost or missing persons and so forth. Some astrologers say (Mantha) that the Ayanas, &c will have to be determined by the number of the Navamsa which rises at the time of question. The tastes here given are—

Ravi—pungent.
Chandra—salt.
Kuja—bitter.
Buda—mixed taste.
Guru—sweet.
Sakra—sour.
Sani—acid.

According to the strength of the planets at the time of birth will be the tastes of the man or when a powerful planet rules he will introduce his own taste to the man under his control.

Stanza 15.

According to some, Sun has Jupiter, Moon has Mercury and Jupiter, Mars has Venus and Mercury, Mercury has all except the Sun; Jupiter has all except Mars; Venus has all except the Sun and the Moon; and Saturn has all except Mars, Moon, and the Sun, as friends. But according to Satya from the Thrivikram of the planet the 2nd, 12th, 5th, 9th, the lord of his exaltation, 2nd and 4th lords, are friends. The rest are not friends.

Notes.

The first part of the verse contains the Matsam (doctrine) of Yavanaswara.

Bhatotpala observes rightly that according to Yavana-swara there are only friends and foes but not neutrals or acquaintances. According to Satyacharya, whom the author of Brihatjatakas holds in great admiration and respect, all the various shades of friendship and enmity are clearly traceable. The commentator here gives lengthy explanations with a view to simplify matters. I may quote here one or two cases so that the rest may easily be grasped. The Sun has his Mala-thrikona in Leo. The 12th from Leo is Cancer. Its lord is Moon and as he owns only one house he becomes the best friend of the Sun. The fourth from Leo is Scorpio, 9th is Aries, their lord is Mars. The Sun is exalted in Aries. Therefore Mars is a friend of the Sun. The 5th and 8th from Leo are Sagittarius and Pisces. Their lord is Jupiter. Therefore Jupiter is an intimate friend of the Sun. The 2nd and 11th from Leo are Virgo and Gemini. Their lord is Mercury. The 2nd Rasi is mentioned but the 11th is not named, therefore Mercury is a neutral of the Sun. The 6th and 7th from Leo are Capricornus and Aquarius, and as both of these houses are not mentioned in the rule, their lord Saturn is a bitter enemy of the Sun.
The 3rd and 10th from Leo are Libra and Taurus. Their lord is Venus. Both of these houses are not mentioned in the Sutra, and therefore Venus is a bitter enemy of the Sun. Take now the Moon. His Moolathrikona is in Taurus. The 4th is Leo, its lord is the Sun, and therefore he is a friend of the Moon. The second and 5th houses from Taurus are Gemini and Virgo. Mercury is their lord. Therefore he is a friend of the Moon. The 7th and 12th from Taurus are Scorpio and Aries. Their lord is Mars, 7th house is not mentioned but the 12th is named. Mars therefore is a neutral of the Moon. The 8th and 11th from Taurus are Sagittarius and Pisces. Their lord is Jupiter, as the 11th is not mentioned but the 8th is named and therefore Jupiter becomes neutral to the Moon. Moon is exalted in Taurus. The 6th from it is Libra, its lord is Venus. The 6th is not mentioned and therefore Venus becomes a neutral of the Moon. The 6th and 10th from Taurus are Capricornus and Aquarius. Their lord is Saturn. 10th is not named and therefore Saturn becomes a neutral of the Moon. For Mars, Aries is Moolathrikona. The fourth from it is Cancer, with Moon as its lord. He owns only one house and therefore Moon is the friend of Mars. The 5th from Aries is Leo. Its lord is the Sun, he owns only one house and as it is named the Sun becomes the friend of Mars.

Similarly find out for all the planets from their moolathrikonas. There are planets who own two houses while the Sun and the Moon own only one house each. If the planet owns two houses named in the Sutra (text), then he becomes a friend. If he owns two houses but one of them falls in the number named above and the other does not, then the planet becomes a neutral. But if a planet owns two houses and none of them is named in the Sutra then he becomes an enemy.

Sutras 16 and 17.
NOTES.

As the results of the Sutras information contained in Verse 15, Varaha Mihira summarises the purport of Satya's doctrine in clear language here. As I have given the friendship &c in a tabular form further notes will be quite unnecessary.

Stanza 18.

The planet in the 2nd, 12th, 11th, 3rd, 10th or 4th from any other planet at the time of birth, becomes his temporary friend. Some say the lord of the house in which a planet is exalted also becomes his friend. The rest (announced here) are enemies. The lords of two houses, the lord of one house named and the lord of house not named become friend, neutral and enemy respectively. These relations (temporary) must be taken along with the Nisargika (permanent) relations named in the previous stanzas and then friendship &c must be finally determined.

NOTES.

A few examples will determine these results and bring home the processes, easily before the understanding of the readers. Take a horoscope.

According to Nisargika relationship Mars is the friend of Jupiter. But according to the Tatkalika (temporary) Jupiter is in the 5th house from Mars in the horoscope given here. Thus 5th house is not named as friendly in at 18 and therefore Jupiter becomes an enemy of Mars again. Take Jupiter Mars is his friend in the Nisargika. But in the present diagram Mars is in the 9th house from Jupiter. 9th is not named as friendly. Therefore Mars becomes an enemy to Jupiter. The result is that according to the Nisargika, Mars and Jupiter are friends. But in this horoscope, both of them, by their unnamed positions to each other, have become enemies. In the one case both of them are friends. In the other both of them become enemies. The result is they become neutrals and much good ought not to be expected from them. Thus seven states of relationship are mentioned and they show the delicacy of mutual feelings which men entertain towards one another.

The perfections of a science are only known when we read their literature and apply their rules to the existing order of human relationships. This will be a very good lesson for the Western presumptions Astrologers to learn. What do we find in their works, so much boasted of by them and pretended to have been written by the Chaldeans, whom they are so prone to worship without rhyme or reason. Are their any grounds given for the friendship and enmity among their works, if so they may bring forth their authorities. Varaha Mihira borrows his ideas from the illustrious predecessors in this field of research.

The seven states of relationship are:—
1. Mitra—friend
2. Adhi Mitra—intimate friend
3. Sama—neutral or acquaintance
4. Samasatra—less than Neutral and better than enmity
5. Sutra—enemy
6. Adhi Sutra—bitter enmity
7. Sama Mitra—better than acquaintance, but less than real friendship.

Stanza 10.

By Swocha, Subhraj, Swa, Thrikon, Navamss, the planets get Sthana-bala. In the East Jupiter and Mercury, in the South the Sun and Mars, in the West Saturn, and in the North Venus and Moon get Digbalaam.

Notes.

Planets have four sources of energy or bala; Sthana, Dik, Cheeta and Kala, and in this verse he names the first two sources of strength or power for the planets. A planet in exaltation, in a friendly house, in his own house, in his Thrikon, in his Navamss gets what is called Sthana-bala or strength from the locality. The birth sign represents the East and Jupiter and Mercury are powerful there. The South represents the 10th house and the Sun and Mars are powerful there. The West represents the 7th house and Saturn is powerful there, and the North represents the 4th house and Venus and the Moon are powerful there. This is called Digbala or strength arising from the direction of the planet. A general principle by which the astrological readers are to be guided is that all planets become powerless in the 7th house from that where they are given any sort of power by the astrological verses.

Aries is the house of Mars and he attains some power as he is in his own house. The seventh from it will be Libra. Here he loses that power which he is given in Aries. Mars is exalted in Capricorn. The 7th from it is Cancer. He loses in Cancer that power which he attains in Capricornus. The rules must be similarly applied in reference to all other planets. Planets in signs between their power and debility, must be given such quantity of strength, which they get by simple rule of three. Thus the Sun attains his highest elevation in the 10th degree of Aries and his lowest debilitation in the 10th degree of Libra. Suppose he is in the 20th degree of Cancer. Then what strength does he get there? If the highest elevation is represented as X then the lowest debilitation will have to be represented.
by a zero. This he attains in 180 degrees, the distance between the 10th degree of Aries and the 10th of Libra. But the 20th degree of Cancer is the 100th degree from his highest elevation in Aries; therefore if the sun had fell strength in the 10th degree of Aries he will have:

\[ 1 - \frac{180}{360} = \frac{1}{2} \text{ in the 20th degree of Cancer.} \]

This holds good in all their positions and must be carefully worked out by simple rule of three. Suppose Jupiter is in the 2nd house from Leo or in a horoscope. We are tempted to say that he will give great wealth. That is what astrology says. If that 2nd house becomes Cancer and Jupiter occupies the 5th degree in it then he gives great wealth provided he has no evil conjunctions or aspects. But suppose he is in Capricorn occupying the 8th degree there. The wealth that he gave in Cancer, will not find a place in Capricorn and the man loses his wealth or will be a pauper. Because Jupiter has there zero strength. But if he is in the 10th degree of Scorpio and that happens to be the second house, then what wealth he gives there (Scorpio) would be in proportion to that which he gave in Cancer. The 10th of Scorpio is the 125th degree from the 5th of Cancer. The distance from Jupiter's greatest elevation to his lowest fall is 180 degrees. Therefore he gives 1 - \frac{125}{360} \text{ part of the wealth he would have given in Cancer. The rule of proportion must be carefully worked out. Suppose in Cancer he gave the unit result, equivalent to say about 1000 rupees. Then the wealth he would give in the 10th degree of Scorpio would be:} \]

\[ (1 - \frac{125}{360}) \times 1000 = \frac{135}{360} \times 1000 = \frac{270}{72} \text{ or Rs. 305.} \]

That is by travelling 125 degrees from his greatest elevation he has lost \( \frac{135}{360} \times 100 = 34\frac{5}{12} \text{ rupees.} \)

But the supposition here is subjected to various other calculations arising from other sources of strength and therefore ought not to be literally taken. This is given as an example to work out the method. Besides, any planet does not give a Zero result at any house as he is subjected to so many other influences all of which have to be taken into consideration in determining his strength.

Similarly work out for other planets according to their falls or elevations from places where they are given titles or sources of strength.

Stanza 20.

Ravi and Chandra have chestabala in Oottarayana. The rest will have chestabala when they have Takra or Sawargana. Those who are in the North of the planetary sight, and those whose rays are bright also possess chestabala.

Notes.

Months from Capricornus to Gemini constitute Oottarayana. The Sun here attains his northernmost elevation. Months from Cancer to Sagittarius inclusive compose Dakshinayana when the Sun attains his highest southernmost elevation. The Sun and the Moon are possessed of chesta (action) bala (power) during Ottarayana. This will be generally from the 13th or 14th January to about the 15th of July. The Sun attains peculiar power here and it is considered good for doing all beneficial work. The reverse holds good in Dakshinayana: the other planets, viz. Kuja, Buda, Guru, Sukra and Sani, get chesta bala when they are retrograde (Vakra) or when they are joined by Moon (Samaçama). Vipulakara or brightesses in rays comes to these planets before they get retrograde, and when they are Sigrakendras. The mathematical portion involved in this will be explained in Ayardsayadhyaya. Dhatotpala quotes Acharya Vishnu Chundra, who says—that planets with the Sun are Astha (combust), with the Moon samagama (lunar conjunction) and Karutadinamayuddham and the rest of planets with each other get into planetary fight.

When Moon is with the Sun he gets no Astha, and when the Sun is with the Moon there is no Samagama. In fact Astha and Samagama are only states for other planets. North should be interpreted as full of lustre and that planets whose rays are full is to be considered as victorious in the planetary fight. When two or more planets join, he who has the most southern position there, who shakes, who appears small and whose rays are illustrious, and who has deviated from his orbital line, and whose color has changed, is said, by Astrological adepts, as the planet who has suffered defeat in the planetary conjunction. When the reverse is the case the planet must be considered as victorious. Pulisacharya says that Venus even when he is in the South, may be victorious.

Stanza 21.

The Night gives, Moon, Mars and Saturn Kala Bala. Mercury has it always. The rest are powerful during the day. Benefics have Kalabala during the bright half of the lunar month, while malefics get it during the darkhalf. The lord of the year, of the day, of the hora, of the Mars also gets Kalabala. Sa, Ku, Du, Gu, Su, Cho, Rä, are respectively stronger than each other.

Notes.

Kala means time, and Mars, Saturn and Moon are strong during the nights. The Sun, Jupiter and Venus are strong during the day while Mercury has this time-influence always. The lord of the year will be the planet, whose week day commences on the 1st of that cyclic lunar year. During Parabhava (1906 & 1907) the lunar year commenced on a Sunday and this is controlled by the Sun. He gets kalahala. This is to be applied to the lord of the year during which a person is born. The lord of the day is so well known that it requires no explanation. The hora refers to that division of the time (measuring $2\frac{1}{2}$ khalis) which rises at the time of birth. On Sunday a child is born at 12.30 p.m. The horas for a day are 24 (corresponding to exact English hours) and on Sunday the first hora is governed by the Sun, the 2nd by Venus, the 3rd by Mercury, the 4th by Moon, the 5th by Saturn, the 6th by Jupiter. With the completion of the first 6 horas, 12 o'clock or noon is completed. The child is born at 12.30 p.m. The next hora, i.e., from 12 o'clock noon to 1 o'clock p.m. the hora is governed by Mars, and as the birth has taken place on this 7th hora on that day Mars in that horoscope gets kalahala. Marudhipatby is the lord of the week day with which the lunar month commences and if it happens to be Friday, then Venus who governs it gets kalahala as the lord of that month. All these powers are called Nisargika and have permanent influences while all other sources of power named in this book must be superseded or modified by these permanent powers. For the sake of brevity Varaha Mihira uses in the last part of the verse the first letters of the planets to show their relative strengths. Sa—stands for Sani and he is the weakest of the planets. Thus must be, I suppose, for doing good and certainly not for doing evil. He holds tremendous power to give evil. Ku—stands for Kanya and he is stronger than Sani. Bu—stands for Buda and he is stronger than Kanya. Ga—stands for Guru and he is stronger than Buda in power. Su—stands for Shukra and he is stronger than Guru. Obha—stands for Chandra and he is stronger than Shukra. Ra—stands for Ravi and he is the strongest of the whole lot. Bhootpala quotes from other works the results for these four principal sources of power. The planets get viz. Shana, Dakshina and Kala. The Saravali says Oocha planet gives much wealth. Moolakhrkona planet makes a man minister or commander.

Planet in his own house gives joy, wealth, fame and happiness.

Planet in a friendly house gives reputation, courage, happiness, fixed and royal wealth.

Planet in his own Navamsa makes a man well known. Varaha Mihira says also to a similar effect in his Laghu Jataka.

Planet subjected to beneficial aspects makes a man, wealthy, reputed, handsome, principal and agreeable.

If benefics in masculine signs aspect a planet the person becomes respected, learned, and if they do so in feminine signs, the person becomes frankhearted, courageous and god-fearing. This is for Sthana Bala.

Now the reader is taken to Digbala or directional strength.

Planets with Digbala, take the person to their directions and let him clothes, conveyances, ornaments, and happiness.

Planets with Chestabala give a man some territory or land, some respect, some money and some education. This means that they give in small quantities these beneficial results and probably not in their completeness.

Benefic in Vakra are powerful and give territories. If malefics are in Vakra they give vain travelling and useless trouble.

Vaktra as planet gives good health, happiness through friends and general prosperity, and lands without enmies.

Now he gives the results of time influence of Kalabala.

Planets with nocturnal and diurnal powers, give elephants, courage, lands, destruction to enemies and wealth.

The lord of the year, of the month, of the day and of the hora give good results in double proportion respectively. This means that the lord of the month gives double of the good which the year-lord gives. The lord of the day gives double of what the lord of the month gives and the hora lord gives double of the lord of the day. Planets in bright and dark halves of lunar months give, destruction to enemies, precious gems, clothes, elephants, gold, females and lands, and mean reputation. Those planets whose rays are full of lustre give happiness, territory and all mental desires. If the above sources of strength are possessed by benefics they give good manners, prosperity, beauty, lustre, reputation, gratefulness, faith in God and saintly persons, clothes, gems, garlands and me. But if the malefics possessed these sources of strength, they make men miserly, fond of evil work, selfish, join evil company, quarrelsome, ignorant, cruel, and ungrateful. Powerful planets in masculine signs make men warlike, courageous, strong, friendless, cruel, stubborn. Powerful planets in feminine signs make men timid in war, quarrelsome and fond of water, flowers and clothes.

End of Chapter Two.

CHAPTER III

Swasti Janmadhaja

Stanza 1

When benefics are powerless and malefics are powerful and when important planets are in kendra, the birth must be foretold of objects which have resemblances to the nature of the Dwa-dasanams occupied by the Moon at the time; or when under similar conjunctions the birth sign is aspected by impotent planets the birth of Viyoni must be predicted

Notes
Varaha Mihira uses the term Viyon or Vayudhayon for various kinds of female sexual organs, through which births take place other than those of the human species Cows, goats, birds, reptiles, insects and plants are meant here. The author gives in this Chapter only 6 verses while one expects an able and exhaustive treatment in an important division of the terrestrial phenomena like this. In Chapter 66 he has shown clearly what is meant by power and weakness for planets, and also who are benefics, who are malefics and who are masca line, and who are impotent. At the time of birth or query, the Moon must rise in some Dwadasams. If it is a Viyoni Rasi, then alone the birth must be predicted of some other creatures than human but not when it re-resents Nara Rasis or human signs.
If the Dwadasams is Aries, occupied by the Moon at birth or question the birth of goats &c., must be determined. If it is Vrishabhas, cows, bulls, buffaloes &c. If it is Kataka, crabs &c.
If it is Shishimba, lions, tigers, cats, &c. If it is Vrishchika, serpents, reptiles and insects. If it is the second half of Dhanus, predict horses asses &c.

If it is the first half of Makara, deer &c., others, say frogs, crocodiles &c., are also born. If it is Meena, fishes &c. The cruel planets Ravi, Kups San, and Mercury and weak
Moon must be powerful, while Gana, Sakra, Poornachandra and good Bud ha must be powerless and if Saturn and Mercury (impotent planets) are in the Kendras then predict Viyon creatures. Under the above conditions if the birth is aspected by Saturn the the same result happens. These facts are fully quoted from Saravali by Bhattacharya which are given here for ready reference. "Malefics must be powerful, benefics powerless, Chandra must occupy Viyon, Bhaga, Buda and San must be in kendras, or these must aspect the rising sign, then predict viyon. If Chandra occupies Mocha or its amsa, goats &c., if Vris-habha, cows and buffaloes, if Mithuna human species, if Kataka, tortoises, crabs &c., if Simha, lions, tigers &c., if Kanya, men, if Thula human species, if Vrishchika, serpents &c., if Dhanus, asses, horses, &c., if Makara, deer peacocks, varieties of trees and grasses &c., if Kumbha human species, and if Meena, fishes and other aquatic animals must be predicted. In dogs, cattle, horses &c., the number of young ones has to be determined by the number of Dwadasams, which have passed in Lagala at the time.
Stanza 2.

If powerful malefics occupy their Navamsas, if powerless benefics occupy others Navamsas, if Lagna is Viyoni then Viyoni creatures must be predicted.

Notes.

The species must here also be predicted, of those creatures which are represented by the Dwadasamsa occupied by Chandra.

Stanza 3.

Aries represents head, Taurus face and neck, Gemini front legs, Cancer back, Leo chest, Virgo two sides, Libra belly, Scorpio anus, Sagittarius hind legs, Capricornus sexual organ and testicles, Aquarius the buttocks and upper legs, and Pisces tail.

Notes.

The author uses chatuspadpa or quadruped in the verse, but the learned commentator and others say that it is used as a general sense and includes birds and reptiles. If birds are taken then they have no front and hind legs. Wings are meant when the term front legs is used and legs to be taken when hind legs are meant. In Ch. I. verse 4, the author has given the various organs of Kalaparsha, with a view to enable the student to find out the proper development or deformity or non-growth of human organs by the directions he has given there, but here he enables the student to find out the growth etc., of the various animal organs.

Stanza 4.

The color must be predicted by the birth sign, its amsha, by planets in it or by their aspects. The intensity of the color by the powerful conjunctions or aspected of the many planets. By the planets in the 7th the line or spots on the buttocks or back must be identified.

Notes.

The planets, as well as the risings, have already been given different colors in Chapter II. The color of the animal or reptile must be that which is aspected to the birth sign or the Navamsa rising in it or by the conjunction or aspected of planets there. If there are more planets than one in the birth the most powerful of them will impart his color, while others give traces of their lines. The same with reference to their aspects. If the Navamsa is that which rises in a Lagna, whose lord conjunction or aspects it, then that color must be prominent in the creature. The various organs of these creatures have been sketched in Stanza 3 and the colors of these organs will be adjusted according to the colors of the planets occupying these signs which govern them. Sarvatli says that while planets cause their colors in the different organs of the creatures they conjoin or aspect, the brightness of the color will depend upon their occupation of their own houses or Navamsas. But when they are in other houses the colors are those but greatly modified by the strength or weakness of the planets. Jupiter gives yellow color, Moon white, Venus variegated color, Sun and Mars red, Saturn dark and Mercury a mixture of colors.

Stanza 5

If birth is Paksha Drakkana, if Saturn joins or aspects it, the birth of birds must be predicted. If this Drakkana is joined or aspected by Moon then waterbirds must be predicted.

If the Navamsa is movable, if a powerful planet occupies it, and if Saturn conjuncts or aspects it, then the birth of birds must be predicted. If Moon is there or aspects it, then predict the birth of waterbirds. If the Navamsa falls in Mercurial signs with Saturn in conjunction or aspecting, then ordinary birds, but if Moon joins or aspects it, aquatic birds must be predicted.

Notes

Each sign is divided into 3 equal divisions called Drakkana. Thus we have 36 Drakkana. These are treated elaborately in Ch. XXVII of this work and they are to serve a number of useful purposes which will be explained later on. The 1st Drakkana of Simha, the 2nd of Mithuna, the 2nd of Thula, and the 1st of Kumbha are called Vilaga or bird Drakkana. If one of these Drakkana rise at the time, conjuncted or aspected by Saturn or Moon, the birth of birds and aquatic birds must be predicted. The Mercurial signs are Gemini and Virgo. Several combinations are given here and the students must carefully watch them. Land birds are different from water birds and this is shown distinctly by the influences of Saturn and Moon. The last is a watery globe lit up by the rays of the sun. Saravali supports this theory entirely.

Stanza 6

When birth sign Moon, Jupiter and the Sun, are powerless; the birth of trees must be predicted. The nature of the plants, (land or aquatic) must be identified by the rising Navamsa and the number of the trees by the number of the Navamsa. The lord of the Navamsa has passed from his rising asan in the Lagna.

Notes

The watery signs are Cancer, Meena and the latter half of Makara. When these signs rise with watery Navamsas then aquatic trees must be determined; otherwise ordinary trees. Or this may also refer to the trees growing in watery places as opposed to trees growing in drylands. Bhishma suggests that the number of the anmas passed by the Navamsa lord may be multiplied as in the case of Ayurveda (longevity see, St 2 Ch VII).

Stanza 7

The Sun produces internally strong trees. Saturn makes only trees. Moon makes milky trees. Mars produces plants, Mercury and Jupiter produce fruitless and fruitful trees respectively. Venus makes flowery trees, the Moon makes bright plants, Mars makes bitter plants.

Notes.

From the previous Stanza the reader learns the nature of the tree, and from this he can identify the class to which the tree belongs and the characteristics it possesses. Jupiter makes trees, which bear fruit while Mercury produces them without fruit. When the Sun happens to be the lord of the amsa, then trees which have heartwood or which are strong inside are produced by his influence. Saturn produces plants like aloes etc., which are not pleasing to sight or mind. Moon gives juicy plants like sugarcane, and pellalferns. There are some plants which give only flowers but give no fruits and these are under the influence of Mercury. Venus gives rise to flowery trees like Chapmara, Jassamino etc.

Stanza 8.

If a benefic occupies a bad sign, then a good tree grows in a bad place, if otherwise it is reversed. The number of trees is determined by the amsas the lord has passed from his.

Notes.

There are good and bad trees and also good and bad localities. This verse enables the astrologer to say whether, a beautiful tree grows in a dirty place or a dirty tree grows in a grand place. Take the rising Navamsa in Cancer. The lord of it is Moon. Suppose he occupies Meena. He will be in the 9th amsa between the rising amsa and the place occupied by its lord. If we take Moon as in exaltation then this intervening number may be multiplied by three and if Jupiter occupies Cancer it may still be increased. The astrologer has been given some principles for guidance. He must possess capacity to examine, the time, nature, circumstances, and the place and then ray what the trees are and what their numbers may be.

End of Chapter Three.

CHAPTER IV.

Nishaka.

Stanza 1.

Mars & Moon are the cause for monthly menses. When Moon is in Anupachaya Rasis the menses for conception occurs. When the reverse is the case, and the masculine benefits aspect, the woman gets sexual union with man.

Notes.

This is an important Chapter. Conception and the previous stages preparatory for this event are here described. Nishaka means to ask well; that is have nuptials needed for conception and child-bearing. Mars represents blood and Moon water. These two planets in certain conjunctions and prations cause menses and their regular or irregular appearances. The health of the woman, and thus the health of the community, depends upon the suspicious planetary influences exerted during the act of sexual union. Every male or female must come through a female, and therefore woman occupies the highest rank in the order of creative agencies. Upachayas are 3rd, 6th, 10th and 11th houses, and the rest viz. 1st, 2nd 4th, 5th 7th 8th 9th and 12th are unupachayas or not upachayas. When the Moon occupies these non-upachaya signs the menses appear. When Moon occupies the unupachaya from the birth sign of a woman aspected by Mars, menses appear, which facilitate conception. This must not be predicted in the case of young girls or old women, women suffering from diseases and barren women. Badarayana (Vyasa) is clear on this point and says that only such menses must be predicted in the case of child bearing. Women Saravati explains that Moon causes water and blood is formed of water. Mars represents fire and fire is developed by bile or heat. Such blood influenced by the bile causes menses. Such menses when well formed, give occasion for the development of the seed in the ovary. But when Moon is in unachaya, there may be menses each month although Mars may ascept his but there will be no conception or menses which facilitates conception. After finding out each menstrual times, the astrologer must then consider the combinations which give the woman sexual union with man. Bhatotpala explains by the term reverse used in the Stanza as the combination affecting men who are to couple with the women. When the Moon is in upachaya houses from the birth sign of a man aspected by the masculine benefic Jupiter, the woman has connection with him. Badarayana clearly refers to men. But Saravati says that the Moon in the upachaya of a man’s horoscope aspected by Jupiter or Moon’s friends, causes union with a female and this is certain if Venus aspects him.

Mantha says, that if woman after bathing on the 4th day, has the Moon in the upachaya aspected by powerful Jupiter, she will have connection with her husband, if the Sun aspects such Moon she will have sexual union with a royal personage. If Mars aspects she will have a lover’s embrace, if Mercury aspects she will have a fickle minded man. If Venus aspects Moon she will have a handsome person. If Saturn aspects she will have a servant to join her. And if there are many evil planetary aspects she will behave like a prostitute. The words used in Sanskrit are difficult to translate. The combinations may be meant for a man or a woman. If a woman should have an evil combination to commit adultery, so must also have the man to do that offence. Bada-rayana clearly refers to males' horoscopes. Saravali refers to apachayas and uses 'they.' This may refer to male or female. Even Mani-tha escapes in a quibbling fashion from this difficulty. Since a great Mahamahi like Vyasa is quoted by Bhatotpala, I have to interpret it as referring to males. The woman after bathing on the 4th day of such months wants some man to couple with her. Who will be such a man is determined by the male's horoscopic conjunctions at the time.

Stanza 2.

The sexual union resembles the nature of the Ashha Rasi. If malefics conjoin or aspect the 7th, union will be consummated under quarrelling; if benefics join or aspect the 7th, the sexual union will be happy.

Notes.

_Ashha_ means the 7th house from birth or query and donates setting.

The process or act of sexual union resembles the nature of the 7th house, from the sign rising at that time of union or query.

If the 7th is a quadruped sign, then the coition will resemble beasts, but if it is human, then it will be natural to mankind. If it represents reptiles then sexual union will resemble their process. Man and woman may join in sexual union, but if evil planets occupy or aspect the 7th, then they will unite and do the work in quarreling mood. When good and evil planets occupy, the union will be under half quarrelling and pleasure mixed up. But when benefics aspect or join the 7th, the union takes place under very pleasant circumstances. Saravali supports this view and refers to a chapter in Vatsayana called Suryaprayagikam.

Vatsayana is a great Rishi who has written many works, not the least important among them are his _Kama Sutras_ or the full treatises on sexual union. This commonly goes under the name of _Kokkocari._ The art of love making, of sexual union and of remedies to be applied in those processes are all admirably stated by him and show great skill in Medicine, Chemistry, Physiology and Psychology.

Stanza 3.

If _Rasi, Chandra, Sukra_ and _Kuja_ occupy their own Navamees, if _Guru_ is found in _Lagna_ or Thrikona, conception takes place. If this combination is present in impotent cases it will be useless as moonlight is to a blindman.

Notes.

This combination must be present either at the time of sexual union or at the rising sign of the query. Thrikona means 5th or 8th houses from the rising sign. _Rasi, Chandra, Sukra_ and _Kuja_ may be in any signs in the union Lagna or Prasna Lagna but they must be in their own Navamsa. If even all these planets are not in their Navamsas, if the Sun and Venus are in the upachayas of the male and have their own umasa, then conception takes place. If in the female's horoscope, Moon and Mars occupy upachayas and join their own Navamsa conception takes place. These ideas are quoted by the commentator from Laghu Jataka by Varaha Mihira.

Stanza 4.

If Kuja and Arkaaja occupy the seventh from Ravi and Chandra, they make the man and the woman sickly respectively. If they occupy the 12th and the 2nd from Ravi and Chandra the man and woman will meet with Mrityu respectively. If Kuja and Arkaaja join Ravi and Chandra, and has one of their aspects, death may be foretold for the man and woman respectively.

Notes.

If Kuja (Mars) occupies the 7th from Ravi (Sun) then sickness happens to the man. If Arkaaja (Sun's son) Saturn occupies the 7th from the Moon the woman gets sick.

If the Sun has Mars and Saturn in the 12th and the 2nd houses respectively the person dies in the month governed by that planet who is the stronger of the two. If Mars and Saturn occupy the 12th and 2nd from the Moon, death happens to the woman. If the Sun joins Mars and has the aspect of Saturn or vice-versa the man dies, while the same conjunction and aspect with the Moon sends the woman to the grave. The lords of the months after conception are named in verse 16th of this Chapter as also elaborate quotations from eminent astrologers by Bhatotpala.

Stanza 5.

During the day the Sun stands for father and Venus for mother; during the night Saturn and Moon. Paternal uncles and maternal aunts are to be judged in the reverse order, and if they are in odd and even signs respectively they become beneficial to the parties concerned.

Notes.

I am afraid the brevity of sanskrit expression throws the translator on his head and makes him reel back for putting the ideas so finely in English which presents poor constructive capacity for expressing grand ideas. For those who are born during the day Saturn governs the paternal uncles and the Moon indicates the maternal uncles. Persons born during the night have Ravi to govern the paternal uncles and Venus the maternal aunts. For those who are born during the day, if the Sun occupies odd signs, he gives prosperity to father and if he is so situated in the night, he gives good to paternal uncles If Venus occupies even signs for a person born during the day he gives good to mother, and during the night he gives prosperity to maternal aunts.
If Saturn occupies odd signs during the night (i.e. for one who is born in the night) he gives good to father and during the day to paternal nucleus.
If Moon occupies even signs during the night he favours the mother, and during the day maternal aunts. If, in the above conjunctions of planets, they are found in the reverse order then they indicate evil to the persons named.

Stanza 6

If malefics are approaching the rising sign without beneficial aspects the woman dies. If Saturn occupies the rising sign aspected by Mars or weak Moon she dies.

Notes

The rising sign here refers either to the time of conception of the woman, or to the time of query put to the astrologer with a view to know the results of such conception. About the desire of the planets to go to the rising sign, some say that malefics in the 2nd house from it have the desire of going back to the house which is close to them.

Bhottotpala rightly condemns this strained meaning and says that planets in the 10th house have a desire to go to the rising sign which is their next destination and the verse therefore means that when evil planets are in the 12th without beneficial aspects to the rising sign, the woman dies.

Gargi clearly refers to the 12th house with malefics.

Stanza 7

If the rising sign and Moon are betwixt two evil planets, unexpected by benefits jointly or separately the woman dies in pregnancy.

Notes

The rising sign may be conjoined with Moon and thus be between two evil planets or they may be separately placed between evil planets. The commentator gives clear explanations.
Take an example. If Aries rises at the time of conception, with Moon there, having Mars in the 12th and Saturn in the 2nd the woman dies in pregnancy.
But suppose Aries rises and Moon is in Virgo with Mars in Pisces and Saturn in Libra, without any planets between the rising sign and the Moon then also they may be said to be betwixt two malefics.

No. III
Conception Aries

Satin | Con | Sun
Moon | No IV
Conception Aries

Mars

observes, that even if either the rising sign or the Moon singly has this evil conjunction in the 12th and 2nd death must be predicted for the woman in pregnancy.

Stanza 8

If from the rising sign of the Moon the 4th house is joined by evil planets & Mars is in the 8th house, she suffers death. If from Lagna the 4th and 12th houses are occupied by the Sun and Mars and the Moon is weak, she suffers death as before.

Notes

There are three cases stated here: (1) The 4th house from Lagna joined by evil planets the 8th conjointed by Mars, (2) the 4th from the Moon should have evil planet and the 8th occupied by Mars and (3) the Lagna should have the 4th occupied by Mars and the 12th by the Sun with Kshana-chandra or weak Moon. In all these cases, the female dies, as before, in pregnancy.

Stanza 9

If Kanya and Ravi are in the 7th and 7th respectively, death occurs to her by weapons. The abortion takes place in that month, whose lord is powerless or afflicted.

Notes

In Stanza 10 the author gives the names of the lords of the months who govern pregnancy. Abortions or miscarriages take place in such months as these whose lords are powerless or are otherwise afflicted. Those planets are Nipādha or afflicted, who are defeated in planetary fight, conjured by Ketu or who suffer from the fall of meteors. For the Sun and the Moon they must either be eclipsed by Rahu and Ketu or be in conjunction with malefics Mars in the Lagna, and the Sun in the 7th cause death from weapons. This may be by being killed by fighting men or by thieves or by enraged relations or by falling on dangerous weapons.

Stanza 10

If benefics are in conjunction with the Lagna and Chandra, or if the 5th, 9th 2nd, 7th, 4th and 10th houses from them are occupied by benefics or if the malefics occupy 3rd and 11th houses, and aspected by the Sun she will have a safe and happy pregnancy.

Notes

The author says that both the rising sign as well as the Moon must have beneficial conjunction with the aspect of the Sun, and good planets must be found located in the 5th, 9th 2nd, 7th, 4th, and 10th houses from Lagna or Chandra to give good growth and keep the woman happy in her pregnancy. Lagna here means, the rising sign at the time of sexual union when conception takes place, as also the Lagna which rises at the time of the query on her behalf. Some writers read Guruna and say that the Lagna and Chandra must have Jupiter's aspect. The author uses Guruna i.e. the Sun's aspect. Bhatotpala quotes Saramah which clearly mentions Guruna i.e. the Sun's aspect.

It is extremely difficult to justify such readings. What the solar ray may do to the development of the fetus, as opposed to what the ray of Jupiter may do I am not in a position to explain. General principles give Jovian aspect great strength but these general laws may and must be superseded by special combinations. The real influences must have been watched by Mahashishe by Divya Drishti or divine vision and it is possible to think that in this particular instance the solar ray may be absolutely needed for the development of the fetus in the womb. Saramah supports it and I have no option of my own to choose.

Stanza 11.

If powerful Lagna, Ravi, Chandra, and Guru occupy odd signs or Navamsha, they cause masculine birth. If these occupy even signs and amasses, they produce feminine birth. If Guru and Ravi are found in odd signs, then male, if Sukra, Kuja and Chandra are in even signs, female. If these planets are in double-bodied signs aspected by Rahu there will be twins after the sex of the Navamsha sign.
Notes

This may be applied to identify the sex of the children either from the nuptial time or conception time or the question time. Here the purport seems to be, that all these must be powerful, must be in odd signs and Navamsas and then they produce male children. If all these are in even signs and even Navamsas then they give rise to female children. The double bodied signs are Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius and Pisces. He has given four items namely, Birth sign, Jupiter, the Sun and the Moon. Suppose two of them are found powerful, then the sex must be determined with reference to them. If two planets are powerful for male and two for female then the sex must be determined by the most powerful among these two sets. If Jupiter and the Sun occupy odd signs without reference to their occupation of the Amsar, and are otherwise powerful, they produce male. Similarly, if Moon, Venus, and Mars are in even signs, without reference to Amsar then they produce female. There are four common signs (Dwaṣṭaṭhāyā) of which Gemini and Sagittarius are masculine and Virgo and Pisces are feminine. If Jupiter and the Sun join masculine Navamsa, respected by Mercury, then male twins must be predicted. When Venus, Mars, and Moon occupy the feminine common signs, Virgo and Pisces respected by Mercury, then female twins must be predicted. If the first and the second set of conjunctions, both exist and have Mercurial aspect, then of the twins, one will be male and the other will be female. Bhatotpala interprets the last portion of the Slokā, as meaning the planets in the double bodied asams, and supports this view by quoting from Varahamihira’s Laghu Jātaka.

Stanza 12

If Saturn occupies odd sign from the Lagna (excepting Lagna), he causes male birth. Examine the relative strength of the various planets and predict the birth of males or females.

Notes

In the previous Stanza, odd refers to signs from Aries etc., but now odd refers to signs from the Lagna, from which they have to be counted. If Ravi and Guru are in Aries and Lagna and Chandra are in Gemini, and all these are powerful, then as per directions given above, predict the birth of a male. But if Lagna is Lagna and Saturn is in Cancer, what is the result? Taurus, is, by the general division, an even sign and so also Cancer! Where Saturn is But under this Stanza, the Lagna becomes an odd sign because we count from it, and Cancer becomes odd also because it is the third from Lagna. But suppose Saturn occupies Lagna, then it may be left out of consideration.

Stanza 13

If the Moon and the Sun respect mutually, if Saturn and Mercury
pect mutually, if Mars in an odd sign, aspects the Sun in an even sign, if Moon and Lagna are in odd, and have the aspect of Mars in even sign, if Moon is in even and Mercury in odd, and have the aspect of Mars; if Venus Lagna and Moon are posted in mars caline amsas, in all these six cases eunuchs will be born.

NOTES

The author gives here 6 sets of combinations, in each of which, the birth of eunuchs or impotent men must be predicted. Impotency varies considerably and is difficult to define. There are some who are neither male nor female in formation and they are incapable of sexual intercourse and cannot reproduce their own species. There are others who have ordinarily developed sexual organs, but rarely they feel any inclination for want of erectile capacity. Then again there are some who by abuse in the earlier stages, become thoroughly impotent, when they grow up to manhood and come by married life. Sudden joys and sorrows and sexual union with certain women, sometimes take away these virile powers in man and he becomes thoroughly impotent. But the author here clearly means Chida or Napumaksa Yogas and refers apparently to born eunuchs, or persons with defective organs for these purposes. The study of Astrology is the most sublime, and it makes provision for all kinds of human experience and existence. Sun in odd and Moon in even sign, with mutual aspects, produce a eunuch. Saturn in even and Mercury in odd sign with mutual aspects produce a eunuch. Sun in even and Mars in odd sign with mutual aspects produce similar results. The other cases are clearly stated and require no further explanation. The verse is defective as some words are not used by which the meaning becomes obscure or doubtful. Bhatotpala clears these doubts by quotations from Saravah, where the meaning is plainly expressed. If the combinations sketched in verses 11 and 12 are not present, then these combinations must be given prominence. But when they are present, they must be given preference even if combinations sketched here may also be present. Probably all these Yogas are present, the potency of the male or female may be considerably affected. Eunuchs may also be found among females. They develop the external signs of womanhood and will have a complete feminine outfit, but the sexual organs, being defective, they can neither enjoy the sexual pleasure, nor are they capable of bearing any children. A few cases are recorded in medical works, wherein individual may have, both male and female organs ordinarily developed, and it is extremely doubtful, under what planetary conjunctures, they should be placed. Astrology may contain references even to such abnormalities. Its pages must be carefully examined.

Stanza 14

If Moon and Venus are in even signs, and if Mercury, Mars, Jupiter, and Lagna are in odd signs twins are born, of whom one will be male and the other female. Lagna and Moon in even houses aspected by male planets, produce twins, as above. If powerful Buda, Kanya, Guna and Lagna are in even signs, then predict the same result. If planets and Lagna are in common Amsa, expected by Mercury in his Amsa, three children will be born, of whom two will partake of the sex of the amsa occupied by Mercury and the other of the opposite sex. If planets, Lagna and Buda are in similar Amsa, then three children of that sex will be born.

Notes.

The first two combinations are easy. The third requires a little explanation. If all the planets (except Buda) occupy common Navamsa aspected by Buda in his own Navamsa, there will be three children, whose sex has to be determined in the following manner. If Mercury is in the Amsa of Gemini and aspects all planets in Rasi-Turnas, then the birth of two males and one female should be predicted. But if Mercury occupies the Amsa of Virgo and aspects all the planets in Pisces, then two females and one male should be predicted. In the last combination, as it is stated in the verse, I cannot make any difference in meaning. But by reading the invaluable commentaries of Bhatotpala and specially his quotation from Saravali, the difference may, thus be made out. If all the planets and Lagna are in Mithuna and Dhanas, with Buda in Mithuna, then all the three children should be males. But if all the planets and Lagna are in Kanya and Meena with Buda in Kanya, then the birth of three females should be predicted. In the former half, the idea seems to me to be, that all the planets and Lagna, must be in Dhanas, with Mercurial aspect from Mithuna, to have two male and one female and in Meena with Mercurial aspect from Kanya to have two female and one male births. In the latter case all the planets and birth may be in Dhanas and Mithuna, with the aspect of Buda in the same to have three male and in Meena and Kanya with Buda in Kanya to have three female children. It may be questioned that if some planets are in Dhanas and some in Mithuna with Buda in Mithuna, then Buda from Mithuna aspects those in Dhanas, but not those which are in Mithuna as they will be in conjunction with him. He also can aspect planets in Meena from Kanya, but not the planets in Kanya itself. This question may be easily solved. Where a planet remains it ascepts all those who are with it as well as those who are in its seventh house, and in such other houses, where a planet has been given special sight. Buda has full aspect in the 7th house, and we are to understand the author here, as referring to full aspects and not to any fractional aspects.

Stanza 15

If Lagna is in Dhanas, or falls in that Amares, if all the planets are powerful, and occupy that Amares, and if they are aspected by powerful Sani and Buda, then predict many children at one birth.

Notes

The planets may be in any Rama but if they all occupy the Navamsa of Dhanas, and are powerful, and if these planets are aspected by powerful Sani and Buda, then more than three children must be predicted. Of course here, only one possible combination is given. All the planets (except Buda and Sani) must be found occupying Dhanar Navamsa, as also the sense of the Lagna, and Sani and Buda must be found in Mithuna, to produce this Yoga for many children. Bhattacharya suggests that as many as 10 children may be born at one time, provided the strength of the planets is not in any way impaired. From the quotation of the commentator, the births of more than 4 or 5 children at a time was a well-established fact, and he even suggests that as many as 10 children may be predicted at a time from a single conception. Now and then we read of the birth of as many as 5 or 6 children at a time in a woman, and there is nothing strange in such births although they are rare.

Stanza 16

Kalala, Dhana, Ankura, Asta, Chama, Angaja, Chetana, are governed by Sakra, Kupa, Guru, Ravi, Chandra, Sani and Buda respectively. The lord of Lagna, Chandra, and Ravi are rulers of the next three months respectively. The foetal growth depends upon the strength and weakness of the planets, who govern the particular month.

Kalala in Sanskrit means the united fluid of the male and the female after sexual union and the discharge of Sperm. When a male joins sexually with a female, vital essence is discharged from the male organ into the ovum of the female. At the time of discharge from the male, the female organ receives it, but it does not enter the ovum and hence proves useless. But after menstruation and at the time of fecundity, the discharged sperm from the male organ, is directly received into the ovum of the female and mixes with the discharged essence of the female. The sperm of the man is generally yellowish white, but the fluid discharged by the female, at that time of conception, will be reddish white. The male's sperm is called Sakra or Sakla (white) and that of the female is called Shonitha or blood-like fluid. As soon as they are mixed in the ovum, fecundation begins, and what is technically called pregnancy commences. Vedas openly declare that the sex of the child may be changed before delivery and before the formation of the sex organs in the foetus by certain rituals, which are full of medical and chemical significance. A ceremony called the Pusmasana is specially recommended in the 5th month of pregnancy, and if we take the trouble of examining the real purport of the incantations, (mantras) therein chanted, we will be struck by the vastness of chemical and physical knowledge the ancient Rishis possessed, about the process of conception and the gradual development of the foetus in the womb. When the union and discharge of the secretions of the male and female, if the fluid discharged by the male is greater in quantity, a male child is foretold, and if the female discharge is greater a girl's birth takes place, but when both fluids are equal in quantity, the birth of a eunuch must be predicted. Clark, one of the greatest Ayurvedic writers in India on medicine, refers to Pusmasana as the immortal art. The learned has observed, “Instructions will be laid down about those Vedic rites, by which the sex of the child (in the womb) before its manifestation may be changed observing that a woman has conceived, the medicines (with proper rites) called Pusmasana should be administered to her before the manifestation of the sex of the child in the womb”. (See P. 824 and 825 Eng. Trans. of Charaka Samhita by Aminsh Chandra Kaviratna) The translator says, that Pusmasana is performed just after the expiration of 8 months, from the date of conception. Therefore, studying these delicacies and secrets of birth, foetal development and sex, the joining couple are strictly recommended to follow, certain regulations, laid down by Dharmasastras, containing the essence of Vedic teachings with a view to give every advantage for the birth of a good and healthy male child. These ceremonies are not meaningless and ought not to be neglected. During the sexual union and the first month of conception, the whole process will be under the control of Venus and hence he is also called Sakra or one who controls sperm and vital essence. Ghana (soft, divided) is the state of this united fluid, in the second month governed by Mars when it condenses and becomes thick, and takes the form of a kidney bean. Anuraka means sprouting, or building when all the different bodily organs, will begin to show themselves during the third month governed by Jupiter. In the fourth month Asthi or bones are formed and it is governed by the Sun. In the fifth month Chharma or skin begins to gather on the body, under the control of the Moon. In the sixth month, hairs are formed (Anjana) under Saturn. During the seventh month, consciousness (Chatnatha) or knowledge begins to develop in the foetus governed by Mercury or Buda. In sanskrit Buda (knowing) is derived from Bud bidhana or consciousness. In the eighth month the foetus takes through the umbilical cord, the essence of the food consumed by the mother, and this is governed by the lord of conception time (sign). In the ninth month, udara or the desire to get out of the mother’s womb, actuates the foetus and is governed by the Moon. During the tenth month Prasara or delivery takes place and this important month is governed by the Sun. In this work, the lords of the 8th, 9th and 10 months are given, but not the state of the foetus and the development. Bhatotpala quotes his authority from the Laghojatakaka of Varaha Bhujira. There is some slight difference between Varaha Bhujira and Yavanaeswara, who says that the first month is under the control of Mars while the second is governed by Venus. Yavanaeswara is more to the point and gives greater detail as regards the foetal development. In the fourth month, bones, blood vessels, and nerves are formed. In the fifth Majja (marrow) and skin are developed. In the sixth, blood, hairs, nails and Ekrula are formed. The last term has two significations. (1) some fleshy part developed in the head and (2) some Kosha in the left side of the stomach, which has its opposite pleura in the right side of the stomach; when there is any disturbance to these two, mahadura or drupshy results and the man dies. In the ninth month the foetus feels the touches which affect its mother. In the tenth month all nerves, all blood vessels and all other necessities in the body will be fully developed, and the child will be born in complete human shape. At the time of conception, the strength and weakness of planets should be specially noted, and there will be miscarriage in that month, which is governed by an afflicted planet. The foetus suffers much during that month, which is governed by a lustreless, or contracted planet, but when the planet is strong and possesses its natural brilliancy, the development will be what is most desirable. Bhatotpala quotes some special points from Saravali, which deserve reproduction here, not only to give instruction to the readers of this work, but also to show, how deeply the ancients had grasped the minutest details of this important and all absorbing question of human reproduc-
The bad and good Karma of the Atma (Soul) during its states of previous existence, has encumbered upon it, and join the fluid at the time of conception by the decrees of Karma. The child partakes of the nature of the mental composition, which rules supreme over the parties at the time of sexual union before conception. The child partakes of the nature of Vata, Pitta, or Slesma, which is elevated in the couple at the time of sexual union. If the Sun is powerful at the time of birth, the child takes resemblance after the father, but if the Moon is powerful, then the child resembles more its mother. A few references to grand medical ideas may be made here. Suravali, which succeeded Varaha Mihira, knows the important medical and Vedic idea, that the child is greatly influenced by the mental attitude of the joining couple at the time of conception. The Karma theory is directly supported by Astronomical works. The Atma encumbered with its good and evil acts in previous births or states of existence, will be driven as if it were, by insensible energies, by the decrees of Karma, and will be attracted to such male and female and such environments, as are suitable to its orders, and the results which it has to endure, during the present state of existence. In short this, such as these, a colossal question like that of Karma, and its decrees cannot be raised and satisfactorily solved. I refer my readers to some of my own contributions, in my Astronomical Magazine Vol IX for fuller information on these vital points.

The idea of fixing a very auspicious time for the first contact of the couple in nuptials, shows the anxiety of the earlier astrological writers to afford good opportunities for the birth and breeding of healthy, well-behaved, intelligent and long lived children. The time was not confined to only for the first occasion. Even in the ordinary days, when the couple felt a desire to have sexual correspondence, they were religiously enjoined to avoid connection on all such evil lunar days and week days as were governed by malefic planets. The Lagna for sexual contact should be clean in the 8th house and good planets must aspect it or occupy other favourable positions. New Moon days, evil constellations and unsuitable times are to be scrupulously avoided. When carefully examined, these show that the sole object of the Maharishi in laying down such injunctions was to minimize the chances of producing undesirable and deformed children, and afford every possible chance for improving the physical and mental breed of the future generations.

Stanza 17.

If Janda is in Thirikona, and other planets are powerful, then the child will have two faces, four hands, and four legs. If Moon is in Taurus, and evil planets, are in Rukha Sandhies, predict a dumb child. If, in this conjunction, Moon has beneficial aspect, the child begins to speak, very late in life.

Notes.

If Bada occupies 5th and 9th with powerless planets in other houses, a double body joined in stomach will be the result. Some say that Bada must be in Moolathrikona but this view is directly negativised, by the authoritative quotation from Maharishi Gargi. If Chandra is in Vrishabha and evil planets occupy the last Navamsas of Kataka, Vrishchika and Meena, then a dumb child is produced, but when Chandra is subjected to beneficial aspects, the child may begin to speak after some years. The planets may be in one or two or three last Navamsas of the signs stated above. Gargi says, that if the two sets of planets, evil and good, aspect Moon and if benefics are stronger than malefics, the speech comes after a long time, but if malefics are stronger than benefics, the child becomes dumb. Rukha Sandhies are the last Navamsas of Kataka, Vrishchika and Meena, and this is clearly stated so by Gargi.

Stanza 18.

If Sani and Kuja occupy Bada’s houses or Navamsas, the child will be born with teeth. If Kataka is Lagna with Chandra in it, having the aspects of Sani and Kuja, the child will be dwarf. If Meena becomes Lagna aspected by Sani, Chandra and Kuja, the child becomes a cripple. If the Rasi sandhies are aspected by malefics & the Moon, the child will be deaf.

In all these cases there must be no beneficial aspects.

Notes.

There are some children who are born defective or with abnormal developments. Children generally get their teeth after some months. But here is a combination which brings in a child with teeth already present at the time of birth. Bada’s Hasis or Amsas are Mithuna and Kanya. If these are occupied by Sani and Kuja, then this abnormal development occurs. Some are of opinion that both Sani and Kuja must be in Mithuna as well as in that Navamsa or in Kanya and also in that Navamsa. The full aspects of the benefics negative these results while partial beneficial aspects may produce traces of such defects or deformities. When there are no beneficial aspects these results will be fully realised. Geographical researches have established that there are some nations of dwarfs the tallest of whom will be about 18 inches in height while the shortest under a foot. In Central Africa, such a nation has been really discovered. Their women, although not higher than 16 inches, are graceful, handsome, attractive and well proportioned and they are intelligent and advanced fairly in the arts of civilised life.

Stanza 19.

If the last Navamsa of Makara is Lagna aspected by Sani, Chandra and Ravi then a dwarf is born. If malefics occupy the fifth, 9th and last Drakshanam houses, feeble and headless child respectively must be predicted.
loss to the left eye, the Sun there cause loss to the right eye Beneficial aspects give some relief in these combinations

Notes
Ravi and Chandra must be in Sim-ha, the birth sign, having the evil aspects of Sun and Kaja to produce blindness Blininess is of many sorts
A child may be born perfectly blind or it may have dim sight, and then lose it later on or it may have good sight early in life, and lose it by accident, smallpox or other disease. Beneficial aspects to Lagna, Chandra and Ravi there, will greatly modify this blindness and a child will be born with Budhadaksha or some defective vision in the sight. If the Sun is in Leo, as birth and has aspects of Mars and Saturn, the child will have the right eye blind. If Moon is there and has these evil aspects, the left eye will become blind. If one of the two planets, the Sun or the Moon, is in birth which is Leo, then the blindness will be partial. In these and the previous recorded combinations care should be taken to gauge the intensity of the misfortune by the strength of the evil planets and the absence of the beneficial influences. When evil influences are attributed to aspects of male-fics their conjunctions will, of course intensify the evil, although this has not been hinted at by the diligent commentator. Suppose Simha is the Lagna and Ravi Chandra, Kaja and Sun are also there without any benefical aspects or conjunctions? What would be the result? I believe that the blindness will be there, though no mention of this is made in the Commentaries. Although this is my view it is possible to imagine that results predicted from aspects of planets may not be produced by their conjunctions and those results which they give in conjunction may not be attributed to their aspects. These are difficult astrological points whose solution can only be offered when we have any authority in the ancient works. Those who base certain inferences on their personal experiences will be doing very little credit by placing too much confidence on such knowledge and twisting the plain texts of ancient astrological literature to support their limited experience and pride.

Stanza 21
The birth of a child takes place in the sign occupied by the Moon, which is represented by that number, in which Svadisthana, the Moon is fixed at the time. The day, or the night and the ghatis of the birth time must be known by the number of the ghatis at the time of the question and the nature of the sign whether diurnal or nocturnal.

Notes.
The wording in the original sanskrit is simply author subjects his verse to so many omissions and understandings that in a poorly constructed language like the English it is almost impossible to reproduce the brevity of expression stated in the original Sanskrit. I shall however explain the verse in clear and simple language by examples. It is desired to know when a child will be born after conception, either by reference to that event or to a query or to an actual birth. The directions given here explain the time and the division of the day or the night. The Moon occupies some sign or Rasi at the time of conception, query or birth. Find which Dwadasamsa Moon occupies and then count from there by that number of the Dwadasamsa and find out what sign it will be. The birth takes place, in the tenth month under normal conditions, when that sign is occupied by the Moon. Take Aries as the Rasi for conception with the Moon in the 9th house Sagittarius and in its tenth Dwadasamsa. The tenth Dwadasamsa in Sagittarius will be Virgo or Kanya. The birth takes place in the tenth month of conception when the Moon occupies the tenth from Virgo i.e. Gemini. The commentator wisely restricts the time of birth to be predicted to the tenth month, as students in their ignorance of higher knowledge of Astrology, may predict the birth in any of the other months. As Chandra moves in a Rasi in 24th days he will be found in each of the Rasis every month. Take another example as the question is very important. Suppose the conception takes place in Libra when the Moon is in Gemini in its fifth Dwadasamsa. The fifth Dwadasamsa of Gemini is the fifth house from it, namely Libra. The birth of the child must be predicted in the 10th month, when the Moon moves in Aquarius which is the fifth from Libra, the Dwadasamsa occupied by the Moon at the time of conception. There is some difference here between Saravali and Varahasinha. And Bhagatpala wisely quotes Bhagavan Gargi in the explanation above offered and considers that as the best interpretation. Saravali says thus ‘The Moon is found in some Dwadasamsa at conception time. Take the number of the Dwadasamsa and count it from the first sign Aries, and say that the child will be born in the 10th month on that day when the Moon occupies that sign.’ This seems to make some difference. Take the above example. The Moon was found in the 5th Dwadasamsa of Gemini, the birth happens at that time in the 10th month, when the Moon moves in Leo, for that is the 5th sign counted from Aries the number to the Dwadasamsa occupied by the Moon at the conception time. Bhagatpala here suggests a way to find out the constellation, about which the and is in the 4th padam. He is just in half of the 2nd padam of Aridra or the birth of the child takes place when Aridra has passed 22 ½ ghatis on that particular day. If the conception or query sign is nocturnal the time of birth will be night, if it is diurnal, it will be day and the ghati will be the time of the ghatis passed over by the rising sign above referred to. But this point will also be easily found by the measure of the constellation explained by Bhatotpala. In the first example given above, the lagna is Mesha, and it is a nocturnal sign. (See St. 10 Ch. 1) Suppose the month was the 1st of Kanya. The first degree of Meena sees the sunset on that day. Suppose 2 ghatis of Mesha elapsed before the rise of conception time. Then we have four of Meena and two of Mesha = 6 ghatis. The birth will take place at 6 ghatis after sunset on that day when the Moon is moving in Kanya during the tenth month of conception. Bhatotpala omits one question. The author uses Tapaka in the verse and this is explained by the commentator as referring to (1) prenakala (question time). The above explanation will be constant if the data is conception time for then we may wait for the tenth month and find out the movement of the Moon and fix the birth, etc. But how to regulate the 10th month with reference to question time. Suppose the woman is full nine months pregnant and the question, when she would deliver is put to the astrologer without giving him any reference to the time of sexual union or conception. How should the astrologer proceed? This vital question wants solution. In st. 2 of this Ch Varaha Mihira explains combinations at query to find out the nature of the sexual union. The astrologer must proceed as follows. Either find out the fact of conception and its proper development (1) by the combinations of planets at the time of query and predict from that knowledge the birth of the child in the tenth month when the Moon is moving in a particular sign or (2) by the nature of the conjunctions of the planets at the time of question in the light thrown in Ch 11 st 14. This enables the astrologer, to say when the child will be born. Maitriya says clearly to this effect—"the happening of a result has to be fixed with reference to such time as is indicated by the lord of Navamsa rising in the question time, multiplied by that number which the Navamsa has moved in that sign." Take an example: Suppose Leo is the sign and more correctly paksha must be multiplied by 7, and it gives us 3½ months. The astrologer may say that the child will be born after 3½ months.

Stanza 32

If Makra or Kumbha Navamsa rises at the time of conception, as expected by Sani the child will be born after 3 years. If the Katakamsa rises at the time of conception, as expected by Chandra, then the birth occurs after 12 years of pregnancy. The details in this chapter must be carefully understood and applied with sense and judgment.

Notes

Pregnancy is supposed to last generally for 9 months after conception and then usually in the 10th month the child is born. But there are certain cases (papajartham) in which pregnancy is supposed to last for 3 years, and even for 12 long years. These are of course special and peculiar cases which must have happened in the world to make the astrological adepts to record these combinations. The elephants have the same power as men but their pregnancy lasts for 3 years. A caution is given to students here both by the author as well as by his illustrious commentator.
and the circumstances before he ventures into the fields of future predictions. In fact a high intellectual development, practice in yoga and excellent mathematical and predictive skill must be combined in a man to make him a successful astrologer. Blind fools who study only a few stanzas and whose general education is most ordinary can never hope to become successful astrologers whose predictions people can place implicit confidence. Refer to my article "Who should be Astrologers" in the Astrological Magazine, Vol. IX, Bhatotpala thus summarizes his advice. Such events as defects in organs, parents, uncles and aunts must be predicted from birth combination. That which is inconsistent must not be predicted. For instance, a miscarriage ought not to be predicted in a case where a child is born and so forth. The three methods of gaging the influence of time should be carefully compared and such of the results which are reasonable be predicted. The three methods are birth time, conception time, and question time.

End of Chapter IV.

BHATOTPALA.

(His date and age)

Mr. S. Narayan Ayangar, Sanskrit Pandit of the Office of the Astrological Magazine, Madras, thus writes:

On this illustrious commentator of Varahamihira's works "He calls himself as Utpula, in his commentaries on Varahamihira's Brihat Samhita, and as Bhatotpala in his Pracna work entitled Pracna Gnyana. It is not clear to what country he belonged, but it seems certain that he belonged to North India. He has written commentaries on all the works of Varahamihira excepting his Pancha Siddhanta and also for Shat Panchacat by Varahamihira's son Prithyakassana. He seems to have composed an original work on Pracna (query) called Pracna Gnyana and also completed the missing or unfinished portions of Sarawali. There is a stanza which runs to this effect and which is well known to the learned in astrology. It says The work Sarawali which was largely used by the Chinese and which remained unfinished for one hundred years, was taken up by Bhatotpala and completed. Some strong colors are given to this passage by Bhatotpala quoting largely from Sarawali in support of his interpretations of the texts in Brihat Jataka. It is difficult to say that Bhatotpala did not write commentaries on the Pancasha Siddhanta of Varahamihira. Bhatotpala has also written commentaries on Kizula Khadya of Brahman Gupta one of the famous earlier astrological writers. The following are the works of Varahamihira. tries, Varaha Mihira’s works have been popularised by these commentaries, and placed within the reach of ordinary intellects.

CHAPTER V.

JANMA KALA LAXSHANA
(Peculiarities of Birth)

Stanza 1.

If birth sign is unexpected by Moon father will be absent at the birth. If Sun occupies a movable sign (pathitha) from the 10th the father will be away in a foreign country at the birth of the child.

Notes.

Pathitha (fallen) is explained by Bhavotpala as a fall for the Sun, on either side of the 10th house up to two houses i.e., when the Sun is in the 11th or 12th he will be fallen from the 10th in front and when he is in the 9th and 6th he will be fallen in the rear. He must occupy one of these which should be a movable sign to keep the father away in a foreign country. If the Sun is in a fixed sign the father will be in the country but absent from home and if he is in a common sign the father will be on his return from a foreign place. If birth is not expected by Moon the child will be born when the father is away. Saura-wali runs to the same tune.

Stanza 2.

If Saturn occupies lagna or if Mars is in the 7th or if the Moon is between Mercury and Venus the father will be absent at the birth of the child.

Notes.

Three combinations are given here to show the absence of the father at the time of birth. He may be in his own country or in a foreign country or may be on his way back. Venus and Mercury may be on both sides of the Moon, in the same sign, or they may be in the next house in either side of the Moon, i.e., 2nd or 12th house. Venus and Mercury follow close upon the movements of the Sun and have constant combusts and risings and setings. This is specially so with Mercury. Therefore this conjunction can only take place on Amavasya or a day or two on either side of it. Between the Moon and Venus and Mercury on either side there must be no other planet.

Stanza 3.

If the Moon occupies Mars’s Drakkanas and benefics are in the 2nd and the 11th houses predict a serpent’s birth. If an evil sign falls in Kaja’s Drakkanas and has benefics in the 2nd and the 11th the child will be bound by a serpent-like bandage.

Notes.

The Drakkanas of Mars are the first of Aries, the 2nd of Cancer, the 3rd of Leo, the first of Scorpion, the 2nd of Sagittarius and the 3rd of Pisces. In the 2nd half, the evil sign referred to which possesses a Kaja Drakkanas will be (1) Aries (2) Leo and 3rd Scorpion.
Then all the benefics must occupy 2nd and 11th houses. Gargi supports this view. It strikes me as most strange that while Chandra occupies a Kaja Draksha and has benefics in the 2nd and 11th houses, he produces a serpent while an evil sign rising in Kaja Draksha with similar benefic combinations produces a child bound with a serpantike appendage.

The intensity of evil appears to me to be greater in the 2nd than in the first set of combination. But the text is plain and it is supported by Maharishi Gargi and also by Saravali.

Stanza 4

If the Sun occupies a quadruped sign, if other powerful planets occupy common signs, twins will be born covered with a common hood.

Notes

The quadruped signs are Mesha, Vrishabha, Simha, the 2nd half of Dhanu and the first half of Makara. The twins will be enclosed in one common bag.

Stanza 5

If Mesha, Simha or Vrishabha falls asagna, occupied by Sani or Kaja the child will be born with a cowl or cord in that organ which is represented by the rising Navamsa.

Notes

In Chapter 1st Stanza 4 the different organs of Kalaparnaha have been stated. The child born will have a cord or serpantike appendage in that organ which is represented by the Navamsa rising at the time of birth. For instance take Aries as the birth and the Navamsa of Leo rises at the time. Leo represents stomach or belly of Kalaparnaha and the child will have Nala (Nadi) about the belly.

Stanza 6

If Jupiter does not aspect birth and Moon or if he does not aspect the Sun, in conjunction with the Moon, if Moon with a malefic combines with the Sun then say certainly the child is born to another person or to adultery.

Notes

This is a very important stanza where the question of the mother's character arises and the students should not hastily run away with misinterpretations and thus throw blame upon the character of innocent women. Every astrologer must in the first place confine himself to predict such events as are particularly referred to by the consulter. Even if, from stupidity or neglect the native puts a senseless or ungentle question the astrologer must be careful and must decline to answer it in case it is likely to disturb the harmony of the person's life or that of his family or relations. Suppose a man in his youthful vagary and inexperience asks an astrologer whether his wife is adulterous. The astrologer should decline to answer such a silly question and give him better advice. Similarly many horoscope show want of chastity on the part of their mothers, wives or sisters. Although the astrologer first notices this point he must be reticent on this head and omit the point altogether unless he has very grave necessity to express his views upon such delicate question as the chastity of females or the morality of males. The world is a world of great diversities of tastes and morals and prostitution, whether public or private, is so strongly rooted in the nature of human beings that it is found in all countries, in all nations, during all times and in all sects and families where the number of members assures a respectable figure. "It is a mere absurdity to assert," says Dr. W. Sanger, "that prostitution can ever be eradicated. Strenuous and well directed efforts for this purpose have been made at different times. The whole power of the Church (religious and political) has been in vain directed against it. Nature defied the mandates of the clergy and the threatened punishment of an afterlife were futile to deter men from seeking and women from granting sinful pleasures in this world. Monarchs, victorious in the field and unsurpassed in the council chamber have bent all their energies of will and brought all the aids of power to crush it, but before these the vice has not quailed. The guilty women have been banished, scourged, brand- ed, executed, their partners have been subjected to the same punishments, held up to public opinions as immoral, deabeled of their civil rights, have seen their offences visited upon their families, have been led to the stake, the gibbet and the block, and still prostitution exists. The teachings of morality and virtue have been powerless here. In some cases they restrain individuals, upon the aggregate they are inoperative. The researches of sciences have been unheeded. They have traced the physical results of vice and have foreshadowed its course. They have demonstrated that the suffering parents of their generation will beheath to their posterity a heritage of the ruined powers that the malady which the illicit pleasure communicates, is destructive to the hopes of man, that the human frame is perceptibly and regularly depreciating by the operation of this poison and have shown that even the desire for health and longevity, one of the most powerful motives that ever influences a human being, has been of no avail to stem the torrent (See pp. 19 and 20. The History of Prostitution by William W. Sanger, M. D. New York 1859 A.D.

Therefore many horoscopes give room for such combinations as would show adultery on the part of men and women and the astrologer has no option, but to be silent on this point. Further on, the character of the wife comes in, and the astrologer will be in a nice funk, when he is asked by a gentleman whose children all are born to adultery and who wishes to know, by the examination of his children's horoscope when the father would die. In some horoscopes under our observation, the paramour of the woman dies early if the combination is unfavourable to the progenator while her so-called husband puts the question as regards the longevity of himself. A merchant's wife gave birth to a son. The planets indicated immediate death to the father. His wife had connection with a washerman and the child was the result of this illicit intercourse. The Astrologer consulted told the man that the father would be drowned in a day or two. The time passed and he learnt that his washerman had died by drowning as predicted and inferred that, in that particular instance, he was not the father and it was good for him that he was not so, as death would have snatched him away. Jupiter's aspect of the lagna or Moon or his aspect of the Sun and Moon combined is favourable and no imputation should be made. Even if the birth or Moon occupies beneficial mean or divisions the result is favourable and the mother will be chast. The Sun and the Moon join on the amavasya day (New Moon) and if they have malefic associations or aspects without beneficial conjunctions or aspects there will be a strong presumption of guilt on the part of the mother.

Stanza 7.

If malefics occupy the signs of cruel planets and are in the 7th, 9th or 5th from the Sun, the father will be imprisoned when the child is born. The sign occupied by the Sun determines the locality of his bondage.

Notes

Malefics are Mars and Saturn and the signs of the cruel planets are Aries, Leo, Scorpio, Capricornus, Aquarius and Cancer. When moon is weak, in the dark half of the month and Virgo and Gemini, when Mercury is in evil conjunction, if the Sun occupies a movable sign, the father suffers from imprisonment in a foreign land, if in a fixed sign in his own country and if in a common sign on his way home.

Stanza 8

If full Moon is in Cancer, if Mercury is in lagna and benefics in the 4th the delivery takes place in a boat. If birth is watery with Moon in the 7th the same result happens.

Notes.

Some read Shubhakshara as benefic and think that as the plural is used three or more benefics must be understood. The text reads Shubhakshara in the singular and Bhutotaka interprets this as Jupiter in the 4th. Since shubhabhamsa means benefic it may also refer to Venus. But when Mercury occupies birth Venus cannot be placed in the 4th from it. When Moon is full and in Cancer then necessarily the Sun must be in the 7th from it namely Capricorn. If Mercury is in Lagna and three benefics are in the 4th then we must take birth as Aries with Mercury in it and the three benefics as in Cancer namely full Moon, Venus and Jupiter. This view of some Astrologers is quite untenable as when the Sun is in Capricornus, Mercury can never be in Aries and much less could Venus be in the 7th from him. Bhoutotpala therefore rightly renders the verse by taking the text as shabday (singular) and referring it to only Jupiter. But some say that in ancient times such combinations may have occurred and the authors who recorded such facts—now impossible—may have been perfectly true. Later on some combinations of such stamps are also recorded by the learned Varaha Mishra and he there says that although they may look now as absurd they may not have been so in the earlier times and the recorded combinations of the Maharishta cannot be rejected as untrue. It is very difficult to make remarks on such events as in the numberless revolutions of the planets and the earth and the countless changes the universal things undergo during these cyclical times and produce such incongruities and contradictions that nobody has any right to condemn them as impossible. What is absurd now may have been perfectly consistent in times remote and what was absurd then may now become perfectly true and practicable. Those who affirm dogmatistically that such and such events could not have happened in the world at any time, simply expose the shallowness of their brutes and the weak comprehension they have on matter terrestrial and celestial. They are absurd at one time, but possible at another age. Here combinations are given to denote the delivery of the child in ships or boats on watery surfaces. Watery signs are Cancer, the second half of Capricornus and Pisces.

STANZA 9

If birth falls in watery sign as also Moon the delivery will be close to water. If Lagna (a watery sign) has full Moon's aspect the same result happens. If, for each Lagna the Moon, is there or in 5th or 10th then similar result happens.

NOTES

This refers to births close to watery surfaces like lakes, seas, large tanks or rivers. If watery sign is birth possessing full Moon’s aspect delivery occurs near watery surfaces. Weak Moon’s aspect may not have this effect. If birth is watery and the Moon occupies it or the 5th or the 10th from it delivery occurs near water.
Stanza 10.
If Saturn occupies the 12th, and a malefic aspect the Moon the woman delivers the child when in bondage or jail. If Saturn is in Scorpio or Cancer, one of which is the birth aspected by the Moon, the delivery takes place in a hole or hollow or pit.

Notes.
This denotes that birth and Moon must be in the same sign to have Saturn in the 12th. Malefics here may refer to Mars and the Sun. There are many women who are imprisoned and who deliver while they are in jail or they may be captured by vagabonds and kept in bondage or confinement and the delivery may take place there.

Stanza 11.
If birth is watery with Saturn in it, aspected by Mercury, the Sun and Moon the birth takes place in play grounds, temples, and uncultivated fields, respectively.

Notes.
Three combinations are sketched here. If the rising sign is watery with Saturn and it is aspected by Mercury, the delivery occurs near pools, grounds, or pleasure resorts. If similar Saturn has the Sun's aspect the birth takes place in temples or places of worship and if similar Saturn has Moon's aspect the delivery occurs in barren or uncultivated ground.

Stanza 12.
If birth with Saturn in a Nad Rasi aspected by Kala the birth happens in a graveyard, aspected by Suna and Chandra in pleasant places aspected by Guru in sacrificial places, aspected by Ravi in royal mansions couched, or temple premises, aspected by Bada in libraries, art colleges or carpenters premises.

Notes.
Nara rasis are Gemini, Virgo, Libra, the first half of Sagittarius and Aquarius. Saturn must be in birth in any one of these signs and have the aspects of planets referred to to produce the results indicated there. The birth happens in places indicated by the rising sign and its Navamsa. If it is movable the delivery occurs in traveling, if fixed it a house and if the house is the same as the Rasi at her own home. The result must be ascertained according to the strength of the sign and its Navamsa.

Notes.
For places represented by the different signs refer to at 5 Chap. I. If the birth sign and its Navamsa are movable then the delivery takes place when the woman travels in places congenial to such signs. If they both are fixed there, she delivers at places similar to their nature in her own house. If both of these are common signs then in places, congenial to those signs outside the premises of her house. If the Navamsa falls in the same sign as the Rasi (that is if it falls in its Virgottama the birth takes place in her own house even if they are movable are double bodied. The nature of the place of birth must be determined by the Lagna or its Na-vamsa according to the strength they possess. This Stanza Bhatotpala remarks will apply only when the previous planetary combinations are not found. He means that if such combinations are present then the results named in this stanza should not be predicted.

STANZA 14

If Moon is in the 9th, 5th and 7th from Saturn and Mars the child will be forsaken by its mother. If in that combination Jupiter aspects it the child lives long and prospers although forsaken by its mother.

NOTES

Here Saturn and Mars combined in any house have the Moon in the 5th, 9th or 7th houses from them to make the mother forsake her infant.
In this combination if Moon is aspects by Jupiter the forsaken babe will be taken care by others, will live long and be happy and prosperous.

STANZA 15

If Moon is in birth aspects by a malefic and has Mars in the 7th the forsaken babe will perish. If in this combination Mars and Saturn are in the 11th, the child dies, if aspects by a benefic the child gets protection by such caste man as is indicated by the benefic, if aspected by malefics the child falls to different hands and dies.

NOTES

If Moon occupying birth, has the aspect of the Sun or Saturn with Mars in the 7th the child is forsaken by the mother, and it dies. If Moon occupies birth aspected by the Sun with Saturn and Mars in the 11th the forsaken child dies. If Moon occupying the birth as above stated, has also the aspect of a benefic the forsaken child will be taken care of by such caste man as is indicated by the benefic who aspects the Moon and the child lives long and prosperously. Bhatotpala clearly declares this benefic to be Jupiter to make the child live and prosper on the strength of the combinations given by the Saravali. Other benefics are Mercury and Venus but their aspect to the Moon will not protect the life of the infant. The caste of the person who takes care of the mother forsaken child will be that which is governed or indicated by the most powerful of the aspecting planets. Here even if Jupiter is very weak and aspects the Moon the child lives and thives although it may be taken care of by a Brahman, Kshatriya, Vaisya, Sudra or Shudra. The significations conveyed by these caste divisions have already been explained by me in stanza 7 Ch. II.
Sthanaza 16

The birth takes place in the house of the father or mother according to the strength of their lords. If benefics occupy debilitated places, under trees, roads, etc. If benefics occupy Neecha and if Moon and birth are unsuspected by planets occupying one house the birth occurs in lonely places.

In st. 5 Ch. IV reference has already been fully made to the lordship of the planets about father, mother, and other relatives. If the planet representing father the Sun during the day and Saturn during the night, is stronger then the birth must be predicted in the paternal house. All the benefics must be debilitated to produce birth in open places and roadsides. The word Adi used by the author makes the meaning much wider and includes rivers, wells, tanks, gardens, and mountains where there is no covering. In the last case of birth in lonely places the benefics must be debilitated and all the other planets must be in one house and they should not aspect birth and Moon. Probably this refers to birth in wilderness and other unfrequented places where the woman may have strayed away or left alone by others. Sarawati supports this view and is quoted by Bhatotpala.

If the Moon joins Saturn's Aries or in the 4th or has the aspect of Saturn or occupies watery signs or conjunction with Saturn, the birth takes place in darkness. If there are three or more, debilitated planets birth takes place on the ground. The birth takes place similar to the Rasi which rises on a level with the equator. If malefics occupy the 4th or the 7th from the Moon or join the Moon the delivery is attended by much pain.

Notes.

Certain characteristics pertaining to the birth are given here with a view to find out the correct time of the birth and the sign which rises then. Theorems must be supported by practice while practice must also be confirmed by theory. By carefully reading this stanza the astrologer will be able to predict whether the birth occurred in darkness or on the ground and whether the head or foot of the child came first. Zodiacal signs have already been described as rising with head or tail of both and the birth of the child takes place similar to the process represented by the Rasi which rises on a level with the Earth's Equator.

(See st. 10 Chap. 1) Bhatotpala says that place where the earth and the sky appear to meet is called Harya and directs the student to watch the birth sign which rises in the horizon. Probably the English word horizon is derived from the Sanskrit word Harya. The birth takes place when the sign Aries rises in the Hary.
zon with prasta and therefore, says the learned commentator, the child comes out of the yoni (sexual organ) with first showing its middle part. In Sirshodaya the head presents itself first and the birth takes place. In Oobhaya the sides will be first visible and then the birth occurs. Saturn's mansas are Capricornus and Aquarius. The watery signs are Cancer and Pisces. Birth takes place in dark rooms or places without any light when the Moon occupies the Navamsas of Saturn or joins him or the watery signs or has Saturn's aspect. Saturn is a dark planet capable of absorbing all light and reflecting back dark rays. Three or more neecha planets deprive the woman of any bedding or clothes and at the time of delivery she lies down on the plain ground or that covered with grass. If evil planets are with the Moon or in the 4th or 7th from him the delivery is attended with great pain and suffocating for the mother. Bhatotpala quotes in this connection Saravali, Yavamavard, and Manitha. In all the above cases if the Moon has the aspect of the Sun, there will be no darkness and many lamps will be burning at the time of birth. What will the result be when the Sun is with the Moon? Manitha differs from the author about the manner of the birth. He observes that if the lord of birth or the planet in it or the lord of Navamsa is retrograde the process of birth will be reversed. He remarks that if the lord of the birth is retrograde then the child will be born the reverse of what it would do ordinarily. In ordinary delivery the child presents its head first and it is thus thrown out. But when any of the planets above named is retrograde the child comes out with feet or back first.

Stanza 18.

The quantity of oil by the Moon, the wick by the birth sign and the light by the Sun, the door by the planets in the Kendras or by the most powerful of the planets must be ascertained.

Notes.

This verse enables one to have an idea of the quantity of oil in the lamp at the time of birth. If the Moon is full then the lamp is full of oil, if it is new then there will hardly be any oil. It may be asked that as on the Amavasya day the Moon is not visible the lamps in the rooms of all those who are born on that day had no oil in them. Bhatotpala anticipates this question and observes that if the Moon is in the beginning of the Rasi then the quantity will be full. When he is in the last degree, of it there will hardly be any oil. If the birth takes place in the beginning of the Rasi then the wick was just lighted. If half the Rasi has advanced then half of the wick had been burnt and so on the measurement to be determined by the simple rule of three. If the Sun is in a movable sign the light will be moving, if in a fixed sign it will be fixed in one place and if he is in a double-bodied sign the light will be moved now and then. The direction of the lamp is determined by the cardinal direction shown by the Rasi occupied by the Sun. If the Sun is in Aries, the light is kept in the eastern part of the room as the sign indicates East.

There are some who maintain that the direction of the lamp will be determined by the position of the Sun to be located by dividing the day into 8 Yamas and by finding out where the Sun is at the time of birth. This is a little difficult and I shall give an example. Say that a child is born on a Sunday at 25 ghatikas after sunrise. The day contains 60 ghatikas and this divided by 8 will give \( \frac{60}{8} = 7.5 \) ghatikas for a Yama or three English hours. The day has advanced 25 ghatikas and therefore \( \frac{25}{7} \) will give us the Yama passed by birth, we find, falls in the 4th Yama on that day. The fourth from the East will be the direction in which the Sun is to be located for that purpose.

The fourth from the East is the South West and the Sun should be placed there. The lamp must be represented to have been placed in the S. W. in the delivery room. The door has to be determined by the planets in the Kundras or if there are none there, by the most powerful of the planets in the horoscope. (see Chap. II st. 5) These are ably supported by quotations from Manitha and Sarawali. Manitha says that the direction of the door may be determined by the direction indicated by the rising Dwadasamsa in the sign. Since the origin and development of Astrology is not clearly known and since the Maharishis gave out these facts by their Divya Drishti or divine sight evolved by long meditation we have to simply record here these differences without being in a position to affirm or contradict them.
STANZA 19.

If Saturn is the strongest the house will be one newly repaired, if Mars is partly burnt, if Moon new, if the Sun house contains much wood and wall, if Mercury built by many artists, if Venus handsome, painted and new, if Jupiter strong house, the adjoining houses must be indicated similarly by the planets in the Rasis.

Notes

The author enables the reader to predict or to know the nature of the house where the delivery takes place. If Saturn is the most powerful among the planets at the time then the house will be old, but newly repaired. If Mars is the strongest then it will be partly a burnt house. If Moon is the strongest then the house will be quite new. If Moon is waxing then the house will be white washed. If the Sun is the most powerful the house contains a lot of timber work but in a weak condition. If Mercury is the strongest the house will have been built by many good artists and masons. If Venus is the strongest the house will be beautiful, new, and adorned with pictures and paintings. If Jupiter is the strongest then the house will be strong. He now gives an idea of the neighbouring houses having found out the strongest planet and determined the nature of the delivery house take this planet as the lagna and proceed to divide the 12 houses by four cardinal directions. We get 3 houses for each direction. Take an example.

For arguments sake we shall consider Mercury as the strongest of the planets. Then as per above rule the person must have been born in a house well built by various skillful workmen. Thus we have a knowledge of the delivery house but what about the adjacent houses. As Buda has been found to be the most powerful take him as the first or Lagna the ascendant. Then Kambha, Meena and Mesha—the first three houses from Buda form the eastern direction and the houses indicated by the planets there will be found situated to the east of the house where delivery took place. The next three houses viz. Vrishabha, Mithuna and Katak represent the houses adjoining the delivery house in the southern direction and the planets there show the nature of those houses. The next three houses viz. Simha, Kanya, and Thula represent the west and the planets there will show the nature of the houses adjoining the western direction. The next three houses—namely Vrischika, Dhanus, and Makara represent the north, and the planets there show the nature of the houses to the north. Thus the Zodiac has been divided into four equal divisions commencing with the most powerful planet as the starting point. Bhattpala cites from Laghuvataka and explains rules to find out whether the house is single, double or treble storied. If Jupiter occupies degrees in Karaka before his deep exaltation, and this forms the 10th house, then the house will be three storied. If he is in deep exaltation there then it will be four storied. If Jupiter has fallen from his deep exaltation the house will be double storied. If Dhanus is strong in conjunction with Jupiter and happens to be the 10th house the house will be treble in extent. If Mithuna, Kanya, or Meena forms the 10th house with Guru there, it will be double in extent. The extent probably refers to partition or accommodation for two, three, or four families.

If birth falls in Mesha, Karka, Thula Vrischika and Kumbha, or in these Navamshas the delivery will be in the Eastern part of the house. If the birth falls in Guru’s or Buda’s houses or Amares the delivery happens in the northern part of the house. If it falls in Vrischika or Jaya Amares the birth takes place in the west and if it falls in Makara or Simha or their Navamsaras the birthplace will be in the southern side.

Notes
Hitherto the house and its nature have been shown. Now the author explains in what direction of the house the birth takes place. If the rising sign is Aries, Cancer, Libra, Scorpio or Aquarius, the delivery must be predicted in the eastern part of the house. If birth occurs in the houses or Navamshas of Jupiter or Mercury, the delivery occurs in the northern portion of the house. Taurus and its amsa indicate the western portion and the signs Capricornus and Leo as well as their Navamshas denote delivery in the southern portion of the house. These suggestions help the astrological adepts in finding out the true time and thus enable him to cast the future results of the individual with tolerable certainty. They will also prove the value of the science in knowing the minute of the important events of birth.

Stanza 21
The cardinal direction of the lying down must be indicated by two signs from Mesha etc. and the corners by the double bodied signs. Similarly it must be ascertained for the direction of the bed etc. The legs of the couches of the bed must be ascertained by the 6th, 3rd, 9th and 12th houses from Jagan-
The brevity of the Sanskrit language throws great difficulties in the way of easy translations. The etc. of the English tongue cannot be really put as equivalents to the Sanskrit term Adi. There the high development of the tongue has laid down certain rules for explanation which are wanting in the English language.

Take the two signs, Meṣha and Viṣṇabha as representing the East, then Mithuna indicates the South East, Kārtaka and Simha indicate the South and Kanya shows the South West. Thula and Vṛśchika represent the West while Dvādaśa indicates the North West. Makara and Kumbha represent the North while Meena shows the North East. Whichever Rasi happens to be the lagna then the direction indicated by it will be the direction in which the bed is placed. The front legs are indicated by the 3rd and 12th of which the 3rd is the right and the 12th is the left leg. The 6th and 9th are hind legs of which the 6th is the right and the 9th is the left. The lagna and the 2nd represent head side, 4th and 5th right side; 7th and 8th feet side and 10th and 11th denote left side. The uses for these will be to judge the nature of the bed or cot etc. If the Rasas are cruel or common then there will be damage or depression on that side.

By this it seems that there can be no cot or bed whose legs are not damaged or depressed on some side or the other. But Bhatotpala explains away this anomaly by saying that such defects are cured by the conjunction or aspecting of benefics or the lords of the houses. Even malefics occupying or aspecting such will not cause these defects, if they are exalted or are in Moolathrikona or their own houses.

STANZA 22.

The number of women to assist the delivery must be determined by the number of planets between the Moon and the lagna. Their presence inside or outside the delivery room has to be learnt by the planets in the invisible and the visible half of the zodiac respectively. Some say quite the reverse.

NOTES

Take the horoscope given under stanza 19. Between the lagna in Viṣṇabha and the Moon in Meṣha we have 6 planets and therefore the number of women there will be six. But this number is to be modified i.e., multiplied or subtracted as per directions given in the Audayaadvayaya (see cha. VII st. 11). But some of the women may be in the room while there may be others outside. This can be identified by the number of planets in the invisible and visible halves of the zodiac. The two halves are thus determined. Take the number of the degree rising in the sign. From that up to the same degree in the 7th house the division of the zodiac is called invisible (A dusya) half. The remaining houses up to the degree of rising in the birth will form the visible (Drusya) half of the zodiac. Planets in the visible half of the zodiac denote the number of women outside the room while planets in the invisible half of the zodiac indicate the number of women inside the room. The features, wealth, stature and complexion of the women will be denoted by the characteristics represented by the planets there as also their character and caste. Jivasarma maintains this point quite contrary to Varahamihira. He says that the planets in the visible half of the zodiac represent the ladies in the room while planets in the invisible half of the zodiac show their number outside. This is quite unacceptable to the authors as he has distinctly stated so in his Laghu Jataka. But under what authority do the two authors differ?

Varahamihira, who had carefully studied the systems of astrology expounded by the greatest of the Maharambas, has always advanced views which had ample confirmation in the ancient works. Patatopala has not given his opinion here. It looks reasonable to suppose with Varaha Mihira that the planets which are in the invisible part of the zodiac represent the women in the room, for when they are inside the room, the ladies will be invisible. Visible planets must represent the women who are visible and therefore outside the delivery room where they could be seen by others.

The body of the child will resemble the planet who is the lord of the Navamsa or who is the most powerful. The color of the infant will resemble that of the lord of the Navamsa occupied by the Moon. Taking the Lagna as head etc., the limbs resemble the Rasa in which they fall.

Notes

The author here gives important instructions to find out the body, its color, and the proportion of the various limbs. Planetary characteristics have already been made clear in Chap II in sts 8 9 10 and 11. Find out the Navamsa and its lord and describe the body as per that planet. If this does not tally then find out the most powerful planet in the horoscope and describe its characteristics to the child born. Judge the color by the lord of the Navamsa occupied by the Moon. In Ch 1 st 10 Varaha Mihira has explained which signs are long and which are short. He now advises his readers to take Lagna as the head etc., and find out the proportion of the various limbs by the length of the Rasis occupied by them. Suppose a man is born in Vrischika. This will represent his head. As Vrischika is a long sign, the head will be long or big. The next house represents face.
It is Dhanu and this is moderate, therefore the face will be neither small nor long. The 3rd will be Makara and it is long. Therefore the chest will be long and broad. Mithuna is the 8th from Vrischika and this represents the sexual organ. As it is ordinary the organ will be moderately sized. Again if the lords of the long signs be found located in short signs, the result must be accordingly modified. If the Itasi is short and it also has a lord of a short sign then that limb which it governs will be very short.

STANZA 24

If the first Drakkana rises in the Lagna, by the Driesha and Adrisya halves of the zodiac, left and right sides of head, eyes, ears, nose, temples, cheeks and face must be determined from the Lagna respectively. If the second Drakkana rises in the Lagna neck, shoulders, arms, sides, chest, belly and navel should be similarly determined. If the 3rd Drakkana rises in the Lagna lower stomach, sexual organ and anus, testicles, thighs, Luces, calves and feet must be similarly delineated.

NOTES.

The meaning is highly compressed and I shall explain it fully to remove doubts and difficulties. Have the human body divided into 3 parts.
(1) part represents head, the 2nd part comprises all below the neck and above the navel and the 3rd part shows all the organs below the navel. In order to find out any marks, cuts, scars moles, and defects or malformations in the different organs the author asks the reader to take the rasis Drakkana. If it is the first it represents the head, if second it shows the organs below the neck and above the navel and if the 3rd Drak-kana commences then the lower part of the body from the navel are shown.
The signs to the right of the Lagna represent the right side, while the signs to the left of the Lagna indicate the left side organs. Suppose the first Drakkana rises in Masha at the birth of the child. This represents his head. Taking this Drakkana as the Lagna and head we now proceed to find out the right and left side organs. The second house indicates right eye, while the 12th shows the left. The third and 11th houses show right and left ears respectively.
The 4th and 10th houses from the

If those houses are occupied by malefic there will be sores or wounds. If these are occupied or aspected by benefics there will be marks, if such planets causing sores etc.—are in their own houses or Navamsas or in fixed signs or Navamsas the sores etc., will accompany birth, if not they come by accidents after birth. If such a planet is Saturn the wounds will be caused by stones and windy diseases. If Mars by fire, weapons, and poisons; if Mercury by the earth or the ground; if the Sun by wood or quadrupeds, if the Moon by horned animals or aquatic, if they are other planets then there will be no wounds.

Notes

The division of the body into 3 parts and the process to find out the right and left side organs have already been fully explained in the previous stanza. If after finding out the organs by the zodiacal houses they are occupied by evil planets then wounds or sores must be predicted, but if benefics are there or aspect them, then there will be some marks or moles, but no so as. The author has apparently omitted the aspects of evil planets. In such cases the results will probably be lighter in intensity than when they occupy them. Bhaktotpala distinctly says that if such houses are not evil and occupied by evil planets, then the mere aspect or presence of the benefics will not cause even these marks or moles.
He means thereby that when the Rasis are occupied by evil planets without beneficial conjunctions or aspects then they will cause certain wounds, cuts or sores. When the evil planets are there in conjunction with or aspected by benefics then there will be marks or moles in these organs, but when, they are not occupied by malefics but have beneficial aspects or conjunctions there will be no marks or moles. The wounds, if accidental, would be inflicted during the periods of such planets or their sub-periods. Varahamihira proceeds to say, how those wounds etc., are caused.

Stanza 25.
If Mercury joins three other planets in any Rasi he will cause wounds in that organ which is governed by it. If an evil planet is in the 6th from birth there will be wound in that organ represented by that Rasi. If such a malefic has beneficial aspect then there will be Thilaka, Nasaka, etc., there. If benefics join him there will be Laksya etc.

Notes.
See Ch. I at 14. Find out where Buda is with 3 other planets. This means that in any house if Buda joins 3 other planets then that organ which is represented by that house in the Kalasha Tilaka will have wound or sore. An evil planet in the 6th will cause wound in that organ which is controlled by that Rasi under St. 4 of Ch. I as already described. If such an evil planet has beneficial aspect then there will be moles and marks. If such a planet has beneficial conjunction then there will be black marks or other cutaneous indications.

End of Chapter V.

BALARISTA OR EARLY DEATH.

Stanza 1.
Children born during Sandhya or when birth is in Chandra Hora, when evil planets occupy the ends of signs or when four malefics (including the Moon) occupy the quadrants, will die.

Notes.
The importance of a chapter which deals with combinations indicating early death can hardly be overrated. In fact all events in life can only assume importance in relation to their being enacted during the life career of a man. There can be no painting without a canvas and no results can be worth detailing which do not happen to an individual when he lives. This Chapter has been advanced by the author with a view to find out the longevity of the infant. Balarista or death in early life refers to the death of infants before they complete their 6th year. Children born during the two twilights, morning and evening, when the Moon's hora is rising and when the evil planets are found located in the last degrees of the signs or when malescences occupy the four quadrants with the Moon, die early. The twilights are described in Bhadrakvam Samhita clearly. About 45 minutes after the sunset is called the evening twilight while about the same period before the Sunrise is called the morning twilight. But there are some regions where these two twilights extend for many days or many hours. All such cases should be taken as special and dealt with separately.

The planets in the last Navamsas of the houses are said to occupy their ends. In the second case of Balarista the author refers to four malescences to occupy the four quadrants. Properly speaking, there are only 3 malescences. The Sun Mec and Saturn. The two real benefics are Jupiter and Venus. The Moon and Mercury are changing. Weak Moon at on Amavasya days, and badly associated Mercury are malescences while full Moon and well-associated Mercury are benefics. If so why should the author say particularly that Moon and other malescences should occupy the four Kendras. It will be seen that in order to make Mercury and he must be in the 3rd company. If he is with must fall a few days before Amavasya and a few days after it. But Chandra must at least be in the fourth house from Ravi and he cannot be so unless it is for 7 days before or after Amavasya, in which case it is difficult to say he is Kshina. This difficulty probably does not seem to have struck the learned commentator, for the whole significance of this question has been entirely over looked by him. See Ch II Sta 5.

Stanza 2

Vernal and Beneficial planets occupy the first and the 2nd halves of the zodians respectively and the birth rises in Kita Rasi or if the birth and the 7th are placed between malescences the child dies straight.

Notes

The first or Poorva Bhaga of the Bhachaka (zodian) as we have the apara sthana as follows: Leaving as many degrees in the 4th house as have passed in the rising sign (Lagna) the remaining portion of it and the 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, and as many degrees in the 10th as have passed in the Lagna.
half is combined by benefics and the birth rises in Cancer or Scorpio the child dies at once. If there are evil planets in the 12th and 2nd signs of the birth, as also in the 6th and 8th, the child dies at once. Quoting various authors and their different views Bha-totpala explains these combinations in a clear language. If there are evil planets in the 2nd 6th 8th, and 12th, early death of course is ensured. If all the evil planets are (1) in the 2nd and 12th (2) in the 6th and 8th death should be predicted. Some writers say that planets in the 2nd and 8th are confronting the 1st and the 7th respectively this is opposed to facts enumerated in the Hindu Astronomy. Planets are moving from the west to the east and therefore planets in the 12th confront the birth or 1st and planets in the 6th do so with the 7th. This is supported by Varaneshwara. Bhagavan Gargi clearly summaizes these points and says that (1). If evil planets are in 6th and 12th or (2) if they are in 2nd and 8th or (3) if lagna is enclosed by benefics or (4) if the 7th is enclosed by malefics death happens to the child. Devala says that if with these evil planets in the houses indicated above benefics are found death should not be predicted.

Stanza 3

If malefics occupy birth and 7th and if moon joins cruel planets, unpected by benefics, the child dies quickly.

Notes

Here moon, birth and 7th must have evil conjunctions having no benefic aspects to kill the child early.

Stanza 4

If weak moon occupies the 12th with malefics in the birth and the 8th without benefics in the Kendras the child dies soon.

Notes

If there are any benefics in the Kendras, they prolong the child's life according to their relative strength.

Stanza 5

If moon joins a malefic and occupies the 7th, 12th, 8th or birth and when benefics are outside Kendras, and do not aspect the child dies.

Notes

If a malefic in conjunction with the moon occupies birth, 7th, 8th, or 12th possessing no beneficial aspects and having no benefics in the Kendras death comes to the child. The principal point here is the non-occupation of the Kendras by benefics and the want of their aspect to the moon in conjunction with a malefic in the above enumerated houses.

Stanza 6

If moon occupies 6th or 8th aspected by malefics early death comes. If such moon has beneficial aspects the child dies before 6 years.
has mixed aspects the child lives for 4 years If a benefic occupies the 6th or 8th aspected by powerful malefics the child lives for a month If the lord of the birth joins the 7th and suffers defeat there by malefics similar result must be predicted.

Notes
Mixed aspects refer to the aspect of benefics and malefics together. Planetary defeats and successes are clearly explained in my notes on stanza 20 chap II If Moon occupies 6th or 8th and has no aspects beneficial or malefic then this combination does not apply. If the moon joins benefic signs and has benefic conjunctions he gives longer life Mardanrya declares that to the child born during the day time in the dark half of the lunar month and to the child born during the night in the bright half of the month even when the moon occupies 6th or 8th with good and bad aspects there will be no death If the benefic in the 6th or 8th has benefic aspect there is no danger the position of the Moon in the 6th 8th or 12th without benefic aspects or conjunctions indicates early death to the infant.

If weak moon joins Lagna with malefics in the 8th and Ketu or if moon is between malefics occupying the 6th 4th or 7th the child dies. If Moon is in Lagna as above with malefics in the 7th and 8th without the aspect of powerful benefics the mother as well as the child dies.

Notes
If full moon occupies birth then the danger is considerably lessened. The words, “as above” refer to Chandra’s occupation of Lagna with malefics on both sides of it. That is if Chandra occupies Lagna and evil planets are in 12th, 2nd, 7th and 8th without benefic aspects the child and its mother will both die. If there are benefic aspects for the moon then the child dies but not the mother. Here also the idea of the Lagna lying between evil planets seems to have been repeated.

Stanza 8
If moon occupies the last Navamsa of the sign and malefics are in the 5th and 9th without benefic aspects or if Lagna joins Chandra with malefics in the 7th the child dies immediately.

Notes
The last area in every sign will be its 9th Navamsa and Chandra must be here unsuspected by benefics with malefics in the two Trisconas viz. 5th and 9th to kill the child at once.

Stanza 9
If moon joins a malefic in Lagna eclipsed with Mars in the 8th both mother and child will die. Similarly if the sun is in Lagna death results from weapons. If moon or the sun occupies the Lagna with powerful malefics in Thrikonas and 8th unsuspected by or uncombined with benefics the child dies.

Notes.

Bhatotpala has ably explained this verse. If Moon joins Saturn eclipsed by Rahu with Mars in the 8th the mother and child die. The author simply says, moon with a malefic and it may mean the Sun or bad Mercury. Moon is eclipsed on full Moon days when the Sun is in the 7th from him. If the Sun is in the 7th from the Moon Mercury cannot be with the Moon in the Lagna for he is never removed more than 27 degrees from him Mars has been placed in the 8th. Thus the only other evil planet left for consideration is Saturn and he must be with the Moon in the Lagna with Rahu. In the case of the Sun, the malefics referred to will be either mercury or Saturn. For Mercury with the Sun is classed as a malefic. Weak Moon is also a malefic, but in all solar eclipses which occur only on new Moon days (Amavasyas) the Moon will be with the Sun. He specially uses the word Arthamrityu and it must refer to either Mercury or Saturn. In this case the mother and child will both be killed by weapons. If the Sun or moon occupies Lagna with powerful evil planets in Thrikonas and the 8th without combination or aspect of benefics the child dies. A significant point brought out to light by Bhatotpala is that, Mercury with the Sun is an evil planet. There are many ignorant astrologers who maintain that Buda has no astadosha or the evil of combustion. This is wrong.

Stanza 10

If Saturn, Sun, Moon and Mars occupy 12th, 9th, Lagna and 8th respectively unsuspected by powerful Jupiter the child dies quickly.

Notes.

Bhatotpala observes that if power less Jupiter aspects all or powerful Jupiter aspects some of the planets death comes a little later. But if Jupiter in the 5th aspects all these planets there will be no death. The point may thus be illustrated.

Here Jupiter aspects the Sun in the 5th and the moon and birth in the 9th both of which are very powerful aspects. But as per Varaha Mihira's statement in Stanza 13 Chap II all planets have three quarter aspects in the 4th and 8th houses and under this may be included the aspect of Jupiter upon Mars in the 4th and Saturn in the 8th houses. Under such conditions, the child lives.

Stanza 11.

If Moon with malefics occupies 5th, 7th, 9th, 12th, 1st, or 6th houses and not aspected by or combined with powerful Venus, Mercury or Jupiter, death comes early.

Notes

The commentator here accepts Moon as weak Moon and supports this assertion by an apt quotation from Saravali which refers to Karna Chandra Weak Moon therefore must occupy 1st, 5th, 7th, 8th, 9th, or 12th, with malefics to produce death.

If he is aspected by any one of the powerful benefics, Mercury, Jupiter, or Venus, death will be averted. Full Moon alters the case and produces good results.

Stanza 12.

If the Moon by Gochara joins the house of the most powerful malefic in the above yogas or joins his own place, or the Lagna, when he is a raja and has strong malefic aspects be cause death to the child within one year.

Notes

This is greatly compressed in Sanskrit and much has been done by the erudite commentator to offer a satisfactory explanation. Moon moves in the 12 houses of the Zodiac in about 27 and odd days. Where the combinations of planets have not clearly stated the period of death, the student is directed to find out the time within one year by the following methods. Certain planets have been named in combinations as causing Arista or death. Find out which of these planets is the most powerful malefic for causing death and take that as the powerful Arista house. The Moon in his rapid movements approaches that house at a certain time. Death may be predicted during that time or take the house occupied by the Moon at the time of birth. This will be what is technically called his Rasi Death takes place when Moon approaches that sign formerly occupied by him at birth or when Moon approaches the birth sign predict death. The death must be predicted within one year. But it may be questioned that as the Moon moves in all the zodiacal signs within 27 and odd days, how are we to find out the correct day or time of death during the year? For the Moon approaches such planet or his own Rasi or the Lagna, twelve or thirteen times a year. A clue is thus given. Death takes place at that time when the Moon approaches any one of the above named signs, powerfully aspected by malefics. Then alone, death must be foretold. All these facts have been stated by Varaha Mihira in accordance with principles.
of astrology, long before enunciated by the renowned Munis of this land. He openly disclaims all pretensions to originality or facts deduced by his own observations. Bhatotpala now approaches with a vast store of information on this most vital point of early death and says that individuals with such arista combinations sketched by Varaha Mihira have been known to live long within his own experience and that it is his sacred duty to humanity to collect all such conjunctions of planets which are considered by various authors strong enough to protect the child, and which will enable them to live long when the Aristayugas are present in their horoscopes.

Life and death are so supremely important and interesting to mankind in all ages and climes that I make no apology to give the full quotations brought to bear upon this vital question by Bhatotpala. The students should very carefully learn these combinations and see if they are present in horoscopes which are afflicted with Balarista conjunctions. He gives 16 stanzas which are very necessary to consider in judging of the Balarista yugas.

(1) If powerful Jupiter with bright rays occupies birth he averts all aristas (evils) as does Shiva Dhara (Shiva) to get rid off a man’s sins when he devotly prostrates before that God.

(2) If the lord of birth is most powerful, unsuspected by malefics and aspected by benefics occupying the kendra, the evils will be averted and the child lives long in wealth and prosperity.

(3) Even when Moon is in the 8th house, if he occupies the Drakkanas of Mercury, Jupiter, or Venus he will avert all evils and give long life.

(4) If the Moon is full, occupies benefical signs with benefical aspects, the evils will be averted, much more so when Venus aspects.

(5) If Venus, Mercury, or Jupiter occupies powerfully a Kendra, although in conjunction with malefics, he will avert early death.

(6) Even when Moon occupies the 8th house, if he joins the Drakkanas of Mercury, Jupiter, or Venus, the child will be protected as does a serpent-bitten man by the medicine of Siddhas. These are men with wonderful psychic development who can perform miracles.

(7) If full Moon is between two benefts with bright light, the child will be protected completely as men can be protected by Garuda against all serpents.

(8) Even if full Moon occupies 6th or 8th during the night of the bright half of the lunar month, he protects the child from all dangers.
(9) If Jupiter is bright, powerful, and lustrous and is found in a quadrant he averts all evils.

(10) If Jupiter, Moon, Venus, and Mercury, occupy beneficent signs or divisions they avert all evils.

(11) If the lord of the house occupied by the Moon at the time of birth joins a Kendra with benefics he protects the child from all evils as the devout prayers addressed to Vishnu protect a man from all his sins.

(12) If benefics join beneficial divisions and aspect malefics in beneficial divisions they cut away all evils as does a bad woman her husband.

(13) If Rahu joins 3rd, 6th, or 11th house having beneficial aspects, all the evils will be blown out as cotton threads before powerful winds.

(14) If all the planets occupy susbodhayas the evils will be melted away as does the ghee placed on the fire.

(15) If a successful benefic in the planetary fith is aspected by another benefic the evils are blown away as do the trees by a violent storm.

(16) If the Moon is aspected by all the planets the evils will be conquered as a powerful emperor could conquer a petty Chief opposed to him.

End of Chapter VI.

CHAPTER VII
Ayurdaya (Life)

STANZA 1

Sun 9° in deep exaltation gives 9+10, 15+10, 5+10, 2+10, 5+10, 11+10, 10+10 years of life respectively according to Maya, Yavana, Manitha, and Saktipurva.

NOTES

Before he gives his own views, Varaha Mihira quotes previous authorities about the length of life each planet gives to the child, when he is in deep exaltation, and suggests that such term of life granted by each planet varies proportionately as per a planet's fall etc. from that place of deep exaltation. The Sun gives 19 years, Moon 25 years, Mars 15 Mercury 12, Jupiter 15 Venus 21, and Saturn 20 years. Thus we get 19+25+15+12+15+21+20 years or 127 years. Bhattacharya could have thrown greater light on the lives of the famous authors quoted by Varaha Mihira, but he has been mercilessly short about them. Maya was an Asura (Rakshasa or giant) who prayed devoutly to the Sun and to whom a personification of that God, gave the whole work, of Surya Siddhanta to famous all over the world. Yavana is said to be a Mecha Astrologer of great note. Mechas refer to Mussal man or those who inhabited Turkey.
Arabia, Persia etc. Manitha was an Acharya, a Brahman of great astrological proficiency Saktiputra is the son of Sakti or Parnsara the renowned father of the great Veda Vyasa and the grandson of the venerable Vasista the preceptor of Sri Rama. The views of these authors are here expressed.

STANZA 2

Where a planet is debilitated he cuts away half of the term of life and in the middle mass he gives terms of life as per rule of three. The Lagha is supposed to give that number of years, which is represented by its Amsa, while others say the number will be similar to the Rasi. A planet in an unfriendly sign cuts one-third of his term unless he is retrograde. The combust planets, except Venus and Saturn cut off half their term of life.

NOTES

At this touches the mathematical portion of Astrology to some extent the notes must necessarily be long and thoroughly explanatory. Planets in their lowest debilitation take away half the term of life granted by them while they are in deep exaltation. Thus when the Sun is at his lowest debilitation he gives ½ of 19 or 9½ years = 114 months.

The Moon at his lowest gives ½ year or 150 months. Mars gives 7½ years or 90 months. Mercury gives 6 years or 72 months. Jupiter gives 7½ years or 90 months. Venus gives 10½ years or 126 months and Saturn gives 10 years or 120 months.

There will be 6 signs or 180 degrees between the degree of deep exaltation and that of debilitation for a planet. Multiply the Bhagas 30 (degrees) into ghatikas 60 (minutes) we get 30×60 = 1800 for each sign. This multiplied by the distance in Rasi between exaltation and debilitation gives 1800×6 = 10800 Ghatikas. When a planet falls from his exaltation take the number of degrees from it and convert them into Ghatikas. When a planet has risen from his debilitation take the number of Bhagas (degrees) from that and convert them into Ghatikas. These are called the Ghatikas gained by the planet. When the planet takes away half of his term of life for 6 signs (from his exaltation to his debilitation) or for 10800 Ghatikas how much does he take away for the Ghatikas he has travelled from his exaltation or debilitation? In the case of a planet's fall he loses the term of life proportionately till he reaches his minimum in the lowest debilitation. But in the case of a planet rising from his debilitation till he approaches his exaltation, he gains proportionately above the lowest term given to him in his 4th till he gets the highest term mentioned to his credit in his exaltation.

Take the number of Ghatikas... gained by the planet and multiply this by the number of months, it would give us its lowest debilitation.

Then divide the total by 10800. The figure obtained represents months. Take the remainder and multiply by 30, and divide the total by 10800, the figure obtained represents days. Then take the remainder and multiply it by 60 Ghatas and divide the total by 10800. The figure thus obtained will be Ghatas, and so on for the minute divisions. When the figure representing the months is divided by 12, we naturally get the years. The figure obtained by this procedure must be subtracted from the total period the planet gives when it falls from its exaltation. But when the planet rises from its lowest debilitation this figure must be added to the term of life which the planet gives at its lowest debilitation. Thus if the Sun is in Taurus, he is fallen from his exaltation in Aries. His total term in the highest elevation is 19 years and from this 19 years the total obtained by the above process must be deducted. But suppose the Sun is in Scorpio, then he has risen from the lowest fall in Libra, where he gives only 9½ years. Whatever is obtained by this process of the rule of three that must be added to 9½ years.

Bhatotpal gives an easy method. Take any given planet and find out the degree etc., he has gained, deduct the exaltation degrees etc., if possible. But if the degrees he has gained cannot be deducted from the exaltation degrees then add the 12 Rasis (signs) and from this total deduct the exaltation degrees and keep the remainder separate. If this remainder is less than 6 signs then deduct that from the 12 signs and keep it. But if the remainder is more than 6 signs then keep it as it is. Multiply this figure by the total number of years the planet gives in exaltation. Take the case of the Sun. Here we have to multiply the Rasis, degrees, Ghatas etc., each by the total sum of 19, and convert the same into Ghatas, Bhagas and Rasis barawal. Give instructions in a similar manner. Unfortunately Bhatotpal gives the theory but not the practical solution and in order to verify it two or three examples must be given here.

Example 1.

The Sun is in 5 Rasis 15 Bhagas, and 20 Kalas convert the whole into Kalas, thus $5 \times 30 - 150 + 15 = 165 \times 60 = 9900 + 20 = 9920$ Ghatas (Kalas). If the Sun loses 9½ years for 10800 Kalas, what does he lose for 9920 Kalas? thus $10800 \cdot 114 = 9920$ Kalas to the answer.
BRIHAT JATAKA.

\begin{align*}
114 \times 820 & = 33 \times 248 = 10 \times 248 \\
\frac{10800}{10} & = 90 = 4 \times 3 \end{align*}

\frac{4712}{45} = 10 \text{ months} + \frac{32}{40} \times 80 \text{ days} = \frac{64}{3} = 21 \text{ days and } \frac{1}{3} \times 60 = 20 \text{ Kalas (Ghatis)}

This total of 104 months, 21 days and 20 Kalas must be deducted from his total of 19 years. Thus we get 10 years, 3 months, 8 days and 10 Kalas as the term of life granted by the Sun.

Example 2.

The Moon is in 11 Rasis, 20 Bhagas and 45 Kalas. Thus 11 \times 30 + 20 = 330 \times

60 = 21600 + 45 = 21645 Kalas or Ghatis.

If Moon gets 12\frac{1}{2} years for 10800 Kalas, what does he get for 21645 Kalas?

\frac{21645 \times 150}{10800} \text{ months} = \frac{21645 \times 30}{10800} = 70.6 - 24 = 292

months and \( \frac{7}{24} \times 30 = \frac{35}{4} = 8 \) days and \( \frac{3}{4} \times 60 = 45 \) Ghatis or 24 years, 4 months, 8 days and 45 Ghatis or Kalas will be the term of life granted by the Moon. Take other planets in a similar way.

The birth gives the number of years denoted by the Navamsa it occupies. Say birth falls in the 10th degree and 30\text{'} of Gemini.

The Navamsa by calculation falls in the 4th division. The whole sign Gemini gives 9 years of life. But Gemini covers 30 \times 60 or 1800 Ghatis (minutes) this divided by 9 gives 200 Ghatis for each year. In Gemini the birth has advanced 10 degrees or \( 10 \times 60 + 30 \text{ Ghatis} = 630 \text{ Ghatis}

(minutes) this, \( \frac{5}{10} \) gives the number of years the birth denotes, that is 3 years and \( \frac{5}{20} \times 12 = \frac{3}{5} = 1 \) month and \( \frac{3}{4} \times 30 \text{ days} = 21 \) days.

Therefore to a person born when Gemini has advanced 10 Bhagas and 30 Kalas, the term of life given by that sign is years 3, months 1 and days 24. Similar procedure must be adopted for all terms of life granted by birth. Manitha and others say that the number of years etc., given by birth depends upon the Rasi.

Take the same Lagna. It has advanced through 2 Rasis and 10\text{'} degrees. Two Rasis give two years.

By rule of three if 30 degrees give 1 year what would be given by 10\text{'} degrees? Converting the year into months we get the sum = 30 : 12 :

10\text{'} \text{ to the answer} = \frac{12 \times 2}{50 \times 2} = \frac{21}{5}

= 4 months and 6 days.

Thus according to Manitha and that school of Astrology, a person born when 10\text{'} degrees of Gemini have passed will be given 2 years, 4 months and 6 days of life by the birth Rasi or Lagna Ayurdya.

In the first case the birth sign cannot give more than 9 years at the most.
as there are only 9 Navamsas in each sign, while in the second case the birth sign cannot give anything more than 12 years for there are only 12 rasas. There will thus be a maximum difference of three years, and that certainly makes a great deal of difference in fixing correctly the period of life the man has. Bhatotpala sides with Manthana and denounces the view of Varaha Mihira. The author of Saravali says he is a happy medium. He says that the Lagna gives Rasi longevity if its Lord is powerful and Amsa longevity if its Lord is strong. Excepting the retrograde those planets which occupy unfriendly signs take away 1/3 of their term of life. The word used in the original is Vakram Hitva which means leaving aside the Vakra or Retrograde planet or Vakra which also means Kuja or Mars and therefore excepting Mars this is supported by Badarayana who clearly mentions Bhumiputra. Saravali says excepting retrograde Varaha Mihira later on says in at 11 of this chapter that planets in Vakra or retrogression become powerful and give twice the term of their life, so probably he means by Vakra retrogression.

If all planets in the 12th, 11th, 10th 9th, 8th, and 7th take away 1, 1/3, 1/3, 1/3, 1/3, and 1/3 of the term of life allotted to them respectively. If benefics occupy the same houses they take away only, one half of that which the malifics do. Badrayana says that, if there are many planets in any one of the houses only the most powerful among them will eat the proportion of life granted by it.

NOTES

A malefic in the 12th house from Lagna absorbs the whole of the term of life granted by it. In the 11th one half of it, in the 10th 1/3 of it, in the 9th 1/4 of it, in the 8th 1/5 of it, in the 7th 1/6 of it. Take an example. Saturn is in the 12th house. He absorbs all his 20 years and gives to the child none at all as his share. If he is in the 11th he cuts away half and gives 10 years. If he is in the 10th he cuts away 1/3 of 20 or 6 years and 8 months. If he is in the 9th he takes away 1/4 of 20 or 5 years. If he is in the 8th 1/5 of 20 or 4 years are absorbed. If he is in the 7th he takes away 1/6 of 20 or 3 years and 4 months.

If on the other hand there is Jupiter instead of Saturn in the 12th house, he absorbs 1/5 of his life or 1/5 of 15 years. If he is in the 11th then he takes away 1/4 of his period of 15 years. If he is in the 10th he takes away 1/6 of his term and when he is in the 9th, 1/7 of his term. If in the 8th he removes 1/8th and when he is in the 7th he removes 1/9th of his period.

If there are, for instance Saturn, Jupiter, Mars and the Sun in the 12th house, then the most powerful among them will cut away the proportion or the whole of his period while the others do nothing at all. By quoting Satyacharyya the author shows no diffERENCE in opinion but only as an authority to support him.

STANZA 4

If an evil planet occupies the birth the number of Amsas etc., passed by the Lagna must be multiplied by the total of the planetary terms of years etc., and then divided by 103, and deduct from the total term of life the figure thus obtained. If a benefic aspects the above conjunction half of this must be deducted.

NOTES

Take the time passed by the Lagna and convert the whole into Kala; Divide this by 200 and we get the number of Navamsas gained by Lagna. Multiply this by the total planetary terms of life. Take the total and then divide this by 103. The
the total term of life for the malefic and half of this for the benefic. Take an example—

Gemini is the birth and it has passed 3 Amsas and 1 Bhaga and 20 Kalas. Suppose Mars and Saturn are in Gemini and the total number of years granted by all the planets is 40½ years. Gemini has passed $\frac{3}{5}$ Navamsas. To this add 18 Amsas of Mesha and Varshaha. This must be multiplied by 40 years and divided by 103. Thus we get

\frac{21}{103} \times \frac{81}{10} \times \frac{1}{108} \times \frac{1}{107} \times \frac{57}{3} \times \frac{321}{108} \times \frac{1}{2} \times \frac{107}{5} \times \frac{4}{2} \times \frac{1}{40} \text{ years } = 8 \text{ years and } \frac{237}{2} \times 12 \text{ months } = \frac{48}{2} \times \frac{1}{2} \text{ months } = 10 \text{ months, and } \frac{1}{2} \times 30 \text{ days } = 9 \text{ days or 8 years no months and 9 days.}

Thus there will be a balance of 21 years 5 months and 21 days. But suppose Jupiter aspects these planets (then only half) their terms should be deducted. That is for Saturn we have to deduct 4 years and 4½ days, and the same for Mars if he is there. The author of Saravali seems to make some difference in this connection. His process has been given here for ready reference.
Convert the Lagna into Kala, and multiply the same by the term of life granted by each planet, and then divide this by 21600 Kala, the total of the 12 Rasis. Then convert the quotient into years etc. The length of life thus obtained for each planet will be the true measure of life the man enjoys. If there are malefic and benefic planets in Lagna take the term of life granted by that planet which is close to Lagna. Thus if Saturn is 20 degrees from the Lagna and Mars is 10 degrees Mars must be taken in preference to the former. By evil planets the Sun, Saturn, and Mars alone must be under stood Weak Moon and bad Mercury cannot be accepted. This is supported by a quotation from Badarayana

Stanza 5

Men and elephants have 80 x 2 years as term of life and 5 days more. Horses live 82 years, camels and asses 25 years, Buffaloes and bullocks live 24 years, Dogs have 12 years, Goats etc., 16 years.

Notes

This raises great and difficult questions. The utmost limit for ordinary men is 120 years and 5 days. But there are men who have lived for hundreds and thousands of years. There are also instances of horses having lived for 50 years and more. So can dogs probably live to 20 years. Much depends upon the food, the soil, the climatic conditions, and the occupations or work in which the man or the animal has been engaged. The limits given here are those which ordinariness apply and these years are Solar years. In the horoscopes of horses, sheep, dogs and cattle the same rule of these which is applied to men here must also be applied to them. Thus if for 10 years the Sun gives 19 years, what would he give for 32 years?

\frac{32 \times 19}{120} \text{ years} = \frac{4 \times 19}{15} = \frac{76}{15} = 5 \text{ years}

\frac{1}{15} \times 2 \text{ months} = \frac{12}{15} = 2 \text{ days}

Thus the Sun gives in the case of the horse 5 years and 21 days when he is similarly situated. This enables one to fix the periods of life for pet animals etc.

Stanza 6

If the last Navamsha of Meena becomes Lagna if Mercury is in the 20th minute in Vrishabha and all the rest are in their deep exaltation, the person gets the utmost limit of life viz. 120 years and 5 days.

All these planets except Mercury now give the total number of years named against them when they are in deep exaltation. Mercury has risen from debilitation. Therefore he is now passed one Rasi, Bhaga nil and 25 Kalas. This must be deducted from the Rasi he occupies. Thus we get 1 Rasi, 15 Bhagas and 25 Kalas converting this into Kalas we get 2723 Kalas. If Buda gives 6 years for 10000
When the Sun is exalted Mercury can never occupy his exaltation in Virgo. Hence he is placed in Taurus. Bhadotpala says that even here Mercury cannot be more distant from the Sun than 4 degrees in Taurus, when the latter planet is in his own deep exaltation that is in the 10th degree of Aries. Probably Mercury did go beyond 24 degrees from the Sun during the time of Bhatotpala. His displacement now according to present Astronomical calculations may be carefully noted.

If Mercury is in the 4th degree of Aries the commentator thus calculates the age of the child. If we take Lagna in the 4th degree of Taurus he gives 1 year, 7 months and 18 days. If added to 6 years of his Neechaposis in Aries he gives 7 years, 7 months and 13 days. Thus the combination above sketched may give a term of 120 years, 1 month and 18 days. Varaha Mihira's statement that a man lives to 120 years and five days has been shown to be erroneous by his commentator. Man sometimes lives even to greater ages than this.

Sanskrit 7: 8

Vishnugupta, Narsimman and Sudhindra have given similar longevity. There is one serious objection to the acceptance of their theory, because according to them, no children can die above 8 and below 20 years which is absurd.
of years ago it is difficult to say and dangerous to dogmatise. To get the full life 6 planets must be in exaltation, but when they are so, the person becomes an emperor. But there are many who are poor, but who live long. This is found to be the case in practical life.

Bhatotpala first shows the error in Varaha Mihira's objection in Stanza 7. As per conditions laid down in Stanza 4 of this chapter it is difficult to fix the different periods of life given by evil planets in the Lagna as they may considerably lessen the relative terms of life granted by them and thus bring down the total to less than 20 years and more than 8 years. He gives an example.

These are the positions of the planets at the birth of a child given above for illustration.

Lagna gives no term of life as it has just entered Kumbha. We have known the relative periods given by exalted and debilitated planets.

We must now find out the term given by Kuja. He has now fallen 20 degrees from his exaltation, viz from 28 in Makara. Reduce 30 degrees into Kalas 80 X 0.00 = 1800.

If he loses 90 months in 10500 Kalas what does he lose in 1800 = 10300 = 12 months.

This must be deducted from Kuja total period of 15 years. He gives therefore 13 years and 9 months. We shall now give Chakrapati or the terms of life to be deducted by the positions of the various planets in the horoscope. Guru occupies the 12th from Lagna and cuts half of his term. He gives 3 years and 9 months.

The Sun gives 10 years. Moon 25, Mars 13?, Mercury 6 years, Jupiter 3 years & 9 months. Venus gives 21 and Saturn 10 years. Lagna gives none. Therefore the total is.

Therefore the total is...
Varaha Mihira, although he has not clearly stated so, has implied that the terms of the lives given by the exalted and debilitated planets could not be lessened either by their occupation of unfriendly or combative houses. For this can be easily inferred from St 6 of this chapter.

For these Moon is in Taurus and Venus is in Pisces. From such mutual positions of 3 and 11 both of them become temporary enemies and they are also not permanent friends. If one-third of the Moon’s Period is deducted for his occupation of Varshabha, then the total of 120 Years etc., given by Varaha Mihira cannot be obtained. The Lagna falls in the first Navamsha of Kumba and therefore is the Brst. Navamsha from Meha. This must be multiplied by the terms of longevity given by all the planets.

Thus $01 \times \frac{86}{2} = 91 \times \frac{197}{2} \times \frac{17927}{210}$

62 years and $215 \times 12$ months $= 17$ months and $\frac{17}{17} \times 30$ days $= 28$ days.

a balance of 15 years, 6 months, 1 day and 40 Kalas. A person having that combination given above will live only for 15 years and odd. He has shown here that Varaha Mihira’s objection that no age comes above 8 or below 20 years according to the theories of other Acharyas falls to the ground. But others may say that with an evil planet in the Lagna the term of life falls like this. Varaha Mihira had in view only good planets in Lagna in which case no age comes below 20 years. But this is equally fallacious. When a statement is made, it must be approved of by the majority of the astrological writers and nothing can be supported which is against their declared principles. The very same Acharyas who have treated of the questions on longevity have also treated of certain Mrityu Yogas (combinations for death) and they must be fully taken into consideration. As the question of life and death is most significant for man, I have thought fit to explain the whole in detail even at the risk of profuseness. Badarayana says — aspected by malefics he will kill the person in his sub-period by ropes, imprisonment and so forth.

Saravalli declares—

"If the period of a cruel planet has the sub-period of another malefic, the person suffers death. If these malefics have unfriendly conjunctions then the danger is enhanced. In the dasa of Sun if the sub-dasa of Kupa intervenes although the man may have lived long, he will be certainly killed. If malefics join cruel signs and occupy 6th or 8th houses or if aspected by unfriendly planets occupying 6th or 8th, the man dies during each sub-periods. If the period of an unfriendly planet of the lord of Lagna occurs, and the sub-period of the Lagna intervenes the person dies suddenly according to Satyacharya." Here one point of interest is that Satyacharya has been quoted by Saravalli and therefore he must have been earlier than that work in the field. Varaha Mihira quotes often Satyacharya and does not mention Saravalli. It is plain from this that Saravalli came between Varaha Mihira and Bhaskara.

Therefore the commentator triumphantly observes that according to the statements of other Acharyas—authors—longevity can be ensured both above 8 years and also below 20 years and many cases of death certainly occur during these periods. The second objection taken by Varaha Mihira also falls to the ground. There are many who live long but are veritable beggars.

Out of this Jupiter occupying the 9th house from Lagna loses 1/9 of his term or 1 year, 8 months, 18 days, 45 kalas, and Chandra loses 1/7 of 14 term by occupying the 7th house of 3 years, 9 months, 20 days, 10 both of these together lose 5 years, 6 months, 13 days, and 45 Ghatis. We get 110 years, 10 months, 9 days, and 10 Kalas.

None of the planets is in exaltation.

Thus a man can live more than a hundred and ten years and still be a beggar. As there are no planets on both sides of the moon in this diagram there is the Kemadruma combination which produces dirt, sorrow, uneasiness, beggarliness, servility, and vagabondism even in persons born in royal families. Much more therefore will these qualities be in persons born in ordinary families. (See Stanza 3 & 6 chapter XIII.) Therefore Bhatotpala has shown by example that persons can get long life without royal or affluent status. Varaha Mihira prefers Satyacharya’s system, not because other Acharyas quoted already are false, but because Satyacharya represents the system adopted by the majority of the astrological Physicians. In Brihat Samhita, Varaha Mihira clearly declares that ‘Joyissasa or like a Veda and when different doctrines are pronounced there we have no ability or capacity to say which is correct and which not. Therefore I shall explain the different systems.’ If this is the position taken by the learned Varaha Mihira, what could the ignorant modern man say about the differences in the astrological systems. Some say that there is no Kemadruma in the above given illustration as Chandra is in the 7th Kendra but the author is clear in omitting the presence of Chandra and he is supported by Bhugavanan Garga who distinctly says that the Kendras with planets must be referred to from Lagna excepting Chandra.

STANZA 9

Jeevasarma says, on his own responsibility, that each of the planets gives one seventh of the period of the longevity stated above. Satyacharya says that each planet gives that term of life which is indicated by the Navamsa he occupies. This seems to be approved by many astrological experts.

NOTES

Varaha Mihira declares that he has seen Jeevasarma’s works where he distinctly lays down 7th of 120 years and 5 days as the longest term of life given by each of the seven planets.

Thus we get for each planet in exaltation on 17 years, 1 month, 22 days, 8 Kalas and 24 Vikalas. Half of this will be the period given by each of the planets when in debilitation. For other Rasis, the rule of three must of course be applied. In other respects Jeevasarma gives the same proportionate, subtractions and additions as other authors have done in the Chakra patha.

Bhatotpala gives an easy method for calculating the term of life given by any planet. Take any planet and subtract the degrees he has fallen from his deep exaltation. If the sum so subtracted is less than 6 signs that must be subtracted from 12 Rasis Multiply the remainder by 841 and divide the sum obtained by 501. The quotient represents days. This divided by 30 gives months and the quotient thus obtained must be divided by 12 to get years. Jeevasarma's is not at all supported by any great Rishis or Acharyas and therefore the only objection against Jeevasarma's system is that he bases his authority on himself Bhatotpala has done immense service to the chronology of various authors, although not to that extent to which we could have expected a man of his wonderful learning to do. Varaha Mihira refers to Maya Yavana Manthana and Parasara in St 1 of this chapter. The commentator says that the Yavana referred to by the author could not be Yavanacharya who, under another name of Sphuj Dwaja, has composed a work after the Saka era commenced. In this work which was completely possessed by Bhatotpala Sphuj Dwaja refers to some old Yvanas who have given various characteristics to planets in the old times. Bhatotpala rightly means that as this Yvanacharya follows Varaha Mihira closely, he could not have been quoted by the author, for to quote an author he must have differed from him. Unfortunately the Commentator did not get a copy of the work of the older Yavana. He also complains that he did not get a copy of the Parasara Hora to which Varaha Mihira refers. But Bhatotpala says that he possessed a copy of Parasara Samalitha. He also quotes another sloka from Parasara Hora which was referred to by some early authors. Bhatotpala clearly says that he possessed full copies of the works of Maya and Manthana. Admitting for argument's sake that Bhatotpala was one of the greatest commentators on astrological works, we get a doubt about the author of Jataka Chundrika when he says that he has made an abstract of Parasara Hora Venkateswara the author of Jataka Chundrika, was the Son of Yagya Narayana a Dil shira or one who had performed a sacrifice and must have been certainly more recent than Bhatotpala. The age of Bhatotpala, if we take the Saka era he refers to as Vikramarka's era will be now (1908 A.D.) About 1077 years or 831 A.D. when he completed his invaluable Commentaries.
course be applied. In other respects Jevasarman gives the same proportionate, subtractions and additions as other authors have done in the Chakra-patha.

Bhato-pala gives an easy method for calculating the term of life given by any planet. Take any planet and subtract the degrees he has fallen from his deep exaltation. If the sum so subtracted is less than 6 signs that must be subtracted from 12 Rasis. Multiply the remainder by 8341 and divide the sum obtained by 504. The quotient represents days. This divided by 30 gives months and the quotient thus obtained must be divided by 12 to get years. Jevasarman's is not at all supported by any great Rishis or Acharyas and therefore the only objection against Jevasarman's system is that he bases his authority on himself. Bhato-pala has done immense service to the chronology of various authors, although not to that extent to which we could have expected a man of his wonderful learning to do. Varaha Mihira refers to Maya Yavana Manitha and Parasara in St. 1 of this chapter. The commentator says that the Yavana referred to by the author could not be Yavanacharya who, under another name of Sphuj-Dvaya, has composed a work after the Saka era commenced. In this work which was completely possessed by Bhato-pala Sphuj-Dvaya refers to some old Yavana who have given various characteristics to planets in the olden times. Bhato-pala rightly infers that as this Yavanacharya follows Varaha Mihira closely, he could not have been quoted by the author, for to quote an author he must have differed from him. Unfortunately the commentator did not get a copy of the work of the older Yavana. He also complains that he did not get a copy of the Parasara Hora to which Varaha Mihira refers. But Bhato-pala says that he possessed a copy of Parasara Samhita. He also quotes another salka from Parasara Hora which was referred to by some early authors. Bhato-pala clearly says that he possessed full copies of the works of Maya and Manitha. Admitting for argument's sake that Bhato-pala was one of the greatest commentators on astrological works, we get a doubt about the author of Jataka Chudrika when he says that he has made an abstract of Parasara Hora Venkateswara the author of Jataka Chudrika, was the Son of Yavana Narayana a Disbhut or one who had performed a sacrifice and must have been certainly more recent than Bhato-pala. The age of Bhato-pala we take to be the Saka era will be now (1908 A.D.) about 1077 years or 831 A.D. when he completed his invaluable Commentaries.
But if raka refers to Saha-Vahana then it will be 942 years or 986 A.D. Anyhow Parasara-bhata had not been available at that remote time and the commentator regrets the incident very naturally. Probably during the time of Vasuba Mihira, that reputed work was well known and respected and the author had made ample references to it. Vasuba Mihira now gives the terms of life given by the different planets and this system not only recommended itself to the author but was also supported by such great astrological writers as Badarayana, Satsacharya and the older Yavanas. Each planet gives the number of years which is represented by the Navamsha he occupies, irrespective of the Rasis occupied by such a planet.

Stanza 10

Convert the intended planet's position into kala, divide this by 200, the quotient if divisible divided by 12 represents years etc.

Notes

Take a planet in one Rasa, 8 Bhagha x 1 45 kala Convert this into kala One Rasa has 1800 kala

6 Bhagha x 60 = 4045 = 2925 kala

Divide this by 200 and we get 11 years and 2 x 30 = 60 = 25 days

15 months, 20 days

there is 11 as the first quotient but it is not divisible by 12, and therefore represents years. But suppose it is 14, then divide by 12, there will be a remainder of 2 rasi that will be the number of years given by the planet

Badarayana gives another method. Taking the same example we have 1 Rasi, 8 Bhagha and 45 Kalas. Multiplying this by 103 we get thus 31 x 100 = 3100 1391 1 This quotient must be divided by 12, and we get years 11, and 112 = 7 months and 15 days

Stanza 11.

A planet in exaltation or retrograde will give 3 times the term of his life. If he is in Varottama or in his own house or Navamsha or Drakshana he gives double the period. This is the speciality named by Satsacharya.

Notes.

A planet in his exaltation or retrograde gives three times the term of life obtained by the above calculation.

Vargottama is the position of the planet in the same Rasi and the same Navamsha. His own house in the Rasi or his Navamsa or Drakshana enables a planet to double the quantity of life he is able to give otherwise.

Stanza 12.

Ragya gives similar numbers of years as it has advanced in the Navamsa. If it is very powerful it will give similar to the Rasi. If a malefic is in Lagna no deduction should be made on this account. Do not take the terms of life granted by the planets as stated before.

Notes.
In this system, Satyachariya fixes one year for each of the Navamsas, with proportionate terms for fractions of that Navamsa subject to a division by the Mandala Sankhya or 12, the remainder being represented as years. But if the Lagna is very powerful then the number of Rasis passed by the Lagna may be added to the Amsa longevity obtained by the Lagna. Suppose 109 kala in the 4th Navamsa in Meena have passed at the time of birth; if the Lagna is not powerful as per st. 9 ch. 4 then Lagna gives that term of life which is obtained by multiplying 11 Rasis by 9 amsa and adding the 8 amsas passed in Meena to it and then by dividing the total by the mandala figure 12, and the remainder will be the years given. Thus converting the Rasis into navamsas we have 11 × 9 = 99 + 3½ amsas = 102½ amsas. This must be divided by 12, thus there is a remainder of 3½ years and that is the term of longevity given by the Lagna. But suppose this Meena Lagna is powerful, then it gives 11 years represented by the eleven Rasis passed by it plus the fraction of Meena passed by the Lagna. It 1800 Kalas give one year what would 700 Kalas give.

\begin{align*}
7 & \times 2 \quad 14 \\
3 & \quad 3 \quad 2 \\
\times 30 \text{ days} = & \quad 20 \text{ days} \end{align*}

Thus if Meena is powerful and 100 Kalas have passed in it at the birth, it would give a total of 6½ years plus 11 years, 4 months and 20 days or a total of 17 years 10 months and 20 days. About the Rasi and its additions Varaha Mihira is vague and unconvincing. Bhatotpala quotes an excellent passage from Bada-rayana where the whole principle is distinctly explained.

Stanza 13.
Satyachariya's system is excellent, but many have spoiled it by useless multiplications.

Whenever two or three figures are to be multiplied then multiply it by that figure which represents the strongest factor.

Notes.
Varahamihira expresses his regret at the way in which some astrologers have interpreted Satyachariya's views and principles. For instance Satyachariya says that with the exception of the specialities named by him the rest must be interpreted as usual. Where a planet is in his own house, his Drakana or his Navamsa he gives twice the term of life granted by him. Suppose he occupies his own house, his own Drakkana and his own Navamśa, then the term of life granted by him ought not to be multiplied twice for Rasi, then twice for his Navamśa. Whichever of these is the stronger—therefore, that planet only must be made to give twice the period found out to his credit in the above formulated calculations. The same thing for Lagna Ayurdya. No deductions should be made on account of the presence of other planets in the Lagna when the Amsa Ayurdya is made.

Saravali refers to Vrata Mihira and says that he above, out of the many astrologers found out the truth in the method recommended by Satyacharya and approves his restrictions put upon multiplications.

Suppose a planet is retrograde and in exaltation. Then the term of life granted by him must be multiplied only thrice and not six times as the tenor of Maya and others suggested. When a planet gets multiplication twice and thrice then only multiply that term by 3 only. When division comes it must be similarly dealt with. Suppose a planet is in Neccha and Asta, only subtract one term obtained by the greater of the two. When a planet is in the 11th and it also happens to be his unfriendly sign which should be first deducted. The first deduction falls under the Chalrapatya and it is to be done first and then the term given by the planet in good or bad signs etc.

From the quotation given from Garga these matters are made very clear. First Chalrapatya should be done. Then the terms of loss must be ascertained and out of these the largest quantity obtained must be deducted. The multiplication sources must be found out and there the largest figure obtained must be multiplied.

Bhatotpala says that the author has given preference only to the Amsayurdya which is not correct. Quoting Manitha and Saniwali, Bhatotpala observes that when Lagna is most powerful Amsayurdya should be done. When the Sun is most powerful Pindaayurdya and if Chandra is most powerful Nisaigya should be consulted. Some others say that the term of life granted by the two methods Amsayurdya and Grabdatta Pindaayurdya should be found out and which ever comes shortest in the two must be divided into Antardassas. If the last sub period there is owned by an unfriendly planet then death must be predicted. If it is ordinary the person passes through danger, but if he is good then he escapes the danger and progresses well. Take an example.

Suppose by the Graha Datta Pindaayurdya a man gets 50 years while from the Amsayurdya he gets only 10 years. Then take the lowest.
period, i.e., 40 years granted by Amrita. If at the end of the 40th year an unfriendly Anathadasa happens the person dies at 40. But suppose the period of a good planet comes; then the person will not be killed at 40 years but live on.

Stanza 14.

If birth falls in Kataka and Guru and Chandra are in it, Buda and Sukra in the Kendras the rest in 3-6-13, the person lives very long and mathematical calculations for longevity do not apply to such a combination.

Notes

Guru and Chandra must be in Kataka the birth sign, Sukra and Buda may be in any one of the Kendras with the rest of the evil planets Ravi, Sani and kuja in the 11th, 6th, and 3rd either together or separately. That is, these last three planets may be in any one or two or three of these houses or each in one house. But any how those three must be in these houses or in any one of them. Under such combinations the person lives very long. The author implies that longevity calculations do not apply to such horoscopes. Bhatotpala touches a very fine point which is quite worthy of the highest consideration. He observes that the person for whom the period of longevity has been found out cannot live longer neither can he die earlier than the terms granted by the planets under such calculations. But the rules apply only to those who live on definite principles of conduct, i.e., those who follow good Dharma. But he rightly says that such terms cannot be enjoyed by adulterers and vagabonds as the Dharma Shastras have distinctly laid down loss of terms of life for evil or sinful deeds in this life. But in the last Yoga quoted as tending to give unlimited term of life this may be accomplished by taking such medical preparations as are recommended in the Ayurvedic principles. Thus all element of uncertainty is here introduced which really and convincingly changes the crooked theory of fatalism in Astrology and introduces human efforts by adopting which they can either shorten or lengthen the periods of life granted by the planets as the results of previous Karmic deeds. This is the key to the knowledge in Astrology, and must be carefully remembered.

End of Chapter VII.

CHAPTER VIII.

DASANTA KADASA.

Stanza 1.

The most powerful among Lagna, Surya and Chandra, with planets in their Kendras give results in the commencement, middle, and last periods of life respectively. If planets are not in Kendras, etc., the re-results will flow in the commencement even from Apoklima planets.

Notes.

This Stanza is very concisely put in and requires a great deal of explanation. After finding out the period of life for a man it becomes the duty of the astrologer next to detail out the good and evil terms which await him in his mortal career. The different Dasas or periods of planets are given here to enable man to know when and how he will get his good and evil fortunes. The Lagna represents body, (Physical), the Sun represents the Atma (Soul), and the Moon indicates manas (mind). Find out which of these three is the strongest in the horoscope and then describe the first Dasa to it. Then the second Dasa will be given by that planet which is the strongest in the Kendras. If there are two or more planets in the Kendras they give the Dasas consecutively one after the other according to the sources of strength they possess. After them comes the period of the most powerful planet in the next houses to Kendras or Panaparas. After all these planets are finished then comes the Dasa of the strongest planet in the Apoklimas. Suppose there are no planets in the Kendras then the second Dasa begins with that planet which is the strongest in the Apoklimas. Suppose there are no planets in the Kendras then all the planets will be in Apoklimas, and the most powerful among them will give the second Dasa, and the 3rd will be of him who is next to him in strength. If the original stanza is carefully read, it reads very ambiguous and smacks of a meaning quite inconsistent with the clear explanations of Bhatotpala and the valuable quotations from Yaçanaswarn and the author's own Swalpajatak Prathasa Vayasi Madya Anthayacha, etc. This refers to the three periods of man's life viz., 1st, 2nd and 3rd part and seems as if the Phalam (results) indicated happens in these three divisions.

In other words it looks as if the Kendra planets affect the man in the 1st part of his life, the Panapara planets in the second part and the apoklima planets in the last period of an individual's existence. But this is not so.

Stanza 2.

The planet most powerful gives the first Dasa extending over that period of life granted by him. If many planets are equally powerful than the first Dasa will belong to that planet who gives the longest term in life. If some planets give equal terms of life, then the first Dasa will be given by that planet who rises first.
Notes.

The extent of any planetary period will be that term which he gives after all the subtractions and multiplications, are made about him. First determine, who is the strongest among the Lagna Surya and Chandra and give the first Dasa to the most powerful of these. Then the 2nd Dasa will belong to him who is the strongest of the planets occupying the Kendras and if there are no planets in the Kendras then the strongest among the Panapara planets gets the first Dasa, if there are none there then ascribe the Dasa to the most powerful among the Apokhama planets. Suppose two planets are in exaltation and Virgothama. Then both of them are equally strong. Who should be preferred? He who gets the Nisarga strength (See at 21 Ch II). Suppose Sani has 3 sources of strength and Kuja has 2 sources. Then they both become equal because Kuja has Nisargika as against Sani. The Sthana Bala, Digbala, Kalabala, Chostabala, and Nisargika Bala, are the sources of strength as well as Shadravanga. If careful calculations are made the strength of each of the five planets, can be measured and if in all sources of strength two planets get equal strength then he who gives the longest term will begin his Dasa in preference to the other. But if after all these sources of strength are measured and two planets are found equal in strength then that planet out of these two, which rises from the Sun first, will get preference. As many sources of strength are recorded it would be almost difficult to say when any two planets get equal strength from all those sources. The word rising refers to the rising of the Lagna as well as the rising of a planet from the Sun. But the latter explanation is supported distinctly by a fine quotation from Mahanirhi Gargi.

Stanza 3.

The planet with the Dasanatha gives half the term of that Dasa with his results. The planet who occupies the thrivona from him gives one third of that period with his results. The planet in the 7th from him gives one seventh of his period. The planet who is in chaturmaha gives one fourth of that term. In this manner Lagna and planets give their Dasas and Antardasas.

Notes.

This enables the student to find out the lords of the subperiods. The planet in conjunction with the Dasa lord, cuts half of the latter period and gives during that half his own results. Lagna also gives its results as any planet does. That is, if the Lagna is with the lord of the Dasa.
or in the 5th or 9th or 7th, or 4th or 8th from him it takes of the proportionate periods named for the other planets and introduces during those periods its own Phalam or results.

The first subperiod in a Dasa must always be ascribed to the lord of that Dasa and then to others. If there are many planets with the Dasa lord then a subperiod must be ascribed only to one planet who is the strongest of them. This is implied by the singular noun the author has used in the text.

This is ably supported by Bhottapala with quotations from Gargi, Yavaneswara, Satyachariya and Yama.

There are some writers who say that the subperiod, will have to be distributed among all the planets in conjunction there, and some say, get the subperiod time for the most powerful amongst them and then distribute the same among all the planets in conjunction. But the commentator has shown his disapprobation of such hair-splitting.

Who is Yama? A quotation is made by Bhottapala and that is all we have here. It seems to have been a great astrological writer to be quoted along with men of Gargi’s stamp and by a commentator like Bhottapala.

Stanza, 4.

Bring all the fractions to a common figure, omit the denominators and multiply severally the numerators by the Dasa years and then divide the whole by the total of the numerators. By doing this you get the Anthardasa Periods.

Notes.

The term used in the original text is asthanam and means fractions. Bring these fractions to a common figure. Omit the denominators. Take each of the numerators and then multiply each figure by the Dasa number. Add all the numerators and then divide the total thus obtained by that figure. The quotient represents the subperiod in years, months, days, kalan etc.

Take an example: The whole is worked out by fractions so that these who know mathematics can easily understand them. Kuja is the Dasa-nakshana and he gives 3 years. Then we have \( \frac{1}{3} + \frac{1}{3} = \frac{2}{3} \).

So now asks us to add the numerators and we get 3. The Dasa has to be (1) multiplied by 2 and divided by the total 3, we get 2 years for the first lord. Then multiply the Dasa years 3 by one and divide it by 2 and we get one year. Therefore the first lord gets 2 years of sub-period, while the 2nd lord or one who is with him takes one year or half of the first sub-period.

Take another example.

There is one planet with the lord of the Dasa, another in the 6th, and another in the 7th. Then we have:

\frac{1 + \frac{1}{3} + \frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{8} + \frac{1}{16} + \frac{1}{32}}{32} = \frac{42}{32}

Suppose the lord of the Dasa gives 10 years. Take the first numerator 42 and multiply it by 16, we have 672. By adding all the numerators we get 83. Thus we have to divide 672 by 83 to get years etc.

\text{years} = 8 - 1 = 7\frac{5}{8}

Taking the second figure 21 and dividing it by 16 we get 38. Divide this by 83 and we get 1 year and 17 days. Taking the third figure 14 and multiplying it by 16 we get 224. This divided by 83 gives 2 years 8 months, 11 days. Then take the last figure 6 multiplying this with 16 we get 96 = 8 years, 1 year, 1 month and 26 days.

Some say that the Anthardasas are regulated in the following manner.

First the Anthardasa of the Dasa-lord, second the subperiod of the planet, with him, 3rd the planet in the Trikona, 4th the planet in the 7th, and 5th the planets who are, in Trikona, 5th and 9th, or in chaturasana 4th and 8th, then determine their relative strength and describe the subperiod. But this is not recognised as correct by Maharishis, and Gargi clearly explains that the Anthardasa should be distinctly regulated in accordance with the lords of the Dasas. More examples in this connection seem to be quite unnecessary as the principles have been fully demonstrated.
Stanza 5

The Dasa (period) of a most powerful and exalted planet is called the Poorna Dasa. The Dasa of a powerless planet is called the Ritaka. The period of that planet which is in the Navamsha of an unfriendly house is called the Astitapala.

Notes

The Dasa is the major period of a planet and its results will be as per names given to those Dasa Sampurna means that which gives full or complete good and to get this name the planet must not only be deeply exalted but must also be possessed of all the sources of strength detailed in this work.

Suppose a planet gets all these sources of strength and is not exalted or it is exalted but without some sources of strength, then it cannot be called Sampurna or perfect. As the author and the commentator have fixed the limits in definite language, very few people get this Sampurna Dasa. Bhatotpala says that during the time of such a Poorna Dasa the person will have good health, wealth, and reputation and they go on increasing daily. But if a planet is powerful and occupies exalted, then the Dasa is called Navamsa Dasa. Health and wealth Ritaka means poor or devoid of any power. During such times there will be bad health and losses.

Arista means undesirable or miserable and all these have been distinctly quoted by Bhatotpala from Bhagavan Gargi.

Stanza 6

The planet who has fallen from exaltation gives Avaraoh Dasa. If he joins friendly or exalted Navamsha he constitutes Madhya Dasa.

The planet who is ascending from his debilitation gives Arohan Dasa. If such a planet occupies debilitated or unfriendly Navamsha, he gives a worthless period.

Notes

Avaraoh means falling from a high to a low place or state, and Arohan means rising from a low place to a high place or state. As a planet falls from exaltation he must give bad, but if he occupies exalted or friendly Navamsha, then the results of his Dasa will be ordinary. The names are indicative of the results they produce and Sanskrit is so sweet, pleasant, rich, constructive and expressive that for those who have intellect to use, the language includes the whole gist of which the planet give or do. The words waxing and waning may be conveniently used. Waning indicates evil and waxing...
Stanza 7

If a planet is in a good house and joins debilitated or unfriendly Nakshatra, it gives mixed results. The names are fixed for these indicative of their results. I shall give the results of the periods of the Sun etc. later on.

Notes

By good houses the author means planets in deep exaltation, Mool Trikona, his own house and the house of a friendly planet. By misrak hemisphere or mixed results the author means wealth with disease, or health with poverty and so forth. The periods are:

1. Sampurna = Perfect or excellent results.
2. Poorna = Good results.
3. Adhama = Ordinary good with miseries.
4. Rikta = Poverty and Misery.
5. Anista = Bad in every way.

Stanza 8

If Lagna rises in a common sign, its Drekkanas constitute Adhama, Madhya and Puja respectively. If Lagna is movable, the order must be reversed. If Lagna is fixed, they constitute Ashubha, Jita, and Sama respectively. Lagna Dasas are thus arranged.

Notes

If the birth sign falls in the first Drakshana of Dwiswabha Rasi (common) it gives Adhama Dasa. If it falls in its 2nd Drakshana, it gives Madhaya or mixed and if it falls in its third Drakshana it gives Puja or good results. In movable or chara Rasis the first Drakshana gives Puja, the 2nd Madhaya and the 3rd Adhama results.

In fixed or Ethira Rasis, the first Drakshana gives bad results, the second gives Jita or desirable and the 3rd Sama or mixed results.

Stanza 9

Moon, Mars, Mercury, Venus, Jupiter, the Sun and Saturn give 9, 20, 18, 20, 50 years respectively of Nisargika Dasa. If in the previously stated Dasa period of the planets, they get also the Nisargika Dasa, they produce good results. Some of the Yavanas say that the Lagna Dasa comes in the end and gives good. Some do not accept this view.
The Moon gives one year of Nisargika Dasa from the time of birth. Mars, gives 2 years of his period after the Moon. This makes the total 3 years. Mercury then gives 9 years. This makes 12 years. Venus gives 20 years after Mercury, and this brings up the age to 32 years. Then comes the period of Jupiter for 18 years and this makes up a total of 50 years. Then comes the Sun with 20 years, making a total of 70 years. Then comes the long period of Saturn for 50 years and this brings up the total to 120 years. If they are powerful and occupy the upachayas 3-6-10-11 houses, they give good. If the reverse, they produce bad. The author says that he has great experience in these Dasas and their results are highly encouraging. Without mentioning the years Yavanasastra thus attributes the Nisargika planetary periods. Milk-drinking age for Chandra, teaching season for Kusa, student's life to Puda.

The 33rd year by the Nisargika system. If in these 20 years of Sakra, comes in the period of Sakra, as ascertained by the Dasamardasa, then that period will be good. Suppose from the 24th to 29th, the Antardasa of Sakra comes according to planetary periods. This period will be very favourable as the man has both the Nisargika and ordinary Dasa ruled by Sakra. From this it may be inferred that if the Nisargika is bad then his own period or subperiod in that time will also be bad and if that is good this will also be good.

But this view is negatived by direct quotations from Yavanasastra and Satyacharya who maintain that Nisargika Dasas are always good when the same planetary period joins them, according to old Yavanasa (Parana, Yavanasa) the Lagna and Nisargika Dasa comes after 120 years and it is good.
ulted and others retrograde occupy the Meena-navamsa. As Meena is powerful it gives 14 years. The planets, each of them being in Meena give 12 years. Excepting the Sun, the other planets, some exalted and others retrograde give thrice their terms or 36 years each. The Sun is in Mesha, and in its last Navamsha Dhanas he gives 27 years. Thus:

Total: 267 years.

The views of all writers agree in the fact that the Lagna Dasa becomes good only when it is powerful and not otherwise. The methods by which they approach the question differ.

Shruta Kirti says that the Dasa will be good or bad according to the strength or weakness of the Lagna. Varaha Mahima has already stated that the Lagna Dasa should be judged, in the movable, fixed and common signs, by the rising Drakshana at birth and Yavanas affirm that it is good. Varaha Mahima does not agree with Shruta Kirti because he advances an unsupported view of his own, at variance with the declared opinions of the great Maharishies.

STANZA, 10.

If the nathardasanatha is in Lagna, or if his friend is in Lagna, or if Lagna falls in his friend's or in his verge, the Dasa beginning then will be productive of good. Or if he is in the 5th, 6th, 10th, or 11th houses it is good. Or if Moon occupies the exaltation house of the Palawami or his friendly Rasi, or thirakona, or the 7th from him, it produces good. If the reverse it produces bad.

NOTES.

That planet whose subperiod commences is called the Palawami or lord of the Antarasati. If this planet, the lord of the Antarasati, is in birth or if his friends are in birth, or if birth falls in the verge of that planet, or if a good planet happens to be in Lagna at the commencement of that subperiod, or if the sublord is in 3, 6, 10, or 11 from Lagna, in all these cases the Antarasati produces good results.

If this sub-period comes during the period of friends, it becomes very good, but if it falls in that of unfriendly or evil planets, it produces evil. Now the author tries to answer a very im-important question: Under certain combinations sketched above, the planetary sub-period is said to be good. But does good come all along that period or when and how does it come? As the lord of the sub-period moves on (in gachara) day after day in the nodal signs he falls into temporary friendly relations with the other planets. Then, whenever Moon occupies or moves into each friendly planetary houses the person gets good during such times or if Moon occupies the exaltation sign of the Pakaswami or if the Moon falls into Upachaya houses from the lord of the sup period or in the 5th, 7th or 9th from him, these times must be considered as good. By good what are we to understand and with reference to what event in our life does it come? The Moon has been given 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th, 9th, 10th, 11th and the exaltation house of the Pakaswami, for producing good results. Now, find out which of the Dharnas from birth Lagna are occupied by the above signs and in which the Moon is moving and predict good only for such events indicated by those Dharnas. Suppose Moon is in the birth Lagna, Mercury is the Anthardasha-dhapatthu occupying the Lagna. As the Moon moves on, it occupies different positions from Mercury. Suppose Moon occupies the 5th or Leo, then predict good for events signified by the 5th house from Lagna viz. children, father, and intelligence. Suppose Moon is in Thula 7th, Buda in Lagna, good comes to the 7th Bhava which controls wife and passions. When the Moon occupies other houses than this, then he inflicts bad results upon bhavas indicated by those houses. All these statements are supported by Maharsi Gargi.

Stanza 11.

That dasa which begins when the Moon is in his own house is good and gives honour, wealth and happiness. That dasa which begins when Moon is in Kupu’s house makes his wife immoral, if that dasa begins when Moon is in Buda’s house it gives education, friends and wealth. If the dasa begins when Moon is in Simha it gives work for him in forts, forests, roads, houses and agriculture, if it begins when moon is in Sukha’s house he gives all desirable food, if it begins when Moon is in Sani’s houses it gives mean woman, if it begins when Moon is in Guru’s house, it gives reputation, wealth and happiness.

Notes.

The dasa or Antharadasa (period or sub-period) lord may happen to be any planet. Moon seems to have very great influence in producing misery and happiness. It must be remembered that Moon represents mind and controls it.
All happiness and misery affect the mind. Therefore Moon's position at the time of the commencement of the Dasa or its subperiod has great significance. Two sets of planetary movements are jumbled up here. At the time of birth the planets are fixed (with reference to Gochara) and also the birth sign. At birth they are there but later on they go on moving continuously. Having made calculations we get the Dasa and Antardasa as per directions given in the earlier Stanza in this Chapter, and suppose the Antardasa of Guru begins on a particular day. Find out the position of the Moon (in Gochara) on that day and then apply the above principles enumerated. If, at the time of the beginning of Guru's Antardasa the Moon is in Cancer he gives good. If the Moon were in Aries or Scorpio at that time his wife commits adultery. If Chandra is in Samba he will give work to the men in forests, fortifications, agriculture, roads and homes.

Stanza 12.

The Sun gives wealth by Nakha (nails or claws), teeth, skins, gold, cruelty, travel, kings and wars. He makes the man hot tempered determined in doing work, to getting reparation and good by courage. He gets misery through wife, children, wealth, enemy, weapon, fire, and king. The Sun gives liberty, fondness for sinful deeds, quarrels among his workmen or servants, complaints in chest, stomach and other diseases.

Notes.

The author has omitted the proper adjectives and verbs. The Sun is stated to give the above results, but when and under what circumstances, Varaha Mihira has not stated. In the first half of the Stanza the results are those which the Sun gives when he is favourable and well situated both in his Dasa and Antardasa. These results ascribed to the Sun must always be subjected to the influences of other planets and the students should be careful in venturing their future predictions. "Nakha," means scent or claws. Teeth refer to elephants' tusks, i.e., skins to tiger skins, i.e. He gets wealth by cruelty or tyranny or courage or in war or from kings. All these good results happen when the Sun is favourable.

By Bhargya used in the text Dhotaotpala explains it to mean equanimity of temper maintained under good and evil influences and events. When the Sun is unfavourable miseries arise through a man's wife, his children, his servants, his monetary transactions, his enemies, his weapons and through fire, and singly displeasure. By liberality or extravagance he gets into bad positions or debts and d-cultures. But when the Sun is good he is liberal in the right direction Varaha Nihana here gives what good and bad results may be expected in the Dasa of Ravi, and how those results are brought about. Suppose the Sun is exalted or is occupying favourable position then he gives the native money through gold, scents, claws, ivory, skins or hides, travelling, kings and war. He may get money through all these sources or through one or more of them according to the strength of the Sun. He may become a traveller and get money, become a king’s man or employee and thus secure wealth or he may trade in ivory, scents, claws, hides and other such articles.

During the Moon’s period the person gets money or profits from Mantras, Brahmins, sugarcane, milk, clothes, flowers, playing, oilseeds food and fatigue or pain. He will be fond of sleep, laziness, enduring pain, Brahmins and Devatas, getting female issues, possessed of good intelligence, reputation, earning and spending, and he will get quarters with his own men and those who are more powerful than himself.

Notes.

Varaha Nihana gives general results and does not specify the results are produced by good Moon and which are given by bad Moon. But a careful student can easily make a selection from the results given by the Moon waxing or waning. If the Moon is favourable the person may get money through Mantras. These may be the secrets of Saiva or Vaishnava or other Symbolic language, by practising which, man gets some cleverness, efficacy or reputation, and thus be able to make that source an open door for income. He gets money through priestly or religious men. He may deal in products of sugarcane like jaggery or sugar, &c., or milk and its products, curds, butter, milk, cheese, and ghee. He may deal in varieties of clothes or deal in flower sales or by arranging plays or taking part in them. Oil seeds referred to are sesamum seeds and the oil obtained by them. He sells food or arranges for their preparation and distribution. He will get many female children, and will be equanimous in temperament. His intelligence will be brightened and reputation enhanced. He will earn well and spend well. He will respect Brahmins and Devatas. The last are the purified beings higher in the scale of creation than Brahmins. Scientifical speaking the Laws of Continuity reveal to us that man is not the climax of creation. Beyond him two beings superior in moral and physical scale and endowed probably with far higher physical and mental potencies. When Moon is good he gives income or profit through these sources and when he is unfavourable he makes the man lazy and quarrel with his own men and with those who are far more powerful than himself. This undoubtedly leads him into the folds of great misery and poverty.

Stanza 14.

During the period of Mars there will be destruction of enemies, gains from rulers, lands, brothers, sheep and wool. He will have hatred among his children, wife, friends, brothers, learned men and preceptors. He will suffer from thirst, bloody disease, fever, bile, fractures. He will be foul of others' wives, sinful men and uncharitable deeds. He will be harsh, hot and evil tempered.

Notes.

Here again it is to be made out when Mars gives out all these results. If Mars is good he destroys a man's enemies and gives him wealth through kings, brothers, trading in sheep and goats and in woollen stuffs. But when he is bad he subjects the man to family hatred and the displeasure of his friends, educated men and his own preceptors.

The person suffers from all such complaints which arise from corruption of blood or by passing of blood, piles, discharging blood by nose or mouth, or through anus in stools. Mars produces thirst and bilious complaints. Fractures or broken limbs are under the direct control of this red planet. He will make the person adulterous, join the company of bad and sinful men and engage himself in unlawful or uncharitable deeds. In the text one reading is "Para Stri Krita Prithi" meaning fondness for other's wives. Another reading is "Rogaha" which means venereal complaints secured from his adulterous habits among others' wives. Both interpretations are acceptable.

Stanza 15.

In the period of Mercury the person gets wealth by embassy, friends, preceptors and Brahmins. He will be praised by learned men, and gets reputation thereby. He gets gold, mules, lands, and personal charm, and happiness. He will be witty and humorous, and will be clever in serving. He will have good mind, and charitable disposition. Harshness, fatigue, restraint or imprisonment, mental disease, and complaints from the three Dhatus will result.

Notes.

Mercury is a beneficial planet but all planets may be good or bad as they own or occupy good or bad houses. In Sanskrit he is called Saumya or Jupiter is the most beneficent planet we have and when he is well placed he gives honor, purity of mind, personal charm or beauty, great courage, charitable disposition, devotion and determination in the execution of great or important work. There are certain classes of men, among all nations, whose chief occupation consists in repeating their sacred books or prayers and who are remunerated either by ruling monarchs or by public subscription and charities. Such men are called in India Ghanapaties, and whose sole business consists in learning the Vedas by heart and repeating them in temples, large assemblies, and on marriage and other sacrificial occasions. Personal charm means that when a man is in the luck's way he gets an indescribable beauty which is attractive and which continues as long as the good day lasts. There are many men who are fair and well proportioned but who are somehow repulsive and hateful in appearance. This indescribable charm of fascination comes with good Nadas and disappears with evil Periods. Courage will be agreeable when it is shown in a righteous cause, but not when a man goes on murdering and committing deceits and other unlawful deeds. When the period of Guru is bad, troubles and anxieties arise from all the good sources named above and from ear disease and the enmity of lawless people. When he is good, the person gets excellent horses, much gold, elephants, varieties of rich clothes and much skill in carrying on diplomatic relations. These will also be sources of income for him and he will be honored and made much of, in their possession. Deep thinking, especially in unfortunate circumstances produces harmful effects on the mind and body and therefore becomes bad.
Notes

Stanza 17

During the period of Venus (Sukra) the person will be fond of music, pleasure, fine scents, good meals and drinks, clothes, females, gems, personal charm, sensual pleasures, yonis, desirable personages, friends, skill in merchandise, agriculture, treasure troves, wealth noted by communities, kings, wild people, vagabonds, and sorrow through friendship.

Notes

For all worldly purposes Venus, when auspicious, will give all desirable results and makes a man, what the general public call, materially happy. He gives him musical tastes and talents, taste in refined arts, enables him to procure all pleasures in the shape of food and sweet wines, fine clothes, luxurious meals, rich and delicious drinks, fine and costly gems, great personal charm and attractions, troubles through phle m, jealousy, wived, anger, derangement, dirt laziness, fatigue. He will be insulted and terrified by servants, children, and wife and will suffer the loss of a lamb.

Notes

Saturn is the lowest planet to do good and the highest to do evil. When he is good and suspicious the man becomes a leader of a community, town or city. He gets wealth through inferior grains, such as raggi, bamba maize, sesame seeds, birds, buffaloes, iron, hides and salt. If Saturn is well situated or respected by benefices, he will trade on a large scale in donkeys, camels, birds, and buffaloes. He may be engaged in selling or buying these in large quantities, or in transacting work in which the products obtained from these objects may be sold or bought. He will marry old women or have connection with such women. He may trade in iron, salt, claws, skins and feathers. He may become a leader or chief of his community or may be appointed as magistrate or emperor. But if Saturn is debilitated or is otherwise disposed towards the native unfavourably, then he gives a lot of miseries Various diseases of phlegm, attack him, jealousy troubles him a great deal and causes much pain, diseases from excess of wind in the body may also be predicted. He becomes easily excitable and the anger of himself and those with whom he comes in contact, will be a fruitful source of trouble and loss. His brain reels or derangement sets in, his surroundings will be disorderly and he suffers from laziness and constant fatigue. His servants try to lord over him and his wife and children terrify him or offer insults. He may lose a limb or an operation might take away one of his limbs. He will lose his wealth, his lands and his previous agreeable surroundings, and will suffer severely in every way.

Stanza 19

Good periods give happiness and bad periods produce misery. Mixed periods produce mixed results and the result of Lagna Dasa will be similar in nature to its lord.

Notes

In the course of the first fourteen verses Varaha Mihira has elaborately discussed about the planetary periods and subperiods, and, when they would be good and when they would be bad and what is meant by mixed Dasa. In all these cases, excitations, Vata thrones, own and friendly are beneficial conjunctions and aspects and occupations of good divisions, ownership and position, play a great deal and make the planet yield good results. By good, we must understand that the man will be honored, healthy influential, happy, educated, possessed of good children, wife and relations, surrounded by pleasant and agreeable friends, and respected and attractive. He will command all appendages to happiness or enjoyment, such as good houses, gardens, horses, carriages, clothes, gems, and valuable furniture.

During the period of evil planets the reverse happens. He loses wealth, houses, lands conveyances, character, becomes dull and careless of honour. Suffers from various complaints brought on by the three dhatus, Vatha—wind, Pittha—bile and sleshma—phlegm. He gets into all sorts of sorrow, becomes a drunkard or rake, incurs the displeasure of rulers, the hatred of relations and friends and will get lawless, untruthful and vagabond classes as companions. Wife, children and close relations begin to hate him and go where he will there will be insult, insubordination, and unpleasant senten ces striking him in the face.

During the mixed periods there will be good and bad, often following each other rapidly or coming together or partly neutralising each other. Results here it would be advantages—ous to summarise Bhattotpala's commentaries on this stanza as he throws considerable light on judging the good and bad results. Those planets who occupy aspachayas and who are bright give enjoyment. Those planets who occupy aspachayas who are struck by comets and meteors, who are dull and contracted in size give unfavorable results. Planet in swocha or Lalabala, gives favourable results, or when it is in moodathrihona or its own house. Planet in a friendly house gives mixed results. Planet in debilitation, unfriendly houses or divisions or defeated, or cut or assuming different colour, or lustreless or if it is unfriendly with the lord of the birth, or owns sixth or eighth house, the period of such a planet will be full of defects and miseries. Quoting Sathayacharya, Bhattotpala confirms what has been already stated above. The results of bensa dasa will be similar to what its lord is able to give. One born in Mesla will have the Dasas results similar to what Kuja is able to give, and one born in Vrishabha will have copies good divisions at the time of birth, he will not kill the person although he may be armed with deadly powers.

If the lord of the sub-period is powerless, he will not give any results, but he will not kill him although he may make him sick or suffer from accident. If the sub lord is a victor in the planetary war, and combines with the benefic or if he occupies exaltation he will not kill the man.

STANZA 20

In the period of each planet, the results will be based upon the materials or objects which have been detailed in the Saumgoya thayya, the means of livelihood detailed in the Karma Jivadhyaya. Results of the planets will be determined by the aspects, occupation and other combinations given elsewhere.

NOTES.

In the first two Chapters planets have been given various characteristics, events, and objects. (See Sta various Bhavas and they will be good when the planets are auspicious and bad when they are evil. In Chap XIX he sketches the results of planetary aspects and they must be similarly explained. Excepting in Nabhacayogas (Chap. XII) in all other Yogas or conjunctions, the results good or bad will be prominent in the planetary periods which are the most powerful among them in causing that Yoga. But in the Nabhac conjunctions the planets which cause those Yogas will be fruitful and will produce good results whenever their Dasas or Antharadanas come, whether in themselves or in the periods of other planets.

STANZA 21.

The different planets give their lustre of the Mahabhootas in their periods. This lustre or shade has to be identified by the nose, face, eyes, skin, and ear obtained by or through the earth, water, fire, air, and space (Akasa).

Notes

This is a difficult stanza and its real explanation will be the clue or key to the whole knowledge of the planetary periods and sub-periods. This stanza is supposed to enable a person to find out the planetary period and sub-period passing in the career of a man who has no horoscope or recollection of his time of birth (See stanza 6 Chap. II). Chaya is the word Varahamihira has used in the original. Chaya means the lustre or shade of the color the person possesses. It is natural to say that a man has good or bad charm or fascination about his person. This represents Chaya. The planets give such color or personal charm of the Mahabhoota which they represent. When a person emits good or sweet smell he represents the earthly characteristic of smell and therefore will be passing the period of Buda. This can be learnt by the nose. The watery characteristic is Rasa or taste and this has to be known by the tongue. When he eats luxurious or good meals, he will be passing the periods of Sukra or Chandra, both of whom represent water. The Sun and Mars govern fire and its characteristic is beauty, and this has to be learnt by vision or eyes. When a man is handsome or fascinating, then he must be passing the periods of Ravi and Kuja. When air controls a man, the body will be soft and this can be identified by the skin which is governed by Saturn, and therefore known by the touch. When Akasa controls him, its characteristic of sound predominates, and the period of Jupiter can be identified by the good speech of the man by the ear. Varahamihira refers to this Chaya elaborately in his Hrutschastam in Chap. LXXIII.
horses, bulls, etc., and enjoys them. A friend of his who keeps none of these goes regularly on a drive or ride with him and he also has this Vahan Yoga but in a powerless form. When they are driving they see another friend of theirs and give him a lift for a certain distance. Then again his coachman and groom have Vahan Yoga for they mount the carriage before and get down the carriage after the master does so. These many of these may have constant thoughts about buying and keeping carriages while others may simply be dreaming of horses and riders during their sleep. Provision is made in Astrology about these differences in enjoyment and the causes are traceable in the relative powers of the planets.

If one planet represents two contrary results, the result will be destruction to those events. But if one is stronger than the other, the stronger will prevail. If one planet represents one and another indicates a contrary result, there will be both the results. Planets give good or bad in their own periods.

Notes

When a planet, by its Dasa, will give gold, while by other combinations (Astaka Varga, etc.) it takes away the gold, then the result will be the man gets no gold at all. But of these two sources of power, of giving and destroying whichever is stronger will prevail. When both are equal in a planet they produce nothing.

But suppose Jupiter gives gold and Mars takes it away at the same time, the person gets the gold and loses it again. When a planet gives by one source of power gold, and by another source silver, what would be the result? Some say that according to the strength of sources it will give gold as well as silver while others maintain that whichever source is the strongest the result will be similar to that source. If the silver source is stronger, then he gives silver and suppresses gold and if gold source is stronger he gives gold and suppresses silver. But I hold that when a planet has various sources of strength independently, it is reasonable to think that such sources produce results which are ascribed to them.

End of Dasa Antardasa

Astaka Varga

Stanza 1

The Sun is favourable from his position at the birth in 1, 11, 4, 8, 2, 10, 9 and 7. He is similar from Mars and Saturn. From Venus he is good in 7, 12 and 6. From Jupiter in 8, 5, 11, 6. From Moon in 10, 3, 11, 6. From Mercury in 3, 10, 11, 6, 12, 9 and 5. From Lagna in 10, 3, 11, 6, 4 and 12. He is favourable.

Notes

There are two sets of conjunctions to be considered. One set consists in fixing the planets correctly in their positions at the time of birth. But at any given time after birth, the planets by their incessant movements, will be found in different situations both from the Lagna as well as from their own fixed positions at the birth time. Astaka Varga means eight sources of energy for each planet including the Lagna. Rahu and Ketu are omitted throughout this work except for names and direction for Rahu. Say a horoscope contains the Sun in the 10th, which is Kumbha. Vrishabha is birth and Ravi is in Kumbha, or 10th from it. But after 4 months Ravi will not be in Kumbha but by Gochara he will be in Mithuna. He is now really in the 5th house from himself, and the 2nd house from Lagna. As he keeps on moving from day to day he forms various angles from his original position not only with reference to himself, but also with reference to all the other planets. Take an example. At birth the combinations stood thus:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Sun</th>
<th>Rahu</th>
<th>Birth</th>
<th>Swi</th>

By understanding the principles laid down in this Chapter the author enables the reader to know the good and bad results which the every day moving planets give when they form various angles from the original positions occupied by them. He has already given the results of Dasas and Antardasas, but the computer observes the results from these will be more certain in their influences on men. In this Chapter the results sketched may be marked by figures and symbols. In the horoscope given we see the Sun in Kumbha. The following from Kumbha occupied by Ravi will produce good results, and in these houses, purusha, and in the rest put the figure 1. Thus in that horoscope writing the first from Kumbha is itself, the 2nd is Meena, the 4th is Vrishaba, the 7th is Simha, the 8th is Kanya, the 9th is Thula, the 10th is Vrischika and the 11th is Dhanas.

This means that whenever the Sun moves in these houses where ciphers are placed, he forms such chemical combinations, or takes such angular positions, that he is able to produce good to the native. But when he moves in houses in which the figure one (1) is marked, he does not give good results. The Sun gives good in similar positions from Mars and Sani as have been sketched for himself here. Take now the position of Sukra. He is in Dhanas at the time of birth. The following positions taken by Ravi from him are good.

That is when the Sun moves in Vrishaba, Mithuna, and Vrischika, he takes favourable angles from Sukra and produces good. In other houses he shows evil with reference to Sukra. From Guru, he is favourable in 9, 5, 11, 8. Referring to the horoscope above we find Guru in Kumbha.

Thus when the Sun moves in Mithuna, Kataka, Thula, and Dhanas, he is good, with reference to Guru and is unfavourable in other houses.

From Chandra in 10, 3, 11, and 6, Ravi is good.
In the horoscope Chandra is in Mesha. When Ravi moves in Mithuna, Kanya, Makara and Kumbha he produces good and in the rest unfavourable results. From Buda in 10, 3, 11, 6, 12, 9 and 5, Ravi is good. We find Buda in Kumba at birth. When Ravi moves in Mesha, Mithuna, Kataka, Thula, Vrischika, Dhana and Makara, he forms favourable angles and produces good results. From Lagna Ravi is good in 10, 3, 11, 6, 4, and 12.

When Ravi moves in Kataka, Simha, Thula, Kumbha, Mesha & Mesha he produces good and in the rest unfavourable results. I have shown to each of the planets and Lagna the favourable and unfavourable angles formed by Ravi in his gochura movements, and this is called Suryastaka Verga. The author gives such positions for all the planets and whenever in a house, we have more ciphers, that indicates good Ciphers and figures, are technical. Ciphers are placed for good angular positions and figures for unfavourable positions.

STANZA 2 CHANDRASTAKA VERGA.
Chandra in 6, 2, 10, 11 from Lagna.
in 6, 3, 10, 11, 2, 5, 9 from Kuja.
in 6, 3, 10, 11, 7, 1 from himself.
in 6, 3, 10, 11, 8 and 7 from Ravi.
in 6, 3, 11, and 5 from Sun.
in 5, 2, 11, 8, 1, 4, 7 and 10 from Buda.
BRĪHAT JATAKA.

in 12, 11, 8, 1, 4, 7 and 10 from Guru.
in 9, 4, 5, 3, 11, 10 and 7 from Sukra produces good.

Kuja in 8, 6, 10, 11 and 5 from Ravi.
in 3, 6, 11, 10, and 1 from Lagna.
in 3, 6 and 11 from Chandra.
in 1, 4, 7, 10, 3, 11 and 2 from himself.
in 9, 11, 8, 1, 4, 7 and 10 from Sani.
in 6, 3, 5 and 11 from Buda.
in 6, 12, 11 and 3 from Sukra.
in 10, 12, 11 and 6 from Guru produces good.

Buda in 2, 1, 8, 11, 9, 4, 3 and 5 from Sukra.
in 2, 1, 11, 8, 9, 4 and 10 from Kuja and Sani.
in 12, 6, 11 and 8 from Guru.
in 3, 11, 6, 5 and 11 from Ravi.
in 9, 11, 6, 5, 12, 1, 10 and 3 from his own position.
in 6, 2, 11, 8, 4 and 10 from Chandra.
in 6, 2, 8, 11, 4, 10 and 1 from Lagna.
will produce good results.

Stanza 5. Gurustaka Verga.

Guru in 10, 2, 1, 8, 7, 11 and 4 from Kuja.
in 10, 2, 1, 8, 7, 11 and 3 from himself.
in 10, 2, 1, 8, 7, 11, 4, 3 and 9 from Ravi.
in 5, 2, 9, 10, 11 and 6 from Sukra.
in 7, 11, 2, 9 and 5 from Chandra.
in 3, 6, 5 and 12 from Sani.
in 10, 5, 6, 2, 4, 11, 1 and 9 from Buda.
in 10, 5, 6, 2, 4, 11, 1, 9 and 7 from Lagna.
produces good results.

Sukra in 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 11, 8 and 9 from Lagna.
in 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 11, 8, 9 and 12, from Chandra.
in 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 11, 8, 9 and 10 from himself.
in 4, 3, 5, 9, 10, 8 and 11 from Sani.
in 8, 11 and 12 from Ravi.
in 9, 10, 11, 8 and 5 from Guru.
in 5, 2, 11, 9 and 6 from Buda.
in 3, 9, 6, 5, 11 and 12 from Kuja.
produces favourable results.

Stanza 7. Saniastaka Verga.

Sani in 3, 5, 11 and 6 from himself.
in 3, 5, 11, 6 10 and 12 from Kuja.
in 1, 4, 7, 10 11 8 and 2 from Ravi.
in 3, 6, 10, 11, 1 and 4 from Lagna
in 9, 11, 6, 10, 12 and 8 from Budh
in 3, 8 and 11 from Chandra in 6, 11 and 12 from Sakra
in 11, 12 5 and 6 from Guru
produces good

Notes
Readers must be very careful as regards predictions. They are based upon a large number of facts and events, that when persons do not take into account all the sources of strength and weaknesses relating to the positions, conjunctions and aspects the planets possess along with the Lagna, they may not be successful.

Stanza 9
The places mentioned above are good and the rest are evil. The good or bad results will beascertained by the ciphers and figures marked as stated above and the balances show good Planets in Upachaya, in friendly and own houses, and excitations will give plenty of good, planets in Apschaya, in Necla or unfriendly houses give no good.

Notes

endless positions both with reference to themselves as well as with reference to other planets and the birth sign. Light, heat, and other invisible agencies radiated and reflected by the planets, will undergo endless varieties of changes and the ancient Maha Rishies seem to have found out that when they move in certain houses they shed good influences and when they move in other houses, they produce bad or neutralise the good effects indicated. Therefore when these ciphers and figures have been placed as per directions given above, we get a certain number of ciphers and a certain number of figures. Deduct the figures from the ciphers in each sign and take the balance of ciphers. In each Rasi if the balanced ciphers are eight then predict complete good, but when the ciphers are 6, then 6th of the original good only has to be expected. When there are only four ciphers, the good will be half and when there are only 2, the good anticipated will only be ⅛ of the promised benefit. But when the Rasi contains no cipher there will be only evil there.

Referring to the horoscope given in
In Mesha we have five figures and three ciphers. Deduct the ciphers, we have only two figures. Therefore whenever Kuja moves in Mesha he causes 3ths of bad to the man concerned.

In Vrishaba a similar result. and in Mithuna the same. But in Kataka, figures and ciphers are equal and cancel each other. Therefore when Kuja moves in Kataka there is neither good nor bad. In Simha we have five ciphers and 3 figures. Therefore there is a balance of two ciphers and whenever Kuja moves in Simha he produces 4th of the happiness. In Kanya we have 6 figures and two ciphers, subtracting we have four figures and therefore when Kuja moves in Kanya he will give 4th of the evil. In Thula we have 3 figures and five ciphers and therefore there will be 5th of good. In Vrischika we have seven figures and one cipher and deducting this from seven, we get 6 figures thereby indicating that when Kuja moves in Vrischika he produces 4th of bad. Similarly it must be judged for all other signs. But when there are 4 ciphers and four figures as in Kumbha given above, then there will be no result. When there are eight ciphers, the best results must be expected, and when there are eight figures the result will be most unfavorable. This is supported by quotations from Badarayana. There are many Astrological writers who say that the results predicted by the Gachara will be very general and cannot be depended upon, while the results predicted by the system of calculations based on Astaka Verga Shodhana are certain and could be depended upon.
Badarayana and Yavaneswara have given the results to each of the planets in Astaka Verga and say that the predictions based upon these will be certain. They further say that this Astaka Verga should be specially consulted in Yatra or travelling. If a planet gives good in Astaka Verga and occupies Oopachaya from Moon or birth, then that planet will give much good Devakirthi clearly says that the Oopachayas should be taken from birth as well as from the Moon. If a planet becomes bad in Astaka Verga and he also occupies the Apachayas 1, 2, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 12 or unfriendly or Neecha houses then he gives immense bad. These Oopachayas must be referred to birth time and not as per Gochara. Yavaneswara and Devakirthi are quoted by Bhatotpala to clear this point and Satyacharya supports this view. All the planets will give good or bad only when they are powerful except Chandrini. Even when Chandrini is auspicious, if he is powerless he will give evil results. Devakirthi supports this view. Summing up all, the learned commentator says that these states of planets, viz. exaltation, Moolathrikona, own and friendly houses, Debilitation and unfriendly houses have always reference only to the time of birth and not to the Gochara movements. But the favourable or unfavourable positions as ascertained by Astaka Verga and Bindu (cipher) Shodhana (examination) refer to the movements of the planets in their Gochara.

CHAPTER X

KARMAJEYA—PROFESSION

STANZA I

From the Sun, etc., the acquisition of wealth must be predicted through father, mother, enemy, friend, brother, woman and servant respectively, when he occupies the 10th house from birth or Moon, or through lord of the Navamsa occupied by the lord of the 10th, from birth, Moon or the Sun.

Notes

This is a very important chapter in as much as this gives us all the ways and means by which a man earns his money and livelihood. The callings of men are at various, as interesting and as diversified, as the individual peculiarities they exhibit, and it becomes extremely important to learn the details given here as carefully as possible.

Take the Lagna or the Moon at birth, and see who occupies the tenth house from it. If the Sun is in the 10th house the person inherits paternal property, if Moon is there he gets money through the mother. If Mars occu pies it he procures wealth through his enemies. If Mercury joins the 10th, he gets money through friends. If Jupiter is found there, the person has wealth through brothers. If Venus is in the 10th, then money comes through women, and if Saturn occupies it, servants fetch him money.
Some astrologers say that the most powerful among the two must be found, and then the source of wealth predicted from the planet who occupies the 10th from it. Suppose there are two or more planets in the 10th from Laguna or Chandra or from both, then money flows in through these channels which are ascribed to the planets in their Dasas and anu-dasas. If there is no planet in the 10th house from Laguna or Chandra, Yamaha Mihira thus proceeds to find out the source of income. Take the lord of the Navamsa occupied by the lord of the 10th from, Bha (Lagna) Indin (Moon) and Arka (Sun), and ascribe the acquisition of wealth to such methods or processes which are controlled by that planet. Bhagavan Gargi supports the above views distinctly.
As a man may get money from various ways both at one time as well as at different periods in his life, the view taken by Dhatojopala and his quotations from Gargi seem to be the best in my humble opinion. A man may be a lawyer, may have lands yielding produce, may carry on ready money transactions, may be a paid trustee or manager in some charitable institution or temple, and may hold shares in banks, funds and other speculations, and be at the same time a Government Pleader paid so much per month. His father and mother may give him money, his wife may bring dowry and his brothers and friends may also help him.
Therefore the view advanced by some that the income should be ascribed to the planet in the 10th either from the Moon or the birth, whichever is the stronger, falls to the ground and does not receive support from eminent writers like Gargi.

Stanza 2.

If the lord of the Navamsa is the Sun, the person gets wealth through scents, gold, wool, medicines, etc. If the Amsa Lord is Moon, wealth flows through agriculture, watery products and dependence upon women, etc.
If the Lord of the Navamsa is Mars,
he gets money through minerals, fire, weapons, adventures and physical strength.

If the lord of the Navamsa is Mercury, money is obtained by writing, mathematics, poetry and fine arts.

Notes.

When there are no planets in the 10th house from the Moon or the birth sign, then we have to take the lord of the 10th house from the birth, Moon and the Sun and then find out which Navamsa, is occupied by him. Then take the lord of that Navamsa and if he is the Sun, the person makes money by scented articles, gold, wool, and medicines. He may be a medical man himself or may be an attendant or nurse upon the patients. If he is the Moon, he gets money by dealing in coral, pearls, shells, agricultural products and dependances upon women. If Mars owns that Navamsa, he will make money by minerals, ores, or compounds, by weapons of various kinds, by fire in being engaged in fire works, kitchens, engine driving or wherever there is work connected with fire and by rash adventures or speculations and venturesome deeds or such actions, in which physical strength is utilised. If Mercury becomes the lord of that Navamsa, the person becomes a writer, mechanic, painter, sculptor, engraver, poet, mathematician, architect or scent maker.

Stanza 3.

If the lord of the Navamsa is Jupiter, he gets money from Brahmins, Priests, Gods, in mines or manufactures, and from charities. If that lord is Venus he makes money by gems, silver, cows, buffaloes etc.

If he is Saturn he gets money from labour, by execution, carrying, and by low artesanship. The source of income may be such as that which is controlled by the lord of the Navamsa, occupied by the lord of the 10th in Gochara.

Notes.

When Jupiter becomes the lord of the Navamsa occupied by the lord of the 10th, the person gets money through Brahmins, Priests, educated classes, temples and charities, mining operations and manufactories, sacrifices, discipleship, pilgrimage, and Kedda operations. When Sakra becomes the Navamsa lord, he gets wealth by gems, metals, cows, and buffaloes. When he is Saturn the man earns money by labour, such as travelling and carrying, by being an executioner or hangman, & such mean trades which are against the traditions of his family. All these refer to the planetary combinations at the time of birth. But now Varaha Mimira gives a clue to read the sources of income by the Gochara of the planets. Karmasa is the lord of the 10th. Find out in which Navamsa he is at any given time, by the Gochara movements. Then ascribe such means of income as are controlled by the lord of that Navamsa. This is supported by quotations from Gargi. This Gochara method, says the learned commentator, applies only to those who have their birth horoscopes but not to others. There are many who have, no horocopee and for whom best horoscopes (Nasta Jatakas) are prepared according to the methods given at the end of this book by Varaha Mihira. To such this system probably does not apply.

Stanza 4

Planets give wealth similar to the houses they occupy. If the Sun is exalted and powerful the man gets wealth by self-acquisition. If powerful benefics are in Lagna, 2nd or 11th, he gets money by many ways.

Notes:

Take the lord of the 10th from Chandra or Lagna, and find out in what house he is. If the house he occupies is his own he gets money in his house. If it is his friends then he gets money through friends. If he occupies unfriendly houses then he makes money through his enemies. If he happens to be Sun, and is in his exaltation, and is otherwise powerful the person acquires wealth by self exertion. This is clearly explained by Gargi. By marking the Sun with this characteristic of self acquisition it sounds as if other planets are not able to do such work. If all the benefics are powerful and occupy the Lagna, 2nd and 11th houses, the person will make money, by various ways. The commentator says that such a person will succeed in any business he undertakes, however divergent it may be from his original work.

End of Chapter X.

CHAPTER XI RAJA YOGA.

Raja Yoga = Combination for Royalty.

Stanza 1.

Yavanas say that three or more cruel planets in exaltation will produce a cruel minded king. Jeevasarma and his school say that exalted cruel planets will not raise a man to kingly power.

Notes.

Three or more planets when exalted make a person king when born in a royal family, and five or more planets exalted make any person a king. The same may be said of planets in mooltrikones. This is a well known principle of astrology found in all works on the subject. Yavanas and Jeevasarma differ in this combination for a king. Yavanas (Yavenacharya, Yavanashrama and their followers) maintain that when 3 cruel planets are exalted they raise a man to king's position and make him a cruel or tyrannical ruler. Jeevasarma says that three exalted cruel planets cannot make a man king, but will produce a rank almost equal to this, and the person will be wealthy cruel and evil minded. Manmathacharya supports Yavana's views and says other ten conjunctions can easily be worked out. If any one of the four planets, Saturn, Mars, Jupiter, and the Sun, is exalted, with that exalted planet in birth and with Moon in his own house, we get four combinations for royalty. Thus—Take Aries as Lagna with the Sun there and Moon in Cancer (1). Take Cancer as Lagna with the Moon and Jupiter there (2). Take Libra with Saturn there and Moon in Cancer (3) and take Capricornus as Lagna with Mars there and Moon in Cancer (4). Thus we have 16 combinations for royalty sketched here.

In all the latter 16 cases there will be no yoga if Chandra is not in his own house. I beg to offer a few observations here based upon an examination of thousands of horoscopes extending over a period of thirty years. I have in my possession many horoscopes with Chandra and Guru in Karka as the Lagna and the men are in ordinary circumstances. Then again there are many who have Ravi in Mesha as birth sign and Chandra in Karka, who have no pretensions to royalty or even a high social life. Dhatotha is mercilessly silent in this connection and I feel almost certain, that whatever may have been the strength of the planets in those good old days, (Vasa Mihira lived nearly 19 centuries), to produce Rajayoga, when one of the four planets was in exaltation with birth there and Chandra in his own house, they have lost that good influence of making persons kings or even his equals, and consistent with those great authors condition and grasp of Astrololur; it may be said that the last combinations would raise a man to kingly or ruler’s position only when he is born in a royal family but not otherwise.

Stanza 3.

If Lagna or Chandra occupies Varagotama and has the aspects of four or more planets (excepting Chandra) twenty two Rajayogas are generated.

Notes.

By these combinations forty four Rajayogas are arranged thus—Varagotama is the 1st, 5th and 9th Navamsas of moveable, fixed and common signs (see at 14. ch. 1).

But for easy grasp it may be thus explained—if the Navamsa of any sign falls in it, it becomes Vargotama. Thus Mesha Navamsa in Mesha, Vishaba Navamsa in Visshabha, Mitibuna Navamsa in Mithuna and Karka Navamsa in Karkata become Vargotama. If Lagna rises in Vargotama and is aspected by four or more planets twenty two Rajayogas are arranged. Chandra is excepted.
in Thula, Meha and Kataka, they generate two Raja Yogas.

Notes

Here five Raja Yogas are sketched. Sam in Kambha, Ravi in Meha, Chandra in Vrishabha and Lagna falls in one of these, and Buda, Guru, and Kuja are in Mithuna, Simha and Vrishchika respectively, we get three Raja Yogas by Lagna being placed (1) in Kambha (2) in Meha and (3) in Vrishabha. If Lagna falls in Thula or Vrishabha with Sun and Chandra in exaltation and if Buda and Ravi are in 6th (Kanya) and Sukra, Kuja and Guru are in Thula, Meha and Kataka respectively, two Raja Yogas arise. The expression "in the 6th" in this stanza is interpreted as the 6th from the Lagna, but the quotation from Badarayana clearly explains the position of Ravi and Buda in Kanya as the 6th from Meha. When Sukra is in Thula, Ravi and Buda cannot be in Meha.

Stanza 5

If Kuja is in Makara, Ravi and Chandra in Dhanus, and Lagna rising in Makara with Sun in it, the person becomes a king. If in the above combination Moon joins Mars in birth, or if Saturn and Moon are in the 7th, or if Jupiter is in Dhanu, and if Aries becomes Lagna with the Sun there exalted, the person becomes a king.

Stanza 6

Notes

Three separate combinations of planets are given here for producing kings.

1. If Makara rises at birth with Sun and Kuja in it, and if Ravi and Chandra occupy the 12th from it viz. Dhanus.

2. If Makara rises with Kuja and Chandra in it and with Ravi in Dhanus.

3. If Meha rises with Rahu and Chandra and Sun in Thula, and with Guru in Dhanus, the person rises to royal power and becomes a king. In the first part of the Stanzas, the author uses "Yama Lagna" which means, according to some, the houses of Yama (SaU) or Makara and Kumbha, and according to others it may be any Lagna with Yama (SaU) in it. This view is supported by Badarayana. Ishatpal prescribes the first as meaning Makara alone, and such a view is clearly supported by Mandavya.
With the other planets in any order.

This is a powerful combination and the prince becomes a great King.

Stanza 10.

If Capricornus is birth with Saturn in it and if Aries, Cancer and Leo are combined with their lords and if Gemini and Libra are occupied by Mercury and Venus the person becomes a renowned ruler.

Notes.

This is a good conjunction of planets and the king born must become famous.

With Jupiter in any other house.

Reading the commentaries of Bhutotpala 1 expected an explanation as regards the relative positions of the Sun and Mercury. Mercury never goes beyond 25° of the Sun either in the front or in the rear. Then again, in this combination Mercury is placed in Gemini while Venus is placed in Libra. This combination can never happen it is explained thus. Now in any house Mercury can only be 21° distant from the sun. Suppose the Sun is placed in the 10° of Leo. Then the most distant position that Mercury can attain would be the 24th° from him i.e. Mercury can go back as far as the 16th° of Cancer.

Venus never goes beyond 47° from the sun and thus the extreme limit at which Venus can be placed from the Sun in front would be 47° i.e. Venus may be found in the 27th° of Virgo. Thus the greatest distance at which Mercury and Venus may be imagined to be will be 21 + 47 = 71 degrees. Thus if Mercury is in the 16th° of Cancer Venus will be in the 27th° of Virgo. This is clearly explained by Bhatotpala in stanzas 8 chapter 7th (see notes to st. 6 ch. VII). But here there are three main raas separating Venus and Mercury and the mean distance must be more than 50 degrees which appears absurd according to present movements of the planets. Then again Mercury is placed at a distance of more than 30 from the Sun which is also absurd. But there are some places in this work where Varahamihira gives conjunction of planets which are impossible under present conditions but which probably might have been possible under a different set of planetary movements with velocities considerably differing from those of the present.

Varahamihira says in such places that as these yugas were found recorded by the Ancient Maharishas he has placed them also in his works but which, he clearly says, could not happen as being opposed to present Mathematical calculations relating to planetary bod and the Sun may be placed in any house. Very rarely can such a combination as Indra being in the fourth from Sukra may happen. Theoretically this may not be improbable as the distance may be within 70° from each other.

STANZA 12.

In the combinations for royalty sketched before, persons born in poverty will become kings, much more so persons born in royal families. The combinations to be given hereafter will make men kings who are born in royal families and others born in ordinary families will become equal to kings.

Notes.

In all the conjunctions of planets stated in the last eleven stanzas, even persons born in humble families become kings and therefore, remarks Varahamihira, there is no doubt whaterer of persons becoming rulers who are born in royal families. Whatever may be the rational of the political codes, and the moral codes taking their stand upon politics, there is not the slightest doubt that even fools born in royal families have greater chances of becoming rulers than the best of men born in the humbler spheres of life. The starting advantage possessed by royal family men is tremendous and throws the best men in the humbler families far behind them to achieve distinction even the fool of an emperor’s son is at once declared to succeed his father while the best men in the empire will be simply asked to obey that fool and be guided by him. Therefore Varahamihira realises this inequality and subscribes royal powers to persons only when the planetary combinations are very very powerful. Thus in all the previous Raja Yogas, he says, that men will become kings or rulers who are born in such combinations. But in the combinations he is going to mention hereafter, only those who are born in royal families become kings while those who are born in poor families will rise up to great eminence and will be similar to kings but will not become actual kings.

STANZA 13.

If there are three or more powerful exalted or Mulathrikona planets in a horoscope a person born in royal families will become a king. If the number is five or more, then persons born in ordinary families will become rulers. If these planets are powerless the persons will not be kings but wealthy men.

Notes.

There must be three or more powerful planets in exaltation or Mulathrikona to make a man king when he is born in a royal family. If there are five or more similar planets in a horoscope, the man becomes a ruler wherever he may be born. But if the three or more planets in exaltation or Mulathrikona are not powerful (Kal, Harshaguna, Chasta, Dik etc) then even a man born in a royal family will not become a king but will remain a wealthy man. All the planets need not be in exaltation or Mulathrikona. Suppose two are exalted and one in Mulathrikona, does the person become a ruler? If born in a royal family he will become a king, but in other families he will become a wealthy man. If there are three planets in Mulathrikona and two planets in exaltation the person becomes a king wherever he may be born. If there are more planets, then certainly Rajayoga happens.

Stanza 14.

If Aries is Lagna with the Sun half-rising and Moon in it, Mars in Capricorn and Jupiter in Sagittarius the person born in a royal family becomes a king.

Notes

Mesha must be the lagna with Chandra in it and Ravi rising with his disc half-visible in the horizon, Kuja, in Makara and Guru in Dhanus to constitute the above combination. A person born in ordinary family in such a time will become wealthy and influential. The word used in the original is katha which means the Sun half visible in the eastern horizon. Some read it as laya which means Leo or Loka. This is also acceptable as it forms Mulathrikona for Ravi.

Stanza 15.

If Sukra occupies the house which from the 4th from Lagna, Chandra occupies the 8th and the rest are in 3rd, 1st and 11th houses, the person becomes a king.

Notes

This is possible for two lagnas. Kumbha as Lagna will have Sukra in the 4th in Vrubhada, or Kataka as Lagna will have Sukra in the 9th in Thula. In this combination a person born in royal family will become a king and one born in any other family will become wealthy.

Stanza 16.

If powerful Bada is in Lagna, a powerful benefic in the 9th and the rest of the planets in 2nd, 8th, 3rd 6th, 10th or 11th, the person born in a royal family will become a good and charitable king.

Notes

The Lagna must be combined with Bada while Guru or Sukra or both must be in the 9th. The rest of the planets must be in the 2nd, 3rd 6th, 9th, 10th or 11th house or in two or three of these houses in any order. The idea seems to be that the remaining five planets must be in any one or more of the houses named and not outside. Some read the 4th as for sukha and make the 4th house occupied by a benefic. Under such a combination the person will become a good natured king if born in a royal family and a wealthy man in other families.
STANZA 17.

If Vrishabha is Lagna and in the 1st, 2nd, 6th and 11th, Chandra, Guru, Sani and other planets occupy them respectively the person becomes a Raja. If Guru is in the 4th, Chandra and Ravi in the 10th and Sani in Lagna and other planets in the 11th the person becomes a king.

Notes.

Here the Lagna is not given and I have simply put it in Makara. The Lagna therefore, may be placed in any house, only there should be Sani in it.

STANZA 18.

If Chandra, Sani and Guru are in the 10th, 11th and 1st respectively, Bada and Keda in the 2nd and Sukra and Ravi in the 4th, the person becomes a king. If Keda and Sani are in Lagna, Chandra, Guru, Sukra, Ravi and Bada are in the 4th, 7th, 9th, 10th and 11th houses respectively the person becomes a Raja.

Here we notice the same objection of posting, Bada in the 3rd house from Ravi backwards and thus giving him a minimum distance of more than 90 degrees which is not possible now. It is curious that even a great scholar and mathematician like Bhatotpala does not point out these inconsistencies.
The author makes no mention of it. But as Bhatotpala clearly says that the greatest distance between Ravi and Buda can only be 25 degrees, all combinations in which this measurement is transgressed must be taken to be those which the ancient Maha Lila have written down in their works and which have been stated by Varahamihira in accordance with them.

(See commentaries of Bhatotpala on St 6 ch VII and my notes on that)

In the 2nd combination we have

In the first as well as in the second the Lagna has been simply given by me by way of illustration. Any Lagna may be taken provided the planets are given their allotted places. In all these combinations kingly power must be predicted only for those who are born in royal families but for others born in humble surroundings great wealth and position may safely be predicted.

Stanza 19

- The person gets the royal power in the Antardasa of the most powerful planet or of the planet who combines the 10th or the 1st. He loses that power in the Antardasa of the planet who is in unfriendly or usccha house because such period is called chandra dasa. Then he must seek protection from a powerful king.

Notes

By this stanza the author enables the astrologer to fix the period when a person may get kingly power and when he may expect to lose it or try to get over the misfortune. Take the planets in the 1st and 10th and whichever is the stronger, then predict the acquisition of power during his antardasa. But his antardasas may come several times and then the author says, that antardasa must be fixed as power-giving which appears as the most powerful with reference to Gochara movements. If there are no planets in the 1st and 10th then find out which of the whole lot of planets is the strongest and ascribe the power to him during his antardasa. Such kingly power or office will be lost when the antardasa of a planet which occupies an unfriendly or debilitated Rasi intervenes. This is called chandra dasa which means accident or misfortune as well as a hole and therefore he gets into unfortunate position by losing his power. Then he must seek protection from a powerful king and thus try to get rid of his threatened misfortune. Bhagavan Garga clearly speaks to a similar effect and the matter is also referred to by Varahamihira in his Yatra a book on travelling he has written.

Stanza 20

If Guru, Sakra or Bada is in Lagna, Sam in the 7th and Ravi in the 10th, the person will enjoy his life well. If benefic signs are powerful and fall in Kendras and malefics occupy cruel signs, the person will be master of hunters, thieves and wealth.

Notes

These are important combinations. The conversation of Alexander the Great and the Robber may be remembered. There are some persons who enjoy their life very well although they may have no money and there are others who become masters or leaders of wild tribes, hunters and thieves or dacoits and become wealthy and very powerful. They command hundreds or thousands of persons, live in wealth and put on all the luxuries of rulers and kings. Guru or Sakra or Bada must be in Lagna, Sam must be in the 7th and Ravi must occupy the 10th. Persons born under such conjunctions of planets will enjoy their lives well even when they are poor or quiet. In the latter part of the stanza the beneficial signs namely Vrahahbra, Thula, Dhanas, and Meena, must fall in the Kendras, while the evil planets must occupy evil signs. Then the person will lead dacoits, or hunters, get money and live happily.

End of Cha XI.

CHAPTI R XII.

Nabhabha Yoga.

Stanza 1

By combinations of two, three and four the multiples of 9, 10, 8 by 3, 3 and 4 respectively will be the number of Nabhabha Yogas obtained by this process. Yavanaas have described 1800 varieties but I will describe them here briefly.

Nabhabha Yogas are of four varieties (1) Akru (2) Akru-Sankhya (3) Akru-Sankhya-Arshya (4) and Akru-Sankhya-Arshya and Dala. There are 20 of Akru, 7 of Sankhya, 3 of Arshya and 2 of Dala, 9×3, 10×3 and 8×4 = 27, 30 and 32. By taking combinations of two planets we get 27, by three 30 and by four 32. Thus Akru is 20 and Sankhya is 7, the two together will give 27. Add to this Arshya Yogas 3 we get 30. Add to this two Dalas we get 32. Old Yavanaas have described these under 1800 varieties. Suchi-Dwaja declares that Nabhaska Yogas are countless. Purana Yavanas give 23 Akrut Yogas, Sankhya Yogas at 127. This will give 1.0. As the Lagna may fall in each of the 12 houses and as these 150 Yogas happen for each of the Rasis they have multiplied 150 x 12 = 1800 Yogas. Varahamihira says that he has made an abstract of all these Yogas and given them as 32. All the other Yogas are incorporated in them and therefore they can be easily grasped when the whole chapter is carefully perused.

Satya 2

If the planets are in Chara etc, Rajju, Musala and Nala Yogas are formed respectively according to Satya. These are Araya Yogas. Parashura mentions two Yogas as Main under Srih and sarpa when the benefics and malefics are in Kendras respectively.

Notes.

Planets in these three cases need not be found in all the movable, fixed or common signs. There are four movable signs Aries, Cancer, Libra and Capricorn. All the planets may be in one or two or three or four of these houses in any order to constitute Rajju. The word Rajju in Sanskrit means a rope. Musala means stick and Nala means grass. Satyacharya gives the results of these different Yogas which are of great importance to be omitted here. Cangi lucidly explains these in his immobile yet homely style. One who is born in Rajju will be unjust, resident in foreign countries and wealthy. Musala produces men of self respect and wealth. Nala makes persons short of limbs or long limbed, skillful, hoarders of treasure and enjoying life. If all the benefics are in Kendras, the Yoga is called Srih. If all the malefics are in Kendras, it is called paraja. Bhedotpala, with his vast learning, gives the following summary, which otherwise should have been very difficult to make out. No quotes from Badarayana Parasara. Garzi.
leaves Saturn, Mars and the Sun occupy the three kendras without any benefits with them or in the 4th kendra, it is called Sarpayoga and produces a sorrowful and unpleasant life. The Sruka Yoga is also called a Mala (Garland) Yoga. Only three good and three evil planets are mentioned and not the Moon. He is both good and bad as he waxes or wanes and his presence or absence makes no difference in the Yoga.

Suppose the three malefics occupy the three kendras and a full moon occupies the 4th kendra. He does not disturb the Sarpa yoga. Suppose the three benefits occupy the three quadrants and a week Moon joins the 4th kendra then the yoga is not also disturbed. In fact all the great Maha-rishis quoted above have not taken any notice of Chandra in this connection.

Stanza 3.

Asraya yogas, according to some, are really incorporated in the Yava, Abja, Vajra, Andaja, Gulaka, etc. to be stated hereafter. Dalayogas have no separate significance, according to some, as the results of benefits and malefics occupying the Kendras have already been indicated.

Notes.

Some take objection for describing Dala yogas separately as it is well known that benefits in Kendras produce good while malefics there cause evil. Bhadotpala justifies their enumeration here by Varahamihira in this way. All Nabhasa yogas have permanent influences and their results good or bad are manifested in all periods and sub-periods. Dalayogas have a similar influence and therefore they have been included in this chapter by the author. Parasara declares that all Nabhasayogas have a continuous effect as opposed to the influences of particular planetary periods and sub-periods.

Stanza 4.

When two adjacent quadrants are combined with all the planets it goes under the name of Gad. It will be called Sakata when all the planets occupy the 1st and the 7th houses. When all the planets occupy the 4th and the 10th it is called Vihaga. If all the planets occupy 1st 5th and 9th houses it is called Sringataka. If all the planets are in 5th and 9th it is called Hala. So say the learned in Astrology.
Notes

The readers should be careful in adjusting the results for all these yogas. In Sanskrit yoga is derived from yuj to join or combine. Most of these yogas are mechanical or chemical combinations and are produced by the interchanging of the various planetary rays whose junction is designated as a yoga or combination. If a planet occupies the 1st degree of Aries and another occupies the same it must naturally be expected that some interchange takes place there producing certain definite results. The positions of other planets have also great power to modify these conjunctional results. Varahamihira here sketches many such combinations and indicates that their influences are permanent and effective. But the readers have to be careful. Suppose Mesha is Lagna with Ravi, Buda, Kuja and Saka there and the rest of the planets are in Ketaka. Kindly consider the splendid positions occupied here as against the same yoga appearing in the second horoscope.

In both these horoscopes the 1st and the 4th houses contain all the planets. But the relative strength, aspect and position of all the planets change considerably and although the yoga is Gada the same results must not be predicted.

In the 1st, the Sun is exalted Kuja is in Mulathakona, Guru is exalted and Chandra occupies his own house, that will be a splendid combination for any body to have. But in the second Ravi is debilitated, Kuja occupies an unfriendly sign Guru is debilitated, while Chandra is in a cruel sign and cruel associations. The results must differ and they do take a practical illustration. There is a village magistrate who has nominal powers, there is an own magistrate who has a larger area and powers, and there is a district magistrate whose powers are still greater and whose jurisdiction must embrace a wider area. All go under the name of magistrates but there is a world of difference in power, pay, personal respect and status in life.
10th. If all the planets—benefics and malefics—occupy all the four kendraś in any order it is called Kamala. Benefics and malefics may join or be separate in the houses.

When all the planets occupy either Panaparas or Aupoklīmas it is called Vapi. In all these cases there must be no planet outside the specified houses. For Panaparas and Aupoklīmas see 18 ch. I.

Stanza 6.

I have given these Vajra Yogas etc., in accordance with older Sciences, but how can Buda and Skra be in the 4th from the Sun?

Notes.

Vajra and Yava do not happen but Varaha Mihira says he has recorded them under the sanction of the older sciences. The author uses Adi after Vajra to show that all such improbable or impossible combinations have been mentioned by him, as he found them described by Maya, Manitha, Yavana and Satyacharya. When the Sun is in a house, Mercury can only be at a distance of 25 degrees from him either in the East or in the West and therefore either in the same sign or in the 2nd or 12th sign occupied by the Sun. Venus has been shown already Another important question which cropped up at this stage was whether the Sun, although the most distant star, could be found at the Sun will be either in the 3rd house or 11th from the Sun. A few points were advantageously discussed here with reference to astronomy and astrology. Varahamihira was a great mathematician and composed a work called Pancha Siddhantika. This work is of great importance for its Sidhiyanas which he has named in it. In the Brhat Samhita, there are (1) Parashara, (2) Romaka, (3) Vasista, and (4) Saura. Vasista is famous and has written various learned works on Astronomy and Astrology. Parashara or Bhrany and Saura or Surya, have also written Siddhantas. Combinations of planets are given here which cannot be found under the present velocities and movements of planets. The question therefore now arises as to whether Varahamihira blindly quotes combinations which he found recorded in the earlier works of Vasista and Gargi, Parashara and Parasara, or did he seriously believe in their possibility in the earlier centuries of the earth's creation, where a thing is recorded which looks quite absurd on its face, whatever be the reverence to the professor who recorded it? The duty of the later writers is to simply consult them as evincing of impossibility under the present mathematics. It strikes me from a careful perusal of the existing astronomical and astrological literature, that it would be unreasonable to apply one set of physical conditions and their results to another set of similar conditions under a long lapse of time to the womb of which may be marked in unchangeable series of changes. In the Mahabharata, Vyasa deliberately says that, when Mercury slumbers well—visible to the naked eye—the destruction of the world may be predicted. See section I of VII Brhat Samhita. Vasista, Kasyapa and Vraddha Gargi give similar opinions. See also Romasa Vyasa on sundry and astrologer, a Maharishi, compiler of the Vedas, author of the Bhagavat Gita and the immortal Brahma Sutras. In addition to his 18 voluminous Br-
They are doing now, and that combinations such as those which have been mentioned by Vasista and Parasara, were combinations of planets actually seen by them or were considered quite reasonable and mathematical during their times. The Sun attracts all other planets of the solar system with the solar gravitation at a certain rate now during the last some thousands of years ago, but who can dogmatically maintain unless he is a fool, who does not care to take the changes wrought by the all powerfull habit of influx, that these solar attractions and their rates are stationary and that planets have been moving along at the present rates uniformly? The Sun constantly changes its position in space, his position on his axis and his position with reference to other planets and so also other planets. This is clearly shown by the Bajana and Nirvana systems. Attractions are guided by the quantity of heat and light and electricity and other which, any planet exhibits towards other planets, and if there is any sense or truth in these statements, then we can easily imagine the conditions for the Sun and the attendant planets when their mutual attractions and repulsions were quite different from what they are now, and we can as reasonably predict that such attractions and repulsions which the present astronomers give us, may not be found existing when the planets have made some more revolutions on their axes and the orbital lines fixed for them by the solar attractions. All these and many more facts show clearly that in the earlier centuries of the world, there were conjunctions of planets, in which Suhra and Bada could have taken angular positions from the Sun, and that there may be some occasions in the remote future when they may attain to such positions with reference to their master and lord the Sun.

STANZA 7

If all the planets are within the first four houses of the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Kendras Yupa, Ishu, Sakti, and Danda yogas are respectively formed.

Notes.

If all the planets are in the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th houses from Lagna it is Yupa, if they occupy the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th then it is called Ishu. If all the planets are in the 7th, 8th, 9th, and 10th it goes under the name of Sakti and if all these are in 10th, 11th, 12th and 1st, they constitute Dandayoga.

STANZA 8.

If all the planets are in the first 7 houses from the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Kendras they give rise to Now, Kuta, Chatra, and Chapa Yogas respectively. If these Yogas are in other houses they are called Ardachandra.

Notes.

If all the planets are in 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7, it forms Now Yoga. If they are in 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10, it is called Kuta. If all these occupy the 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, and 1st, it is called Chatrayoga. If all are placed in 10, 11, 12, 1, 2, 3, and 4 it goes under the name of Chapa. In the other half of the Stanza of all the planets are placed in panaparas we get four Yogas and if all be placed in anupoklimas, there will be four Yogas. These are styled Ardachandra. Thus if all the planets are found in 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, or in 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11; or in 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 1, and 2; or in 11, 12, 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5. In all these four cases the Yogas take their start from Panaparas (see Stanza 18, Chap. 1.) Now take the Anupoklimas; if all the planets are in 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, or in 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12; or in 9, 10, 11, 12, 1, 2, and 3; or in 12, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6. In all these eight cases the Yoga goes under the name of Ardachandra.
name of Samudra. If from Laguna planets are similarly situated, it forms Chakras. This is the summary of Akriti Yogas.

Notes

If all the planets are in 2nd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 10th, and 12th houses, it is called Samudra Yoga.

Varahamihira says that he has made a summary of the Akriti Yogas mentioned by the previous writers on this science.

Notes

When all the planets are within seven houses they form Vallaki. When they occupy 6 houses it goes under the name of Dama. When they are in 5 houses they form Pasa. When they are in four houses they form Kedara, when they are in 3 houses they form Shula, when they are in two houses they form Yoga and when all the planets are in one house, they make the Gola Yoga. In the previous stanzas the planets are required to be in all the houses consecutively or alternately as stated. But in these Yogas, the planets may be in any order. If they occupy a definite number of houses they form a special conjunction. Take an example. It may be questioned that when there is Ardaschandra Yoga, there must necessarily be Vallaki also. When both are present and satisfy the conditions mentioned by the author are we required to prescribe these two Yogas separately or take one Yoga in preference to another which is suppressed by its presence. The latter is the case. When Arishchandra and Vallaki are present, Vallaki is suppressed and the results must be described only to Arishchandra.
Stanza 13.

Gada=fond of sacrifices, rich, Sakata=lives by carriages, sickly, had wife.
Vihaga=ambassador, traveller, quarrelsome.
Sringatuka=happiness after a long age.

Hasta=Agriculturist.

Notes. The Combinations; for all those Yogas have already been explained.

Stanza 14.

Vajra=joys happiness in the beginning and end of his life, popular, courageous, Yara=warlike, happy in the end.

Padma=well-known reputation, great, happiness, and good character.

Vapi=good health, accumulator of money and miser.

Notes. Sacrifices are those which are done according to Hindu, Shastras, but this is a restricted sense. It means any offerings which are made to their deities by men in different parts of the world according to their religious and moral Codes.

There are many peculiarities in the enjoyment 3dly, are born in the lap of luxury, are brought up so for some years and then become hopelessly miserable. Some are born on the lap of poverty endure there hard lot throughout the first period of their life, then become prosperous and enjoy life, during the rest of their days. Some are born in misery, spend two thirds of their misery in that stage, then mount the ladder of fortune and die in plenty, some are poor in the middle of their life and enjoy life well at the other two ends.
Stanza 10.

Kedara—Agriculturist, helping many.

Shula—Courageous, having wounds, fond of wealth but poor.

Stanza 19.

Yuga—poor, unbeliever.

Gola—penniless, sinful, ignorant, skilful in mean arts, lazy, travelling. These are Nabhasa yogas related by me, and they will always be productive of their own results.

Notes.

The Nabhasa yogas are continuously productive of results good or bad as the case may be. If they are really so, then there is some objection against some of these Yogas in which Varaha Mihira has clearly stated that the person will have happiness in the first and last periods of a man's existence. The answer is simple. When the results of a combination of planets take a particular turn, then other rules or principles cannot be applied to them. For it is the nature of such a combination to produce those results irrespective of general influences. What he means here is that the results delineated here as pertaining to conjunctions of planets under Nabhasa yogas will make themselves prominent in a man's career although... now and then they may not be present so prominently on account of the presence of other Yogas. If these results are permanently felt then some will have all good, while others will have all evil. It is not so Bhatotpal very clearly remarks—rich men may have external objects for enjoyment, but their minds may be greatly affected and they may feel themselves miserable through various other causes. Poor men may have external marks of misery, but at heart they may feel quite happy and contented. Happiness and misery are relative terms and are made so by the bent of the mind the man possesses, and the view he takes of the presence of evil and good about him. There are evil and good results which come to man as the natural consequence of planetary periods and sub-periods. Then there are the results which happen to him as the results of the planetary movements as ascertained by Asakha Varga. Then again there are the results of the planetary combinations or yogas on the man exercised by their peculiar angles and states. All these do not counteract each other's influences but confer enjoyment during their respective periods and in a conjunctural or individual manner.

Dala Yogas and Akriti Yogas do not come together. Dala and Astra may not concurrently happen. Dala and Sankhya may come together, then Dala will have preference. Akriti and Astra may come together when Akriti will produce its results. Akriti and Sankhya Yogas may come together when the influences of Akriti will prevail. Astra and Sankhya may come together when Astra will have preference. Astra Yoga always contains Sankhya Yoga, but we may have Sankhya Yoga separately and by themselves. Therefore when Astra and Sankhya Yogas are present preference should be given only to Astra Yoga. For example, if all the planets are in one house, there is Sankhya yoga but not Astra. The old Yavanes have given 1800 varieties of these Nabhasa Yogas. Sankhya yoga are 127. There are 23 Akriti yogas. The two sets added 127 + 23 will give 150 Yogas. But there are 12 different Zodiacal signs and if each of these signs has 150 Yogas the total number of Nabhasa yogas possible will be 150 \times 12 = 1800 Yogas or planetary conjunctions. When the number of planets taken is seven one yoga arises. When six planets are taken at a time there arise seven Yogas. When the number of planets taken is five we get 21 Yogas. When that number is four we get 35, when three planets are taken at a time we get 35, when two planets are taken at a time we get 21 and when we take one planet at a time we get seven. Thus we get $1 + 7 + 21 + 35 + 35 + 21 + 7 = 127$ Yogas. When we add 23 Akriti yo-gas to these we get 150 Yogas for each Lagna of the Zodiac or 1600 for the 12 signs.

CHAPTER XIII.

Chandrayogadhyaya.

Results from Lunar positions and Conjunctions.

Stanza 1.

By the Moon occupying Khandras etc. from the Sun, three Yogas arise called Adhama, Sama, Varisat respectively, producing politeness, wealth, wisdom, intelligence and skill, accordingly. If the Moon is in his own or friendly Navamsa during the day and night possessing the aspect of Jupiter and Venus respectively, the person will be wealthy and happy.

Notes.

The brevity and suggestiveness of VarahaMitra’s verses, are admirable and cannot be done justice to in English translations like this. If the Moon is in a kendra from the Sun at the time of birth he will have very few or no traces of politeness, wealth, wisdom, intelligence, and skill. If the Moon is in Panaparas from the Sun i.e., in 2-5-9-11, then he will have all these characteristics to a moderate extent. But if the Moon is in Aputakamas from the Sun Viz in, 3-6-9 or 12, the person will have all those qualities to the fullest extent possible. For those who are born during the day, if the Moon occupies his own Navamsa or that of the Navamsa of his intimate friend aspected by Jupiter, he will give wealth and happiness. The same result must be predicted when the Moon in any of those above named Navamsas has the aspect of Venus. Some say that Moon in his own Amsa during the day and in his friendly Navamsa during the night aspected by Jupiter and Venus respectively, causes these results. But Bhagavan Gurgi clearly says as I have explained above and Bhatotpala quotes also Varaneswara to the same effect.

Stanza 2.

When benefics occupy the 6th, 7th, and 8th, from the Moon, they cause Adhiyoga and the result is the birth of a commander, a minister, or a king. Persons born in this Conjunction (Adhiyoga) will be gentlemanly, happy, surrounded with luxury, faceless, long-lived and rejected by the diseases.

Notes.

In this Adhiyoga all the benefics viz., Mercury, Jupiter and V be in one of these houses. All of them may be in the 6th, 7th, and 8th or in 6th or 7th or 8th, or in the 6th and 7th, or 6th and 8th, or in the 7th and 8th. Thus seven varieties of Adhiyogas have been named here. If all these benefits are completely powerful, the person will become a great king, if they possess ordinary (medium power) then he will become a minister, and when all these are powerless, the man becomes a commander.

Srutakriti observes that if in these places there are evil planets from the Moon then they will produce the same results, but the persons will be evil minded and tyrannical. If mixed, planets are found there, the results will be mixed, and when the benefits are there the results will be good. But the quotations from Bardarayana, Mandavya, and Sarawali, clearly indicate the presence of benefits in those houses and Srutakriti does not seem to have been supported by them in his inference of making Papadhiyoga by putting evil planets in those houses. But as their quotations are not full we cannot draw any conclusions definitely. Mandavya and Sarawali declare that this Adhiyoga belongs to Itsjayoga and produces kings and emperors, when the planets are powerful. It is not always possible to say why a certain combination produces a certain result, but it is easy to say from study and experience that a special combination of planets produces special and definite results. It will be seen in this world that there are many varieties of power developed by the planetary conjunctions, each of which has its own value and power and several of which may be combined in one and the same individual. As objects drawn together under special physical and mental conditions exhibit different moods in their behaviour so also men produced by different planetary conjunctions exhibit a wonderful variety of phenomena, which requires long and tedious study to understand its nature and complications. Some have wonderful talking power while others have special walking capacity. Some are excellent hunters while others are splendid fighters. We have refined writers and magnificent poets. Some are eminent in art while others are great in religious faith. Some are great tyrants while others are honorable philanthropists. Some have special theiving propensity while others distinguish themselves in giving to others what they have. Some think deeply while others see far into the future. Some have easy reproductive capacity while others are characterised by stern barrenness. All these and many more are due to planetary influences as moulded into definite forms by the energy which results from good and bad Karma. The Astrologer will be a great naturalist. His capacity must be great and his observation keen and piercing. It is a most interesting and intricate science and has been most profoundly dealt with by the ancient masters in this field of sublime knowledge.

Stanza 3.

With the exception of the Sun other planets in the 2nd house from the Moon, in the 12th from him and in the 2nd and 12th from the Moon cause Sunapha, Anapha, and Dhuradhura Yogas respectively. If these are not so, many say it is Kemadruma. If planets are in Kendra from birth or Moon or if Moon is combined with planets there is no Kemadruma. Some say these Yogas arise from Kendras and Navamsas, but their doctrine has not been accepted.

Notes.

This is a very important stanza and explains some of the most prominent permanent Yogas (conjunctions) which affect the careers of individuals. Several systems are brought out and the most acceptable among them have been clearly indicated. After fixing correctly the planetary positions in a horoscope, take the position of the Moon. If in the second house from the Moon there are planets a special Yoga called Sunapha is generated. When there are planets in the 12th house from the Moon the Yoga goes under the name of Anapha. When planets are found both in the 2nd and 12th houses from the Moon the Yoga is called Dhuradhura. If there are no planets on both sides of the Moon or 2nd and 12th houses then the Yoga is called Kemadruma, Many have said so and they are quoted by Bhattacharya. If in the Kendras from birth or Moon, planets are found, or if the Moon joins with any other planet, there will be no Kemadruma. The presence or absence of the Sun does not interrupt these Yogas. That is if there is Sun in the 2nd house from the Moon he does not cause Sunapha unless there is some other planet with him. If there are one or more planets in the 2nd house from the Moon and also the Sun with them he does not disturb the Sunapha Yoga. Some say that the word Kendrasitakravay should be interpreted as in Kendras, from Chandra but this is against the spirit of quotations from Gargi and Sarvasah. Some Acharyas represent these conjunctions from the Kendras of the Moon.

Srakriti observes, "When planets are in the 4th house from the Moon it is Sunapha, when they are in the 10th from Moon it is Anapha, when consult planetary conjunctions from the Lagna or Chandra whichever is stronger. In this case, if planets are in the 4th and 10th from Lagna or in the 4th and 10th houses from Chandra there are good yogas and the results will be favourable. The same when they are Kendras from Lagna If planets can produce Sunapha, Anapha, and Dhuradura, when they are in the 2nd, or 12th, or 2nd and 12th, from Chandra in the Rasi I can see hardly any material objection to the generation of these same yogas when the same planets occupy similar positions from the Moon in the Navamsa.
Suppose a man has no planet in the 7th from Lagna or Chandra in the Rasi but there are planets from Chandra in the Navamsa, do we not indicate the color, features, disposition and position of the wife by looking at the planet or planets in the 7th house from Chandra in the Navamsa ?
But what probably VarabhaMihira and is illustrious Commentator mean here seem to be that the positions of the planets in the Navamsa or in the kendra from Chandra, may not successfully create these special yogas as the older and the most famous writers of India did not countenance each a view. I am sure there will be yogas as per stotkas quoted by Bhadot-pala from Svarakriti and Jivasarma, but they may not be identical with these special combinations detailed here as Sunapha, Anapha, Dhura Dhura and Kemadruma.

Stanza 4.

There are 31 varieties of Sunapha and Anapha Conjunctions. There are three sixties of varieties in Dhura Dhura. The intended varieties can be found out by placing planets in regular order and dropping the first in proceeding to the last and repeating this.

Notes.

The Yogas can be found out by permutations and combinations of planets in the signs. $60 \times 3 = 180$ varieties of Dhura Dhura are named. The principles of mathematics involved here are easily explained by Dhatotpala. He says, take the number of planets and the varieties they produce.

Thus—\[\begin{array}{c|c|c|c|c}
3 & 2 & 1 \\
1 & 2 & 3 & 4 & 5
\end{array}\]

Take the first figure 5 and divide it by the lower figure one—we get 5 varieties of one planet taken at a time in the 2nd house from the Moon. Take the product 5 and multiply it with the next figure 4—we get 20, divide this by the figure 2, which represents two planets taken at a time—we get 10 varieties. Multiply this product 10 by the next figure 3 we get 30, divide this by the lower figure 3 and we have 10 varieties of 3 planets taken at a time. Multiply this 10 by the next figure 2 and we get 20. Divide this by the lower figure four and we get 5 varieties of four planets taken at a time. Then multiply this 5 by the next figure 1 and divide it by the lower figure 5, we get 1. Thus the total will be $5 + 10 + 10 + 5 + 1 = 31$ Yogas. There are 180 varieties of Dhura Dhura for which the author, as well the Commentator, gives a hint to call in the skill of the student to find out the number. They are thus formed.

1) Mars and Mercury.

2) Mercury and Mars.

Similarly if we go on counting the different combinations of planets, we get the large number of 180 varieties for Dhara Dhurs.

Stanza 5.

Person born in Sunapha will be king or his equal with self-acquired wealth, intelligent, wealthy, and reputed. A person born under Sunapha will be a ruler, healthy, moral, renowned, enjoying good pleasures, fond of decorations and free from mental sorrow.

Notes.

Varahamihira now gives the results of Sunapha and other Yogas he has given in stanza 3. A person will be a King or his equal only when the planets, causing this (Yoga) Sunapha are exalted and powerful. But when they are weak and debilitated they give the persons some position, which may be important in small localities. Suppose Moon is in Pisces and Saturn is in Aries. There is Sunapha also when Moon is in Virgo and Saturn is in Libra. The student in these two cases ought not to predict the same cury causes the Yogas the person will be skillful have sweet speech and be learned in arts. If Jupiter causes the Yogas, the person will be rich, charitable, happy, and respected by rulers. If Venus, he will be fond of women, very wealthy and will enjoy sensual pleasures.

NOTES

The stanzas are given with a view to find out the particular results from the special planetary positions in causing these Yogas, viz. — Sunapha, Anapha, and Dharadhura. These results do not apply to Kemadrama as there will be no planets on either side of the Moon. If one planet is in the 2nd the result may be given in their entirety if he is strong, but when two or more planets are in one house, the results will have to be predicted for all of them according to their strength and position. Suppose Mars and Jupiter are in the second. They are friends and augment each other's strength. But suppose the Sun and Saturn are in the second from Moon. The results are greatly neutralised as they are inimicable and counteract each other's influences.

STANZA 8

If Sani causes these Yogas, the man will enjoy others' wealth and articles will be engaged in various works, and a leader of an assembly. The Moon, if visible in the day, does mischief but when he is invisible, he will be auspicious. Otherwise the results will be different.

NOTES

When Saturn causes these Yogas the person will enjoy life at the cost of others. He will be engaged in a variety of work, and will also be elected as the leader of men or assemblies. This will give him great influence and probably he will support himself at their cost. The word used for the visibility and invisibility of Moon is Drisya and Adrisya. Bhratopala explains it as Drisya Chakram. In stanza 22, Chapter V of this work, I have explained these words and what they mean and refer the readers to it.

When the Moon is in Drisya Chakra during the day, he will produce evil and when he is in Adrisya Chakra he will be auspicious. This will be reversed in the night. When the Moon is in Drisya Chakra in the night he is auspicious and when he occupies the Adrisya Chakra during the night he becomes inauspicious.

STANZA 9

When all benefics are in oopacharyas from Lagna, the person will be extremely wealthy. When all benefics are in oopachayas from the Moon, he will be wealthy. When two benefics are in oopachayas, there will be moderate wealth. Less than that will produce little wealth. The results from these will predominate over others.

Notes

This is shortly and sweetly expressed in the original. The three benefics are Jupiter, Venus and Mercury. The oopachayas are the 3rd, 6th, 10th and 11th houses from the Lagna or the Moon. See stanza 1a, ch. 1 and stanza 5, ch. II. When these three benefics are situated in the oopachayas from Lagna, the person will be very rich but when they are so from the Moon, he will be rich. When two of the benefics are in oopachayas from Lagna or Chandra, the person will be moderately rich. When one of them is so, he will be little wealthy, but when there are no benefics, there will be poverty. In the following diagram, we can easily see that even when Chandra is not in Lagna, the benefics may be in oopachayas from both. Birth is Pisces and the three benefics Jupiter, Mercury and Venus are in the 8th oopachaya. Moon is in Gemini and they are in the 3rd house from him, also an oopachaya. In such cases, when the three benefics are in oopachayas both from the birth and from the Moon, it is hardly necessary to say that the person will be immensely rich or what will be called a millionaire.

End of Chapter XIII.

CHAPTER XIV.

Dwigrahayogadyaya.

(Results from the Conjunction of two planets.)

STANZA I.

If the Sun conjoins with the Moon, the person will be skilled in machinery and masonry. If with Mars, fond of sinful deeds; if with Mercury, skilled, intelligent, renowned and happy. If with Jupiter, he will be cruel and always doing others work. If with Venus he will make money on stage and by weapons and with Saturn he will be skilful in working ores or earthenware.
Notes

Here Varahamihira is very short and suggestive and the students will have to explain a great deal from their experience and the experience of their instructors. The Sun and Moon in conjunction produce men skilled in making, handling or dealing with machinery and under this head we may bring in mechanics, engineers, chemists and other workmen. Asma means large flat stones used in building houses and the man may be a mason, a seller of these stones and examiner of them or cutter and fitter. When the Sun joins Mars the person will be fond of sin and vice. In all these cases the position of the man has nothing to do with his character. Princes and statesmen, priests and poets, philosophers and literates have been known to be guilty of the most abominable vices while poor and ignorant men have been known to be strictly moral and religious. The tendencies of men are shown herewith and they pursue their courses suitable to their rank. If the Sun joins an exalted Saturn the person may not become a regular potter but may be in charge of earthenware depot or he is in some high political life, he may prepare rich pottery and take delight in such manufactures.

STANZA 2

Moon in conjunction with Mars makes a man a counterfeiter, a seller of women, wives and pots, and doing mischief to mother Moon with Mercury makes a person polite in speech, clever in interpretation, popular, and renowned. Moon with Jupiter makes a person successful against enemies, chief of that sector, family capricious and wealthy. Moon with Venus makes a man skilful in weaving and Moon with Saturn makes a person the son of a second marriage.

Notes

The commentator gives various panyams or salable articles. Karpuranyam, Asunyam and Kambhiranyam. When Moon joins with Mars he will make the native counterfeit all sorts of salable articles, sell women, wives and pots. In fact, in all these expressions the various relations which a man can have with such articles are indicated. The seller of toddy the preparer of that the superintendent of those shops and the forger or imitator of such articles come under this heading according to the strength of the combined planets.

A man may sell his daughter, his wife, his mother or get other women and pumps them to adulterers. In all these cases he makes some gain and this is due to planetary conjunctions, the son of a second marriage is called punarbhushuta 'born again' Bhatatpala quotes an authority and describes punarbhku as follows. When a woman marries and voluntarily neglects her husband marries again a man of her choice from her own sect and thus stands both polluted and pure she is called a punarbhku.

\[ \text{STANZA 3} \]

When Mars joins Mercury the person will be a dealer in roots etc., oils, imitation articles and versed in boxing. Mars with Jupiter produces a ruler of a city or Raja or a rich Brahman. Mars with Venus produces cowherds, wrestlers, skillful, fond of other women and gambler. Mars with Saturn make the man sorrowful, untruthful, and disgraced or blamed.

\[ \text{Notes} \]

By the word Mooladh in the original, it is meant to denote bulbs, roots, flowers, fibers, clothes and fruits. Mercury and Mars in conjunction make a man dealer in the above articles. oils of all descriptions, preparation and selling of imitation stuffs and also a good boxer.

Jupiter with Mars (called Guru Mangala Yoga) will make a man a chief officer or leader or protector or magistrate in a city or a king or a learned or wealthy Brahman as we take the reading “Prapta Vitta or prapta vidya.”

Venus in conjunction with Mars makes a man a good wrestler, a cowherd, a gambler, skillful and fond of other women. It may be noted in this connection that in thousands of horoscopes I have had occasion to examine I invariably found the morals of the individual with this combination very loose and himself (or herself) suffering from venereal complaints. The conjunction of Mars with Saturn culminates in producing misery, falsehood and disgrace in the person.

When Mercury and Jupiter join, they produce a man who figures constantly on the stage. When Mercury joins Venus the man will be fond of music, dancing, eloquent and protection of lands and assemblies. Mercury with Saturn makes a man a cheat and disobedient. Jupiter with Venus produces good education, wife, wealth and man of many virtues. Jupiter with Saturn produces, barber, potter or cook.
Notes

The stanza is easy and requires few notes. Those who appear on the stage may do so under various capacities and forms and all the varieties have to be made out by the relative strength and position of these planets.

STANZA 5

Venus with Saturn gives a man small eyes, wealth, from depending upon some females, artistic capacity, ordinary writing and painting. Similarly results of combinations of more than two planets must be made out.

Notes

The last part requires some further explanation. Viratika Mihara true to his motto of writing little and suggesting much asks the readers to make out results similarly for larger combinations. Suppose the Sun, Moon, and Mars are in one house. Then we have to take out the results of the conjunction of the (1) Sun with Moon, (2) Sun with Mars, and (3) Moon with Mars. Suppose there are two planets in one house and three planets in another house. Then all the results mentioned here must be traced out according to their relative strength. Suppose there are 4 planets in one house viz. Sun, Moon, Mars, and Mer.

As above suggested, conjunctural results for all these must be made out.

End of Chapter XIV

CHAPTER XV

Pravrajya Yoga.

(Renunciation of the world or Sanyasa)

STANZA 1

When there are four or more powerful planets in one house, the persons born will become Sakva, Aajvika, Bikshu, Vriddha, Charaka Nirgrantha and Vanyasa when Mahay, Gnya, Gurn, Kshapakara, Sitr, Prabhashi, and In are powerful respectively. The Pravrajya Yogas are determined by the most powerful planet. When these planets have suffered a defeat, the person will renounce the pravrajya afterwards.

Notes.

To the Hindu, the spiritual has as much attraction—if not more—as the Material Comforts and taken from such a standard the combinations sketched out here are really very valuable as the person can make out when and what kind of Sanyasi he will become and what would be his spiritual progress after renouncing the worldly pleasures. There must be four or more planets in a house for this Yoga. The following strong planets in this conjunction will produce the undermentioned varieties of Pravrajya Yoga—

1. Powerful Mars—Sakya—those Sanyasis who wear red clothes

2. Mercury—Aajivika—a Sanyasi bearing Ekadanda or single staff.

3. Jupiter—Bhiksu—ordinary Sanyasis who have yellowish rose colored clothes.

4. Moon—Vriddha—Kapalika or one who moves about with a skull in his hand.

5. Venus—Charaka—one who carries a chakra or ring or circle.

7. Sun—Vanyakasana—those who live on roots and bulbs in a forest.

Bhatotpala quotes for the first time from “Vankalakacharya” elaborate verses in pure Prakrit and in excellent style. Who this great astrologer was and where he lived would be a very interesting research to make. The language unmistakably shows his remote antiquity and it would be quite a gain to astrological literature if we could throw some light upon this ancient astrological writer and his works. He apparently seems to have been the author of a Samhita Vriddha stands for Vriddhasrayaka and is beautifully explained by Vankalakacharya. These Sanyasis stand for devotion to Iswara while Aajivikas are those who are devoted to Vishnu.

When two planets are powerful among the lot, the order of Sanyasi will be determined first by the most powerful among them and then the person may embrace the second. It is only when a planet is very strong that he makes the man a Sanyasi for a long time. If the planet is weak, then he will only make the person long after it but will not induce him to take it up. When the most powerful planet is defeated in the planetary fight the person will take up Sanyasa and after some time renounce it. If the last powerful planet is not defeated then the person will die in that Yoga which is ruled by that planet. If two of them are powerful and suffer no defeat then, when the first planet’s sub period comes he embraces the first and when the sub period of the second planet comes he will renounce the first and take up the second and keep it on. If only one planet is powerful and has not suffered defeat then he takes the order indicated by him and keeps it on uninterrupted.

If the powerful Pravrajya causing planets are in combust with the sun then the persons born not take up sanyasi, but will greatly worship those who have embraced sanyasa. If the Yoga karaka and defeated planets are aspected by other planets the person would be making application for Diksha.

Notes.

Pravarajja arises only when there are four or more planets in a house. Of the most powerful of these which cause this Yoga, the combusted planets produce no Diksha or Sanyasa but produce admiration or regard for those who have taken Sanyasa similar to that which the planet governs. Regarding combustion or Asta, Bhatotpala says that simply because a planet is in the same house with the Sun, it must not be presumed that he is in combustion, neither should it be presumed that the planet who is in the 2nd house from the Sun is not in combustion. The fact of combustion or not must be ascertained by regular mathematical calculations. If the powerful Yoga karaka planets are defeated and aspected by other planets, then the man will simply make application to be admitted but they would not become Sanyasa. In the first stanza it was alleged that powerful planets, defeated in planetary fight would give sanyasa, and then would make him renounce it afterwards. But now he corrects this by saying that the man would take up sanyasa only when the planet is not aspected by other planets. But when others aspect the planet then the man will only be applying for it without taking or getting. The planet will give Sanyasa during his sub period, when in the gochara movements, he obtains the greatest strength.

Stanza 3.

When janmasa is not aspected by other planets, but aspects Saturn, or when Saturn aspects the weak janmasa or if Moon is in Saturn's drakraka and occupies the Amsa of Saturn or Mars and his saturnine aspect, the person will have Diksha.

Notes.

Now he gives three sets of combinations, when the Diksha or the ordainment of a Sanyasi may take place even when there are not planetary conjunctions of four or more in one house. Bhatotpala explains Janmasa as the lord of the house occupied by the moon at the time of birth.

(a) If this lord is not aspected by any other planets but aspects Saturn, then there will be a Pravarajja yoga. The Sanyasa then will take that form which is ruled by Saturn as mentioned.
in the first stanza. This comes in during the sub period of the most powerful among these two—viz Janmasa and Saturn.

(b) When Saturn is powerful and aspects the weak lord of the house occupied by the Moon then the same nine form of Pravacajjya will be obtained.

(c) If the Moon occupies a sator nine Drakshana in any sign, and also occupies the Navamsa of Mars or Saturn, and is not aspected by any other planet than Saturn then the man will assume the Sanyasa peculiar to Saturn.

Here the commentator insists on the necessity for also applying the conditions laid down in the first two stanzas. That is we must take into consideration the planetary combustions and aspects.

STANZA 4

If Jupiter, Moon and birth are aspected by Saturn, and if Jupiter is in the 9th, the person born would be a Raja who would write on Shastras or sciences. If 9th is occupied by Saturn unsuspected by any planet, the person will become a Dikshita when he is born in Raja yoga.

NOTES

Here Varahamihira gives two combinations peculiar to kings.

(a) If Saturn aspects the Moon, birth and Jupiter with Jupiter in the ninth (9th) house then, a king in whose horoscope such conjunction rises, becomes a writer on sciences. Bhatotpala here gives instances of persons who, although born as rulers and princes become great as scientists and philosophers. This is a strange fact brought to light by him.

He quotes Kanada Buddha, Panchatikha Varahamihira and Brahama Gupta. Kanada was the first great writer on Tarka or Sanskrit logic and his system even to day goes under the name of Kanada matham. From what Bhatotpala says Kanada must have been a royal personage who devoted himself to sciences and who became a great authority on Hindu Logic or Tarka.

Buddha is too well known a royal personage who renounced the regal pleasures when young and enumerated one of the most profound systems of religious faith and philosophy. Panchatikha must have been a well known Prince and writer on science before Bhatotpala's time. Who he was and what he has written are now not known. From this statement of Bhatotpala, Varahamihira appears to

Pushya—Control over passions, popular, learned, rich and charitable

Aushasha—Dissimulato, clever in selfishness, stingy, ungrateful and a cheat

STANZA 6

Makha—Many servants and great wealth, enjoying respect of elders and gods and very enterprising. Pubba—Sweet speech, liberal, handsome, fond of traveling and royal servant

STANZA 7

STANZA 8

Chitta—Using various cloths and garlands, good looks and limbs

Swaati—Polite, merchant, kind hearted, (not able to endure thirst), sweet tongued and generous

STANZA 9

Visakha—Jealous, avaricious, handsome, clever speaker, and quarrelsome, or maker of money

STANZA 10

Anuradha—Master, or Chief, living in foreign countries, not able to bear hunger and fond of travelling

STANZA 11

Jaista—Few friends, contented, charitable, very irritable

Noola—Proud, rich, happy, good, steady and enjoying

STANZA 12

Purushadhi—Good and pleasant wife—proud and a steady friend

Oottarashada—Polite, loving, virtuous, many friends, grateful and popular

STANZA 13

Srawana—Rich surroundings, learned good and liberal, for liberal to wife, wealthy and renowned

STANZA 14.

Oottarabhadra—Good speaker, happy, many children and grandchildren, successful over enemies and charitable.

Revati—Well developed organs, popular, courageous, clean and wealthy.

Notes.

Riksha has been explained by Varahamihira to mean (1) constellations and (2) Zodiacal signs (see st. 4 ch. I). Here both of these are explained.

In st. 8 of this there are two readings.

1 Kripalu=generous.
2 Thrripalu=thirsty.

In st. 9 there are two readings.

1 Vauchanapatuhu=clever speaker.
2 Arthapatuhu=clever in earning money.

In st. 13 two different interpretations are given (1) Strijthaha, conquered by females and Dhani=wealthy and patuhu=clever. Or Strijtha-dhani=one whose wealth has been conquered by females. These results must be predicted according to the strength of the Moon. If he is weak in a constellation then there will be very faint traces of the characteristics.

If he is strong, then these qualities will be possessed to a larger extent.

CHAPTER XVII.

Rasisiddhyaya or the Lunar effects in the various signs.

STANZA 1.

1. Moon in Aries—Round and red eyes, eating hot and light food, fond of grains, easily calmed—traveller, passionate, fleshless knees, changeable wealth, courageous, liked by females, good servant, bad nails, cut or scar in the head, proud, chief among brothers, has Sakterakha (line) in the palm, capricious and dreading water.

STANZA 2.

2. Moon—in Taurus, Handsome, playful walk, long thighs and face, back sides and face contain some marks, liberal, bearing fatigue, possessing paraphernalia, begetting girls—phlegmatic, separated from elders, relations, family, wealth and children, popular, patient, strong digestion, loved by females, firm friendship and happy in the middle and end of his life.
Stanza 3.

3. Moon in Gemini—Fond of women, skilled in sexual sciences, red eyes, scientist, ambassador, curled hairs, clever knowledge in wit and human nature and gambling, handsome organs, sweet speech, good eater, fond of music, skilled in dancing, playing with impotents, high nose.

Stanza 4.

4. Moon in Cancer—Walking in curves quickly, high buttocks, submissive to women, good friends, astrologer, many houses, waxing and waning wealth like the Moon, short, stout neck, amenable to kind words, fond of friends, water and gardens.

Stanza 5.

5. Moon in Leo—Angry, high or broad cheeks, colored eyes, few children, hater of women, fond of flesh, wilderness, and mountains, long displeasure, suffering from complaints arising out of hunger, thirst, stomach, teeth and mind, liberal, courageous, fixed, proud mind and obedient to mother.

Stanza 6.

6. Moon in Virgo—Walk and sight will be characterised by modesty, bent shoulders and hands, happy, sweet speaker, truthful, charitable, skilled in arts, learned in shastras, intelligent, passionate, possessed of others wealth and houses, foreign residence, calm speech, female children and few issues.

Stanza 7.

7. Moon in Libra—Fond of worshipping Gods, Brahmins, pious people, intelligent, clean, submissive to women, tall, long nose, weak and disjointed organs, traveller, rich, ill-developed organs, clever in merchandise, having the second name pertaining to God, sickly, helping relations and coerced and rejected by relations.

Stanza 8.

8. Moon in Scorpio—Broad, eyes and chest, round knees, buttocks and thighs, separated from parents and Guru. Sickly in infancy, respected by Royal members, honey-color, cruel, has marks of fish, vajrayudha, and bird, secret sinner.
STANZA 9
Moon in Sagittarius—Long face and neck. Paternal wealth liberal, poet strong, clever speaker, thick teeth, ears, tips and nose, active worker, fine arts, bent shoulders, bad nails, strong arms, highly intelligent, skilled in righteous knowledge, hater of relations and won over by fair means and kind words.

STANZA 10
10 Moon in Capricorn—Pleaser of wife and children pretending charity, lean in the lower half, good eyes lean buttocks grasping intelligence popular, idle not able to bear cold traveller, strong or liberal poet, learned miserly, incestuous and low intercourse, shameless and merciless.

STANZA 11

STANZA 12
12 Moon in Pisces—Enjoying others wealth and aquatic articles, fond of wine and clothes, well proportioned and handsome body, prominent nose, big head, conquering enemies submissive to women charming eyes, enjoying treasure trove, lustrous articles, wealthy and learned.

STANZA 13
When the Moon the sign in which he is and its Lord are powerful the results indicated above will be fully verified. The other planetary results must be similarly suggested.

Notes
The Moon at the time of birth occupies a zodiacal sign and this is technically called the natesha. Moon is identified with the rising constellation at the time and will be moving there. If the Moon is strong as well as the house and its lord he occupies, the results predicted will be completely visible. But when two of them are powerful they will be partly visible. When one is powerful there will be traces of these characteristics. But when all of them are weak, then there will be no traces even of the qualities named in the respective places. The author is now going to relate the results from the occupation of other planets in the various houses of the zodiac and desires the readers to judge of them on the lines of argument suggested here. As the results of the occupation of the 11th in the 12 zodiacal signs are clearly given in simple language, I do not think any further notes in this connection are wanted.

CHAPTER XVIII

Rasishalladyaya

Or the results of planets in the various houses of the Zodiac.

STANZA 1

When the Sun is not in his deep exaltation in Aries the person will become famous clever traveller, possessed of little wealth and bearer of arms. When the Sun is in Taurus the person will sell scents and clothes, hate females and be clever in drumming and music.

Notes

Aries extends over 30 degrees of the zodiac and in its 10th degree the Sun is in Swatioga or deep exaltation.

STANZA 2

When the Sun is in Gemini the native becomes educated, astrologer and wealthy. In Cancer he makes the native angry, poor, doing others work, and suffer from fatigue by travelling and other cares. In Leo the Sun causes love in forests, mountains and cattle courageous and dull. When the Sun is in Virgo, the person becomes skilful in writing, painting, poetry, philosophy and mathematics, and possesses a feminine body.

STANZA 3

When the Sun occupies Libra he makes the man a toady-seller, drunkard, traveller, goldsmith and mean. When the Sun is in Scorpio he makes the man cruel, adventurous and rash, making profits by sales of poisonous substances, losing wealth by robbers.
and skilled in military weapons, and destroyer When the Sun is in Sagittarius the person will be respected, rich, angry, doctor and artisan When the Sun is in Capricornus the person will be mean, ignorant seller of low articles, little wealth, covetous and enjoying at others cost

STANZA 4

The Sun in Aquarius makes a man mean, separated from children and wealth and poor. The Sun in Pisces causes wealth through articles found in water and fumbled by women. When the Sun and the Moon are combined in a Rasi marks or moles in the organ which is governed by Kalapurusha are governed.

Notes.

The stanzas are easy enough. As per author’s previous suggestions, the results indicated by the Sun in the twelve zodiacal signs will be full when the Sun as well as the house he occupies and its lord are strong. In stanza 4 ch. 1 of this work I have clearly explained the different organs governed by Kalapurusha. Thus if the Sun and the Moon are in Aries, the person will have a mole or mark on the head. If they are in Scorpio the mark will be on the sexual organ.

STANZA 5

Mars in Aries and Scorpio—Respected by Kings, traveller, commander, merchant, rich, cut or scarred body, thief, running through various sense pleasures or objects.

Mars in Taurus and Libra—Submissive to women, ungrateful friend, fond of others’ wives, cheat,lop, timid and unsocial.

STANZA 6

Mars in Gemini and Virgo—jealous, sons, friendless, grateful, clever in music and martial work, miserly, undaunted and mendicant.

Mars in Cancer—rich, wealth procured through ships or through travelling, intelligent, wanting in organs and cruel.

STANZA 7

Mars in Leo—poor, enduring, travelling in forests, few children and wife.
Mars in Sagittarius and Pisces
Many enemies, minister, renowned courageous and few children

Mars in Aquarius—Sorrowful, poor, traveller untruthful and irritable

Mars in Capricornus—Much wealth and many children, and king or his equal

STANZA 8

Mercury in Aries and Scorpio—Fond of gambling, borrowing and drinking, atheist, thief, poor, bad wife, cheating and untruthful.

Mercury in Taurus and Libra—Fond of getting instructors, children, wives and wealth, liberal and respectful to elders. Mercury in Gemini—Bar, skilled in arts and sciences, polite speeches and fond of happiness. Mercury in Cancer—Wealth through water, and hateful to his relations

STANZA 9

Mercury in Leo—Hateful to women without wealth, happiness and children, traveller, stupid fond of women and disgraced by his own community

Mercury in Virgo—Liberal, learned, many noble qualities, happy, patient, expedient, or resourceful and intrupid

STANZA 11

Mercury in Capricornus and Aquarius—Engaged in others work, poor, not fond of arts, debtor, carrying out others orders.

Mercury in Sagittarius—Respected by king, learned, timely speech.

Mercury in Pisces—Winning over servants to his side, and mean artist

STANZA 12

Jupiter in Aries and Scorpio—Commander, possessed of large family, children and wealth, liberal and good servants, forgiving, handsome, good wife and famous.

Jupiter in Taurus and Libra—Healthy, possessed of happiness, friends, wealth and children, liberal and popular.

Jupiter in Gemini and Virgo—Surrounded by worldly paraphernalia or titles, children and friends, minister, consul and happy
STANZA 18
Jupiter in Cancer.—Possessed of great wealth and gems, children, wife, enjoyment, intelligence and happiness.

Jupiter in Leo—Commander and all the results indicated above in Cancer.

Jupiter in Sagittarius and Pisces—King or minister or commander or wealthy.

Guru in Kumbha will produce the results ascribed to him in canees Jupiter in Capricornus Mean, Poor, unhappy.

STANZA 14
Venus in Aries and Scorpio—Fond of other women, losing money through their flattery and hater of his race.

Venus in Taurus and Libra—Self-acquired property, respected by rulers, leader of his men, renowned and courageous.

STANZA 15
Venus in Gemini—Doing rulers work or service, wealthy and learned.

Venus in Virgo—Doing very mean acts. Venus in Capricornus and Aquarius popular, slave to women and intercourse with bad women.

STANZA 16
Venus in Cancer—gives two wives mendicant timid, full of sexual passion and sorrow through it.

Venus in Leo—Getting wealth through a woman handsome wife and few children.

Venus in Sagittarius—Adorned with many good qualities and rich.

Venus in Pisces—Learned, wealthy respected by rulers and very popular.

STANZA 17.
Saturn in Aries—Ignorant, itenarian, cheat and friendless.

Saturn in Scorpio—Imprisonment, whipping, capricious and merciless.

Saturn in Gemini and Virgo.—Childless, poor, shameless, un, happy, not knowing painting, protective officer and chief man.

One reading is skilled in painting. Another reading says he will be Rakshasa pathi or lord of Rakshasas or evil genii.
Saturn in Taurus—Connections with prohibited and low caste women, ordinary wealth and many wives.

Saturn in Libra.—Famous, respected by communities, towns, army and villages, wealthy.

Saturn in Cancer.—Poor, loose teeth in other, childless and ignorant.

Saturn in Leo.—Bad, childless and unhappy, carrying loads.

STANZA 19

Saturn in Sagittarius and Pisces.—Good death or happy in the end, confidant with princes or rulers, good children, wife and wealth, commander of towns armies and villages.

Saturn in Capricornus and Aquarius.—Getting others women wealth and others houses, chief of towns, villages and army. Short sighted, dirty, permanent wealth, general prosperity and enjoying.

NOTES.

In the results sketched above, they must be predicted in full, when the house is strong, as also its lord and the planet which occupies it. If two of these are strong, the results will be moderate, if one of them is strong there will be some of these characteristics; but if none of these is strong, then there will be traces of these results. For the sake of brevity I have not added many notes to these stanzas and I dont think they are needed as the translation itself is given in the simplest language possible. These results given by Varaha Mihira must be carefully predicted. As in medical drugs so also in planets individually, each may have its most prominent characteristics, but it is constantly influenced by time, place physical and mental conditions, habits and nature and the greatest skill of the doctor and the astrologer is wanted in discriminating the right result. Readings differ and sometimes they give radically opposite meanings. It is extremely difficult to say which is correct and as these planetary rays of light are mixed up with the different rays of light of the zodiac is it possible to imagine results of quite a different nature from what we may expect from ordinary conjunctions. In st 17 under Saturn in Gemini and Virgo, one reading is "Kusalasch Lakhya" meaning one well skilled in painting. The other reading is "Kusalasch Lakhya" meaning one who is discouraged in his attempts at painting. These two are radically different in purport: One reading is Raksha Path or he who protects people and another reading is Raksha path or lord of evil genii or Rakshas or giants mentioned in many of the Parumic works. This must be taken as referring to one who commands evil natured or bad men.

STANZA 20

The results which have been stated for the presence of Moon in each Rashi, and the results of aspects on Moon by other planets in the different signs will have to be applied for Lagna. The prosperity and adversity of each Bhava, must be predicted by the strength of the Bhava and its lord.

OTER

What the author means by this is that all those results which are attributed to the Moon in each sign will also apply to each of the signs or Lagnas. A man born in Aries will have the results predicted similar to those attributed to the Moon when he is in Aries. See St. 1st XVII

Maharastras have said that the results of the Lagna as well as of the Moon are similar, and bear no difference, because they are similar in nature. (See Notes in 8th VII)

Saty charyasi the great authority on whom Varaha Mihira relies for support thus gives the results of the various Lagnas.

Aries as Lagna—Bad words irritable creating quarts, stammering bilious and windy temperament, mixed suffering much from diseases losing parents at an early age few children helping relations and brothers perilous going to foreign countries doing unremunerative work getting as a wife a woman who is already married or who is base in character or a tale-bearer, or who has lost limbs, friendly, windy or bilious complaints death by poison, or by the treachery of his own men or by fire, or rain or by falling from fort walls.

Taurus as Lagna—Thick in s, nose, cheeks, big forehead, windy and phlegmatic, liberal spending in various ways female children, few sons doing much evil to parents, selfish engaged in immoral work wealthy fond of wife, destruction by weapon, doing always bad to relations, he will mean a foreign country by weapons chains or ropes beasts fatigue, water, cross or by force, travelling or quadrupeds.

Gemini as Birth sign.—Defective or abnormal organs polite, specially skillful in work, mixed temperament.
two mothers, ordinary intelligence and body respected by holy men and parents few brothers, suppressor of enemies virtuous fond of many works charitable, making remedies for illegal sources of wealth any wives get over many diseases death by runted elephants, wild beasts poison animals or water

Cancer as Lagna—Capricious diseased sexual organ turnd, mole or mark on the chest, windy and phlegmatic temperament quick comprehension, sinful, troubled by enemies misappropriating others monies rejected by relations having miscarriages doing hard work in foreign countries, leader of other people, unrivalled wife suffering defeats respected by large communities death by neck disease ropes phlegm breaking of bones separation of limbs by cuts or dropsy

Leo as Lagna—Fond of flesh bilious suffering, big losses under taking many enterprises big family misery loved by good people famous, causing trouble to brothers, destruction to relations warlike, sorrowless accomplishing work by various devices uncharitable many wives from different castes suffering pain from back knees and teeth death by weapons and poisons, sticks, phlegmatic diseases aquatic animals or thin

Virgo as Birth sign—Polite speech handsome long arms and legs mixed temperament, good sores, wealthy miser having many daughters quarrels among brothers virtuous, satisfied with small profits clever in work death by quadrupeds of various kinds weapons bilious complaints sorrow burning sensation from diseases or ropes

Libra as Birth—Deformed organs crooked temper, windy and phlegmatic constitution capricious short neck grateful reputation by large deeds fond of serving parents and instructors respected by father brothers and other people traveller, charitable run by family troubles widower quarrelsome suffering various sorrows death by leader relations quadrupeds sorrows from separation fasting or travelling

Scorpio as birth—Large nose belly and face cruel bilious, golden eyes soft and quick walk, leader of foreign verse, family and relations extravagent many issues cruel to unhappy, having many enemies many bulls unrighteous disgust through wife victorious over enemies not inclined to give many charities has enemies in his own family many diseases, death by fever, cutting of limbs capture by enemies ropes, beating painful diseases or fire
When the Lagna and its lord are strong, there will be good fortune. Men and women, in particular, are auspicious in this case. Similarly, the effects of the Lord of the 8th, 12th, and 11th houses are significant. If the Lord of the 8th is in its own sign and the Lord of the 11th is in its own sign, the effects will be beneficial. The Lagna must be aspected by the Moon and other planets. Good aspects from the Lord of the 8th and the Lord of the 11th can lead to wealth, success in business, and other benefits. If the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity. When the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity. When the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity. When the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity. When the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity. When the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity. When the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity. When the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity. When the Lagna is in a sign that is not its own, it may indicate that the person will face challenges and difficulties. The Lagna in its own sign or exaltation can lead to success and prosperity.
Lagna or Chandra must also be strong. They must have good conjunctions and aspects, and they should not be placed between evil planets. The Vargas occupied should be beneficent and they must have also clear and brilliant rays. The rays of exalted planets are certainly different from the rays of debilitated planets. Planets in unfriendly signs will have weaker influences than those who are in friendly mansions.

CHAPTER XIX

1. Driati Phaladyaya

(Retros of Planetary Aspects)

STANZA I

When the Moon is in Aries, aspected by Mars etc., the person becomes a King, Philosopher, equal to a ruler, virtuous, thief, and poor, respectively.

When the Moon is in Taurus aspected by Mars etc., the person becomes, poor, thief, respected by people, ruler, wealthy and servant respectively.

When the Moon is in Gemini aspected by Mars etc., the person will be a seller of weapons, ruler, learned, courageous, weak, and poor respectively.

When the Moon is in Cancer aspected by Mars etc., the person will be a warrior, poet, learned, ruler, living by weapons and have eye complaints respectively.

Notes

True to his motto Varahamihira is very brief and suggestive in these stanzas. One or two explanations offered here will be quite sufficient to make his meaning clear.

When the Moon occupies Aries aspected by Mars the person becomes a ruler, aspected by Mercury he becomes learned or Philosopher, aspected by Jupiter he becomes a statesman or some other personage equal to a king or ruler. Aspected by Venus the person becomes virtuous or full of good qualities, some read here Venus instead of Sun and make it mean a merchant, aspected by Saturn he becomes a thief and aspected by the Sun the man becomes poor.

In the case of Saturn, Jupiter and Mars, there will be powerful aspects in the 3rd and 10th, 5th and 9th and 4th and 8th houses respectively as well as in the 7th from all other planets. Thus when the Moon is in Aries with Saturn in Cancer, Jupiter in Leo and Mars in Virgo, we shall have the aspect of Saturn in the 10th, of Jupiter in the 9th and of Mars in the 8th. When the Moon is in Aries and Saturn is in Libra there is Saturnine aspect and the person will become a thief but as Saturn is exalted in Libra the rank of the person may be good among the thieves. He becomes their leader. If the Sun is in Libra he aspects the Moon in Aries and makes the person poor as he has his fall in that house. The Consensus of Astrological opinion seems to say that the most powerful aspect will be in the 7th house although special sights have been enumerated both in Bṛhat Jātaka and other eminent works. When the Moon is in Taurus aspected by Mars the person becomes poor, aspected by Mercury thief, aspected by Jupiter respected by people, some read Ṛṣipadaḥya instead of Ṛṣimanya and explain by saying that he will be a ruler, aspected by Venus king, aspected by the Sun the person becomes a servant. Similarly explain regularly for other signs and aspects.

These results will also hold good for Lagna or birth sign when aspected by Mars etc. That is if birth is Aries aspected by Mars the person be

Stanza 2

If the Moon is in Leo aspected by Mercury etc., the person will become learned in astrology, chief or lord, Raja, barber, ruler and thief respectively.

If the Moon is in Virgo aspected by Mercury etc., the man becomes a ruler, connubial, dexterous and respected by malesfics the person lives as a dependent upon women respectively.

If the Moon is in Libra aspected by Mercury etc., he becomes a ruler, goldsmith, merchant and by the evil planets, killer of animals respectively.

When the Moon is in Scorpio aspected by Mars etc., the person becomes father of twins, polite, washerman, defective in organs, poor and ruler respectively.

Notes

Here he has commenced from Mercury etc. with a view to shorten the Stanza and make it more suggestive.
The planets are always to be taken in their usual order of the Sun, Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus, and Saturn; suppose we commence with Mercury then the order will be Mercury, Jupiter, Venus, Saturn, Sun and Mars as we are treating of the aspects of these planets upon the Moon. Here to cut short the language and give greater suggestion the last three planets are malefics—viz., Saturn, Sun, and Mars and hence he gives one result for all these malefics.

If the Moon is in Leo, aspected by Mercury the person becomes learned in Astrology. This term Astrology in Sanskrit includes both Siddhanta (Astronomical Mathematics) and phasma (the art of predictive or judicial Astrology). If the Moon in Leo is aspected by Jupiter the person becomes a lord, aspected by Venus, a ruler, aspected by Saturn, a barber, aspected by the Sun, a king, aspected by Mars a ruler, and similarly for other signs. The word Yugmathi is used, which means father of twins. Aspected by Mercury applies to a person who is the father of twins. In the last case it is to be explained as a man being born to one father and then to another mother married another man and he gets another father. This is very frequently met with among the Western nations. The first Yugmatha well grammatically as representing the father of twins, but the second interpretation seems to be strained, from a grammatical point of view.

Stanza 3

If the Moon is in Sagittarius aspected by Mercury the person will protect relations etc., be a king, master of many, aspected by malefics the person will be showy or dissimulato, in attentive to others' interests respectively.

If the Moon is in Capricornus aspected by Mercury etc., the person becomes King of Kings, Raja, Pandit, wealthy, poor and Raja respectively.

If the Moon is in Aquarius aspected by Mercury etc., he becomes a Raja, equal to a ruler, a fond of others' wives and aspected by other planet, he will be fond of others' wives respectively.

If the Moon is in Pisces aspected by Mercury etc., the person will be a Joker, Raja, Pandit and aspected by malefics becomes sinful.
Notes.

Here he has not given the results of the aspects of Moon upon Lagna Bhattacharyia thus reconciles or explains this omission. (See Ch 1 Stanza 19) The Lagna becomes powerful when aspected or joined by its lord, by Jupiter or Mercury. Therefore when Cancer becomes Lagna and Moon aspects it it becomes powerful and good results must be predicted. When other signs become Lagna (Ascendant) and Moon aspects them, they do not become powerful and therefore no good results would follow.

Stanza 4

If the other planets occupy the same horas as the Moon and aspect him the results will be beneficial. When the lord of the Drakshana occupied by the Moon aspects him the results are favourable. If the Moon is aspected by planets "in friendly houses, it is good." The results which have been stated above for each of the houses of the Zodiac by the occupation of the Moon and the aspects of other planets will also be similar when the Moon occupies the Dwadasamsa of those planets. Hereafter the aspects of the Sun etc., in the Navamsas, on the Moon in the Navamsas will be detailed.

Notes.

Hora means half of a sign (see Sts 9 and 11 Ch. 1) The Moon necessarily occupies some hora of a sign at the time of birth. Suppose he occupies the Solar Hora in Aries. Then if he has the aspects of planets in Solar Hora in any other sign or signs the results will be favourable. But if they occupy Lunar Horas and aspect such Moon the results will be malefic. Suppose Moon is in the Lunar Hora in Virgo, then if he has the aspects of planets occupying Lunar Horas in any other house the results will be favorable but if they occupy Solar Horas and aspect the Moon in a Lunar Hora, the results are evil. Lagna must similarly be explained. Coming to the Drakshana (one third part of a sign) suppose Moon occupies the third Drakshana in Aries. The lord of this Drakshana will be Jupiter. If Jupiter aspects the Moon the results are good. The word used is Tala-patibhis, etc., lords of those houses. By this Varahamihira includes the aspects in Navamsas, Dwadasamsas and Trimsamsas. When the lords of these divisions aspecting the Moon as benefic the results are very good, but when they are male be fond of killing living objects, aspected by Mercury he becomes a good wrestler or clever in hand to hand fight, aspected by Jupiter he becomes a ruler or a King, aspected by Venus the person gets wealth and aspected by Saturn the man becomes quarrelsome. When the Moon is in the Navamsas of Venus—Taurus and Libra—aspected by the Sun the man becomes stubborn and obstinate, aspected by Mars or Saturn the person becomes fond of others’ wives aspected by Mercury or Jupiter the man becomes a good poet and aspected by Venus fond of happiness. In the case of the aspects of Mercury and Jupiter Bhattotpala seems to make a slight difference. When Mercury aspected the Moon, the person will be versed in poetry and will also be a good poet. When Jupiter aspected he will be able to compose pleasant poetry.

STANZA 6

Moon occupying the Navamsa of Gemini and Virgo, aspected, by the Sun etc., makes the man a stage wrestler, thief, poet minister, musician and skilful in painting and arts respectively. When the Moon is in his Navamsa aspected by the Sun etc., the person will be lean, miserly or poor, saint, chief. brought up by females and fond of work respectively.

NOTES.

When the Moon occupies Gemini or Virgo, aspected by the Sun he becomes a stage wrestler, aspected by Mars a thief, by Mercury a poet, by Jupiter a minister, by Venus a musician, by Saturn skilful in painting and arts. When the Moon occupies his own Navamsa, viz. Cancer aspected by the Sun the person will be lean by Mars miser or poor, by Mercury a saint, by Jupiter minister, by Venus brought up by females, by Saturn fond of work. Here it will be seen that for each aspect the author gives only one result. The degrees of poverty or proficience must depend upon the associations and dispositions the planets have in the Navamsa.

STANZA 7.

Moon in the Navamsa of Leo, aspected by the Sun etc., makes a man angry, protege of a king, get treasure true, breaking no opposition in command, childless and fond of cruel deeds respectively. If Moon is in the Navamsas of Sagittarius or Pisces, aspected by the Sun etc., the person becomes well known for strength, clever in arranging armies in a battle, jester or humourist, minister impotent and righteous respectively.

STANZA 8.

If Moon occupies the Navamsas of Capricornus or Aquarius aspected by the Sun etc., the person has few issues, miserly while wealthy, pride, fondness for his own sectarian deeds, fondness for bad women and miserly habits respectively, when the Sun is aspected by the Moon etc., similar results must be predicted.

NOTES.

Lagna Navamsa must similarly be explained. When the Lagna falls in Karka Navamsa, aspected by the Moon the results are good but when it falls in any other house having the Lunar aspect the results must be predicted as unfavourable. In the Navamsas the aspects of paragraphs viz. Mars, Mercury Jupiter, Venus, and Saturn upon Moon and the Sun produce similar results. The results predicted by the aspect of the Sun upon Moon will also be the results when the Moon aspects the Sun.
If the sun in Aries and Scorpio is aspected by the Moon, the person will be a ruler, if he is in Taurus and Libra aspected by the Moon, he will be obstinate, if he is in Gemini and Virgo Navamsa aspected by the Moon, he will be a stage wrestler, if he occupies his own Navamsa of Leo aspected by the Moon, he will be irritable if he is in Sagittarius and Pisces, aspected by the Moon, he will be a reputed athlete, if he occupies the Navamsas of Capricornus and Aquarius, he will have a few issues if he is in Cancer aspected by Moon, he will be a lean man.

STANZA 9.

The results which have now been detailed above for Moon will be full, moderate and meagre as Chandra is in Vargottama, his own house or other houses. If the results are bad the above should be reversed. If the Lord of the Amsa is powerful he will give his Amsa Phala in preference to any phala which may be indicated by aspects in the Rasi diagrams.

NOTES.

There are two sets of results in the aspects of planets upon Moon in the Navamsas—good or bad. Take one example. When the Moon is in the Navamsa of Aries aspected by the Sun the result will be good on the man as he will become a protector or chief Magistrate in a town but when Moon is aspected by Mars the result is bad as the person becomes fond of killing. Therefore when the Moon is in Vargottama good results indicated by planetary aspects will be completely given. When Moon is in his own Amsa good indicated by planetary aspects will be moderate. When Moon is in other Navamsas then the good results indicated by planetary aspects will be small with reference to evil results. The process must be reversed then—when the Moon is in other Navamsas the evil results indicated by planetary aspects will be completely given, when the Moon is in his own Navamsa, the evil results will be moderately given, but when the Moon is in his Vargottama Navamsa the evil results indicated by the planetary aspects will be less or nominal. Similarly the results must be explained for Lagna and Rasi in the Navamsa.

Bhatotpala explains by saying that the results of planetary conjunctions, of mutual exchanges of places, in Rasi and Amsa and of their aspects etc. are as immesurable as are the waters of the mighty ocean and quotes a beautiful stanza in support of his view from Yavanswara.
The Lord of the Navamsa occupied by the Moon or Lagna at the time of birth, if powerful will give the amsa aspect results in preference to Rasi aspect results. By this Bhattotpala infers and rightly too that the results of aspects etc. in the Hora, Drakshana and Dādāsanā are not affected by the strength of the Amsa lord. But when this Amsa lord is not powerful both the results of the rasi and amsa aspects must be predicted. This refers to the Moon and Lagna and not to the Sun.

CHAPTER XX.

Bhavadhyaya.

Effects of planets in the different significations

STANZA 1

Notes

This is called the Bhavadhyaya. Bhava means the exact house which controls certain events of the man's life. Take a person born in the first degree of Aries. Then the next 30 degrees from the first Bhava and those planets which are within 30 degrees from it are supposed to remain in the first Bhava and affect it according to their powers. The importance of mathematical astronomy in determining the different Bhava, the correct positions of the planets, their conjunctions, aspects, exaltations retrogrades, combustions, etc., cannot be sufficiently urged. Every student of Astrology who approaches this science without mathematical ability to determine the various plane.
ties, by the rulers under some pretext or the other. The person will also have some diseased face. This means that the face will not have a healthy appearance and probably there will be cutaneous eruptions, sores, or boils or other skin diseases.

STANZA 2

The Sun in the third produces intelligence and valour. In the fourth he makes a man unhappy and worried in mind. In the fifth the Sun makes a man, issueless and poor. In the sixth house he produces strength, defeat by enemies.

NOTES.

About the results of the Sun and other evil planets in the 6th house, there seems to be some diversity of opinion. But on a careful examination there is apparently no cause for any contest. Satyacharya lays down a general principle in the following words—all houses or Bhavas (significations) occupied by benefics prosper while the same will be destroyed when malefics occupy them. Take the 2nd house—denoting wealth. If Jupiter, Full Moon, Venus, or good Mercury, occupies it, the person will have much cash, but if malefics, like Saturn, Mars, or the Sun occupies it, the person must lose wealth or be in poor circumstances. The sixth house denotes debts, diseases, enemies and sorrows. What would the good planets do there as opposed to malefics is a question the solution of which is most interesting for astrological students. Bhatotpala with his usual keen perception of these difficulties comes to our relief and quotes from eminent authors to throw light upon this vexed question. Satyacharya says that if the Sun is in the 6th house he will destroy enemies, disease and sorrow. But Varahamihira in this instance seems to rely more upon the doctrine of Yavaneshwara, who says that evil planets, in the 6th increase enemies, disease and sorrows. Quoting from Sphruji Dhwaja, Bhatotpala observes—When the Sun is in the 6th house he makes the person suffer from poison, weapons, burning, hunger, and enemies. He also makes him to lose his teeth by fall or by sticks. Makes him travel and gives danger or wounds from wild beasts. If Mars is in the 6th house he gives wounds in the bodily organs, diseases rejected by many. If Saturn is in the 6th the man has danger from the falling of stones or thunder bolt, windy complaint and blows from fist. Varahamihira says later on that the results of malefic conjunctions in the 6th will be similar to those produced by the Sun. Hence there seems to be agreement in his doctrine and that which is propounded by Sphujidhvaja (See notes on Sl. 10. of his Ch.)

STANZA 3

Sun in the 7th—disgrace from women
Sun in the 8th—fine children, defective sight
Sun in the 9th—possessed of children, wealth and happiness.
Sun in the 10th—happiness and courage.
Sun in the 11th—very wealthy Sun in the 12th—irreligious

NOTES

About the results of the Sun in the 9th house Varahamihira differs from his leader Satyacharya. The latter gives the results thus—

When the Sun is in the 9th the person will act against recognised moral rules, suffer from disease and be a humble mendicant. Experience has shown that Satyacharya seems to be nearer the mark than Varahamihira, as persons born with the Sun in the 9th are more prone to suffer than to enjoy.

STANZA 4

The Moon in birth makes a man dull, deranged, stubborn, blind, base, deaf, or servant. If that birth falls in Cancer, Aries or Taurus he gets wealthy, many children or rich respectively. In the second house Moon produces a big family, in the 3rd he makes a man cruel, or an executioner, in the 4th or 5th he will increase those significations. In the 6th house he gives many enemies, tender body, weak digestion, weak sexual inclination, cruel mind and laziness.

NOTES.

Moon is specially detested in the 6th, 8th and 12th houses as he produces great misery. When he is full or powerfully aspected by benefics these evil results must be greatly modified. When he is weak and has powerful evil aspects he produces much unpleasantness. Weak sexuality may mean that the person may have little inclination to indulge in sexual correspondence or that the seminal discharge takes place very quickly.

STANZA 5.

Moon in the 7th makes a man envious and passionately fond of women. In the 8th Moon produces capriciousness and suffering constantly.
Mars in the second—dull meals.
Mars in the 9th—sinful.

In other houses (Bhavas) from Lagna Mars produces results similar to the Sun.

Mercury in the first eight houses produces learning, wealth, baseness, wisdom, Minister, foolish, versed in philosophy, and endowed with good character respectively and in others he is similar to the Sun in results.

NOTES

Varahamihira is short and suggestive. In the 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th houses Mars is declared to give similar results as the Sun does there. For instance when the Sun is in the 3rd from birth he produces intelligence and courage or valor. When Mars is in the 3rd from birth he gives also intelligence and prowess. Mercury produces the following characteristics in the man when he occupies the birth and the next seven houses respectively. In counting in these matters it should begin from birth itself as one. Thus if Aries is birth and Mars is in Leo we have to count from Aries as one, Taurus two, Gemini three, Cancer four, and Leo five. Therefore Mars is in the 5th house from birth and results

Mars in Lagna—wounds or cuts in the body.
named for the Sun in the fifth must be applied to Mars also. Mercury in birth produces learning, in the second wealth, in the third baseness in the fourth wisdom, in the fifth a minister, in the sixth no enemies, in the seventh a philosopher and in the eighth a man famous for his character. And in the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth houses Mercury gives results similar to the Sun.

STANZA 7.

Jupiter gives the following results in the 12 Bhavas—from birth thus—learned, good speech, miser, happy, intelligent, foeless, eclipsing father, debased, pious, wealthy, profitable work and unscrupulous respectively.

NOTES.

When Jupiter is in the 1st or birth house the person becomes learned in the second Jupiter gives good speech in the third miserliness, in the fourth happiness, in the fifth intelligence, in the sixth no enemies, in the seventh Jupiter makes the person greater than his father in goodness, in the eighth the person becomes mean of debased, in the ninth pious, in the tenth wealthy, in the eleventh profitable engagements and in the twelfth unscrupulous character.

STANZA 8.

Venus in Meena give skill in sexual indulgence and happiness. In the 7th he makes the native fond of quarrelling and sexual intercourse. In the fifth he gives happiness and in other houses the result will be equal to Jupiter. And in the 12th Venus gives health.

NOTES.

The word used for the 12th is Antya, end or last house. Thatopala explains this as Pisces or Meena and wherever this may fall in, he person becomes wealthy. A patron or another reading runs thus—Jhask Dronameseth which means that Venus in Meena wherever it might fall, gives wealth while the other reading is—Annya Giriha Sathinantu which means that Venus in the 12th gives wealth. The Antya here must be construed as Pisces or per commentator. I am inclined to differ slightly from him and say that Venus produces good results in the 12th house wherever that may fall in. If Aries is birth then 12th is Pisces and Venus is good. So also if Cancer is in birth and Venus is in Gemini, he will give good, general sources of strength affecting planets alike.
Venus in the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th houses will produce phalam or results similar to Jupiter. Thus Venus in the 2nd gives good speech, in the 3rd mischief, in the 4th happiness, in the 6th non-enemy, in the 8th baseness, in the 9th piety, in the 10th wealth, in the 11th gains, and in the 12th unscrupulousness.

Stanza 9

Saturn in the first gives daily poverty, disease, cupidity, uncleanness, sickness in early life, and indistinct speech. If Saturn occupies exaltation or houses of Jupiter or his own house, which happens to be Lagna, he makes the person equal to a king, protector of villages or towns, learned, and handsome organs. In other houses he will give results similar to those given by the Sun.

Stanza 10

Take the birth sign etc. and the body etc. and predict results by the planets occupying friendly, inimicable, neutral, own, and exalted houses. Satyacharya declares that benefics and malefics in the houses produce good and bad results in them respectively. And the results are reversed in the 6th, 8th and 12th houses.

Notes

The notes given by Bhataipala are clear and exhaustive. Take birth, 2nd, 3rd etc. up to and including the 12th and assign to them the proper events already enumerated by Varaha Mihira and other astrological writers. Thus the birth indicates body, the second family, the third brothers and so forth. Here Varaha Mihira uses the word Lagna distinctly and asks the readers to count from Lagna. This looks like repetition (See St. 15 Ch. I). As Yavanaswara has laid down the principle that the Bhavas may be begun by Hora (birth) or Sasidham the house occupied by the Moon 14, from the Moon, Varaha Mihira also supports this view in some more texts. But here with a view to avoid any reference to Moon as a Lagna (Chandram Lagna) he specially mentions Lagna only. The prosperity or adversity to the various Bhavas (significations) must be judged by the conjunction of planets in those houses. Bhavadi pathi (Lord of the house indicating any event) gives such results as are indicated by the terms under which he occupies a house. Sutr translates means a friend. An means an enemy. Paraksha means a neutral.
means his own house and Thinga means exaltation. When the lord of a particular Bhava is in a friendly house, he gives prosperity to events indicated by that Bhava. Take the birth. It indicates body, personal characteristics etc. If its lord is in a friendly house he gives a good and healthy body and desirable attributes. If he is in an unfriendly house he introduces sickness, deformity etc. Benefics or malefics in friendly or debilitated houses produce evil to events indicated by that Bhava. If they are neutral, their results will be indifferent. If they are in exaltation, Mulathrikona their own houses or friendly houses they give prosperity and success to events indicated by that Bhava. Bhagavan Gargi is quoted to support this view.

According to Satya, if benefics are in the 6th, 8th and 12th, they destroy the evils indicated by those Bhavas, and if evil planets are there, they increase the evils. Bhatotpala quotes Satya here in conformity with the above view. In the previous part of this work, all planets (benefics and malefics) have been declared to be productive of favourable results if they are in Oopachayas of which 6th is said to be one. Now it is stated that malefics increase evils in the 6th house. When two distinct statements are made by Varaha Mihira, each contradicting the other, the meaning should be thus explained. Among the Oopachaya houses (6 to 11), evil planets in the 5th must be declared to be insidious and not producing good results attributed to Oopachaya. The commentator quotes from Laghu jataka which says that benefics increase the Bhavas they occupy excepting in the 6th where they destroy the events indicated by that Bhava. Malefics destroy the Bhavas they occupy. It is undesirable to have any planets in the 8th and 12th houses. Here Varaha Mihira contradicts himself. In the 6th according to the above quotations evil planets destroy the evils, while according to the present stanza, evil planets in the 5th increase the evils. But Bhatotpala very clearly reconciles these apparent contradictions, by stating that Varaha Mihira, who studied the several Matas (systems or vedas) of the ancient Maha Rishis explains one system in Brihat Jataka and another in Laghu Jataka and this he further supports by a quotation from Varaha Mihira himself from his immortal Sambhata where Varaha Mihira thus explains his views with reference to various contradictions which he must have noticed in the course of his extensive and wonderful studies. Varaha Mihira observes: 'Jyotisha is a Veda contradiction is it cannot be criticised by us, for it has been compiled by the great Muns who were blessed with thinkala Drusti.' and therefore I simply give here the many systems promulgated by the ancients (see 57 ch 1, Brihat Sambhata). Here it will be seen that both the learned Varaha Mihira and his illustrious commentator Bhatotpala, deal a death blow to such egotists who in their narrow and self-elected views, think they are competent to express their own views as against the opinions expressed by the ancient Maha Rishis. Some of the braggadocio Western astrologers whose knowledge in astrology is comparable to the knoutledge of the tortoise in a small well, think foolishly that they can cure the defects in astrology by the ill digested views. These may safely refer to the noble remarks of two of the most eminent astrologers, and think seriously whether they are not under the malevolent influences of an afflicted Luna, when they boast of their learning, which is not even a grain in the sands of the vast ocean.

Varaha Mibra clearly points out the different contradictory systems when they are ably and properly supported by equal authorities. Bhoota pala here mentions some other works of Varaha Mibra which have not been before the public in any printed form. Varaha Mibra is undoubtedly declared to have written (1) Brihatyatra (2) Lagbhatra (3) Brihatavibhanga Patalam and (4) Laghu Vivaha Patalam and in these works he is stated to have given various kundalis or planetary combinations (in horoscopes) to elucidate his principles and the different doctrines he has compiled. When I was in Cochin, a few carpenters of great skill and sanctity ably quoted verses from Varaha Mibra's Granthasa makadaya, which deals with mechanics and carpentry and house building. If the books containing the horoscopes can be found, they will be very interesting.

Stanza II

Planets in exaltation, in Moolathrikona, in own, friendly, immovable, debilitated houses, and in combust with the Sun give, good in full, three fourths, half, quarter, little and nil respectively.

Notes

In planetary conjunctions two sorts of results are named (1) good and (2) evil. When planets are inclined to give good they give full when they are in exaltation, three fourths when they are in Moolathrikona, half when they are in their own houses, one fourth in friendly houses, less than that in unfriendly houses, and no good result in debilitation and combust places. As regards the evil results the order must be reversed. If the combust or pecha planet is inclined to give evil he will give it in full, three fourths in unfriendly houses, one fourth in its own houses in Moolathrikona less than one fourth, and none in exaltation. A planet will give full good or bad only when he is powerful and thus must be carefully applied to periods and sub-periods, As takavarga etc. Bhatotpala quotes ancient authority which runs thus: A planet, when inclined to give good or bad will give it in full etc. only when he is powerful. The sources of strength here indicated are detailed in Ch. II.

Chapter XXI

ASRYAYOGA DHAYAYA

Results of Planets from their position

Stanza I

When one and more planets are in their own houses the man becomes equal to his relations, chief of his family, respected by relations, wealthy, equal to a ruler, happy, and king, respectively. If one and more planets are in friendly houses the person will be brought up by others by friends, by cousins, by brothers, chief of a community, commander and king respectively.

Notes

When one planet is in his own house the person becomes an equal to his relations which means that he will attain to ordinary positions attained by his family members, when two are in their own houses he becomes a chief of the family.
When three planets are in their own houses he will be respected by his relations, when four planets are in their own houses he will command wealth, when five planets are in their houses he will be happy, when six planets are in their own houses he will be equal to a ruler, and when the seven planets are placed in their own houses the person becomes a king. When one planet is in his friendly house he will be dependent and be brought up by others. When two planets are so, he will be brought up by friends, when three planets are so, he will be brought up by cousins, when four planets are so his brothers bring him up, when five are so, he becomes the chief of a community or society, when six are so he becomes a commander or general and when seven planets are in their friendly houses he becomes a king.

is one planet in an unfriendly house or debilitation, the person becomes poor, when two planets are so he will be unhappy, when three are so, he becomes ignorant or dull; when four planets are so he will be constantly suffering from disease, when five planets are in debilitation or unfriendly houses, he gets imprisonment, when six planets are so he will be drowned in sorrow and when seven are so the person commits acts which would take him to the gallows or he will be hanged.

No results have been stated here for exaltation of seven planets but in this stanza, phalam has been stated for seven planets in debilitation. Under the present astronomical conditions, calculations and movements of planets such a combination as the debilitation of seven planets seems to be an impossibility. For if the Sun be exalted in Aries we can great personal attractions. If benefics join the lunar Hora in even signs, the person becomes tender-hearted, handsome, happy, popular, intelligent and polite speaker.

Notes
Hora means one half of a Rasi or sign and extends over 15°. Odd signs are Aries, Gemini, Leo, Libra, Sagittarius and Aquarius. In all these the first 15 degrees are under the solar control and hence the Sun is called the prathama horadhyath in these signs. If evil planets are in these horas of the Sun, then the person becomes famous etc. In the even signs viz: Taurus, Cancer, Virgo, Scorpio, Capricorn and Pisces, the first Hora, or half is rule by the Moon, and if benefics are in such born the native becomes kindhearted, handsome, etc.

Strana 5
If the planets in the same horas are found in other Rasis (signs) the persons born then will have the results moderately. If the planets are reversed in Horas and Rasis the persons born will not have the above characteristics.

Notes
The motto of Varaha Mihira to say briefly is terribly fulfilled here. He is splendidly helped by the flexible and bigly developed sanskrit language and the same brevity and suggestiveness cannot be brought out in the poor English language. If evil planets are in solar Horas in even signs the results named above will be moderately enjoyed. If benefics are in lunar Hora in odd signs the results are moderate. But if evil planets are in Chandra Hora in even signs there will be no phalam sketched above. If benefic occupy the solar Hora in odd signs there will be no phalam. When there are two or more planets in similar position the intensity of good, or evil must be proportionately considered (see at 11. Ch 1) Here we see that odd signs are considered as cruel, masculine etc and even signs as mild, feminine etc. The Solar Hora must be cruel as compared with the lunar, which is milder. Therefore cruel planets in cruel houses, in cruel horas give good results. If there are some in one and some in the other, the results will be neutralised. If all the planets are topsy-turvy then these good results will not be present.

Strana 6
If Moon is in his own or friendly Drekkanas the person will be handsome and virtuous. If Moon is in other Drekkanas the person will get the characteristics of the lord of the Drekkanas. If the Moon is in Vayala, Udyathayudha, Chatuscharna and Andaja Drekkanas the person born will be vindictive, very cruel, fouling Guru's wife and traveller respectively.

Notes
When the Rasi (signs) are divided into 3 equal parts each is called a Drekkanas, or each division gets 10 degrees. The lords of these 3 Drekkanas are the lords of the 1st, of the 5th and of the 9th divisions respectively of that rasi. When the Moon is in his own or friendly Drekkanas it gives beauty and virtue. But when he is in other Drekkanas then the characteristics will be decided by the lord of that Drekkanas. If the lord of that Drekkanas where the Moon is becomes his temporary friend, then beauty and virtue will be full, but when he is a neutral, they will be moderate but when he is a foe then they will be absent. Vyala means in Sanskrit serpent Ulaj also means armed with weapons. Chittaraka means four-footed or quadrupeds and adaja means born of an egg or bird. If Moon is in serpent Drekkanas the person will be vindictive or highly excitable. The following are Vyala Drekkanas, and 3rd Drekkanas of Cancer, 1st and 2nd of Scorpio and 3rd of Pisces; if Moon is in Ulajtyajikas the person will be fond of killing or murdering. The following are armed Drekkanas, 1st and 3rd of Arias, 2nd and 3rd of Gemini, 2nd and 3rd of Leo, and 2nd of Virgo, 3rd of Libra 1st and 3rd of Sagittarius and 3rd of Capricorn.

If Moon is in quadruped Drekkanas the person will commit adultery with his instructor's wife and the following are quadruped Drekkanas; and of Arias, 2nd and 3rd of Leo, 3rd of Libra, 3rd of Scorpio, 1st of Sagittarius and the 1st of Capricorn.

If Moon is in Bird Drekkanas he will be a traveller; the bird Drekkanas are the following—and of Gemini, 1st of Leo, 2nd of Libra and 1st of Aquarius. If now Moon is in the 1st Drekkanas of Cancer, he will be both in his own Drekkanas and that of a quadruped also. The results will have to be predicted by reference to both. Suppose Moon occupies the 2nd or 3rd Drekkanas of Leo. He occupies a friendly Drekkanas, armed Drekkanas and a quadruped Drekkanas. What results should be predicted? Bhartapala says summarise the 3 sources of results and predict them (See Ch. XXVII.)

STANZA 7.

A person born in the Navamsas of Arias etc., will become, a thief, an enjoyer, learned, wealthy, ruler, impotent, warlike, carrier, servant, sinful, cruel and intrepid. If these Navamsas fall in vargottamae, the person born then will become Master or chief of the above. The results for the Dwadasamsas will be similar to Rasis.

Notes.

If any other sign than Arias is Lagna and the Navamsa falls in Arias the person will become a Chief, excepting the sign Taurus, if the Navamsa Taurus rises in any sign the person enjoys all the comforts of this life, if the Gemini Navamsa rises in any other sign than Gemini the person becomes learned. And so for other signs. But suppose Arias is the ascendant and that Navamsa rises at birth. As that Navamsa falls in vargottamae, the person becomes a leader or chief of thieves or robbers. Taurus Navamsa is the vargottamae for Taurus sign and one born when Taurus is ascendant as well as the Navamsa, will be prominent or chief among those who enjoy the Goods of life. When Gemini is both the Rasi and Navamsa Lagna, the person will be the chief or leader among the learned (See St. 14 Ch. 1.) The results mentioned for the Moon in the twelve signs will be the results for the Dwadasamsas from Arias etc. (See Ch. XVII). There are two readings quoted by Bhartapala for a person born in Navamsa 1. Aditya which means fearless and 2. Aditya which means without sense. The latter cannot be accepted as Varaṇa Mihira distinctly says Aditya in Lagna Jataka, in this connection, and therefore Abbischa alone is Sadhu are acceptable

Stanza 8

When Mars is in his own Trimsamsa, the person will have wife, strength ornaments, generosity, personal attraction, and enterprising spirit. When Saturn is in his own Trimsamsa, the person becomes sickly, loses his wife, possesses double heart, enjoys others wives, sorrowful, possessed of houses cloths servants, etc., and will be uncleanly.

Notes

In this stanza Varaha Mihira, uses the word Bhaga which means Amsa, but when he gives the results of Venus in the third he distinctly says Trimsamsa, and hence Bhatotpala rightly interprets Bhaga here as Trimsamsa. Besides the results of Amsas have already been stated in odd signs the lords of the Trimsamsas are

Stanza 9

When Jupiter is in his own Trimsamsa, the person will have wealth, reputation, happiness, intelligence, attraction, respect, health, hope, and enjoyment. When Mercury occupies his own Trimsamsa, he gives the man intelligence, education, show, poetrical ability, eloquence, skill in arts, philosophical accumen, enter prise and much respect.

Notes

The stanza is clear and needs no explanation.

Stanza 10

When Venus occupies his own Trimsamsa, the man will be blessed with many sons, much happiness, health, popularity, wealth, beauty, vindictiveness, handsome body and enjoyment with many women. When the Sun and Moon are in the Trimsamsas of Mars etc., the person will be warlike and slothful, cruel and killing, virtuous and wealthy, happy and learned, handsome and popular respectively.

Notes

There are two readings with reference to Venus (1) Bhogya which means popularity and (2) Bhogya which means wife. Both are admissible. If the Sun and Moon are in the Trimsamsa of Mars the person will be war-like and slothful. If Saturn's Trimsamsa, the person will be cruel, and murderous. If Jupiter's Trimsamsa, he will be virtuous and wealthy. In Mercury's Trimsamsa, he will be happy and learned. In Venus's Trimsamsas he will be handsome and popular.

Chapter XXII

Prarjanakadhyaya

Mixed Results

Stanza 1

Planets in kendras when they happen to be in their own houses, in exaltations or in Mool Trikonna, are mutually termed karalas. Of these, the planet in the 10th will be the best karaka.
Notes

Mixed results or enumeration of various matters goes under the name of Prekrama. If there is any planet in a Kendra from birth, which is his own house or exaltation or Mool. Thrikona and there is another planet in a similar state in another Kendra, these two planets are said to be the Karakas mutually or to one another. Of these Karakas the most powerful is the one who occupies the 10th. This requires a little more explanation.

Buda is in Lagna Kendra and in his own house and he becomes a Karaka. Guru is in the 10th house and being in his own house he becomes a Karaka. Guru is in the 10th from the Karaka Buda and becomes thus the most powerful karaka.

Stanza 2

If birth falls in Cancer with Moon in it and Mars, Saturn, Sun and Jupiter are in exaltations they become mutual Karakas. For the planet in Lagna, the planets in the Ambara and Ambu become Karakas.

Stanza 3

If the planet in the 10th house from the planet who occupies his own house or Mool Thrikona or exaltation, happens to be a Nisarga friend and also Thathakara, he becomes a Karaka.
Notes

He gives here a separate case altogether unconnected with Kendra planets. If a planet is not in Lagna Kendra but occupies any other house and another planet occupies the 10th house from such a planet and this 10th house happens to be its own house or Moola thrikona or exaltation then this planet becomes a Karaka provided he is an intimate friend to the other planet. Here Bhatotpala seems to make some difference in Karakas. The planet in the tenth house does not become a Karaka to the planet from whom he is in the 10th.

Take Sun in Meena, Buda is in his own house. Sun now becomes a Karaka, but not a Karaka to Buda. Sun is a temporary as well as a permanent friend of Buda and is located in the 10th house from Buda.

</table>

The use of these Karakas is elaborately given in Varabhamihira's Yatra. During the Dasas of Karakas the person will do well to go to some ruler, win his favour and serve under him, so that his difficulties may be warded off. Rikta Dasa (Defeated planet's Dasa) the Dasas of the lords of birth and Chandra and during the sub-periods of their enemies, the results will be bad and hence the recommendation to go and serve under some monarchs (see notes on Ch XI St 19).

Stanza 4

If the Lagna falls in Virgo-tama, if good planets are in the Vesi, if the Kendras are not unoccupied, if there are Karaka planets, then the person will be happy.

Notes

Vargottama Navamsa will be the 1st Navamsa of the movable, the 5th Navamsa of the fixed and the 9th Navamsa of the double bodied signs and when examined will be found to fall in the same houses. Thus the Vargottama of Aries will be Aries in the Navamsa, that of Taurus will be Taurus and Gemini will fall in Gemini. This also applies to Moon Vesi means the 2nd house from where the Sun is located for the time being. This must be occupied by benefics. There are four quadrants from Lagna and one of them at least must be occupied by planets. Here if evil planets are found, the good will be moderate but if benefics are there, the results will be eminently satisfactory. Bhatotpala quotes a verse from Varabhamihira's Yatra, which says that in traveling or in any business or in birth there must be a benefit in one of the Kendras. If all the factors enumerated above are present then the happiness will be unlimited, but when less, the results will also be proportionately less. When there are Karakas in a horoscope it is good (See Ch I St 14 and 20).

Stanza 5

If Guru, Janmadhipathi, or Lagnadhipathi occupies a Kendra the person will have happiness.
in the middle of life. Planets in Prustodaya, Oobhayodaya and Srishtodaya give results in the end, middle and beginning of the man’s life respectively.

Notes

Janmadhipathi means the lord of the house where the Moon stays at the time of birth. Lagunadhpathi is the lord of the birth or ascendant. If any one of these or Guru occupies a Kendra, the person gets happiness in the middle life. If the Lord of the Dasa happens to be in Aries, Taurus, Sagittarius or Capricornus at the time of commencement of his period, he will give results at the end of his Dasa. If the planet occupies Pisces, then the results will be given in the middle, and if the planet is in Gemini, Leo, Virgo, Libra Scorpio, or Acquarius the results will be produced in the commencement. These results may be good or bad and they will be given by the Dasanpatha at the time indicated. Thus we have here to refer to their Gocbara movements to find out where they are and when they begin the Dasas. Gargi is quoted by the commentator to support this explanation as the original is short and silent.

Stanza 2

The Sun and Mars give results when they enter a house, Jupiter and Venus in the middle and Saturn and Moon in the end and Mercury always.

Notes

Here the results are indicated with reference to the Antarabhrtya already explained in Ch I. Take the Sun. He gets a 2nd power according to Astaka Varga calculations and thereby becomes powerful to give good or evil results. Divide the Rasi into 3 equal divisions. The Sun and Mars give their results when they enter a Rasi and before they leave the 1st division. Jupiter and Venus do so in the 2nd division and Saturn and Moon in the 3rd division. But Mercury continues to give his results all through the house he occupies.

End of Chapter XXII

Chapter XXIII

Anistadhyaya or Misfortunes

Stanza 1

If the 5th and 7th houses from Lagna or Chandra be occupied or aspected by benefics or their lords, then these Bhavas will prosper if not they will suffer.

If Kanya falls as birth with Ravi it and Sam in Meena, the wife will be lost. If in this conjunction the 5th house is occupied by Kuja, he causes loss to children.

Notes

This Chapter is called Anista or Anista and means that which treats of misfortunes. When a horoscope is given to an astrologer he will be able to say from what misfortunes the person is suffering from and this is very important for men to know. If the 5th house from Lagna or Moon is occupied or aspected by benefics or its lord, the person will be blessed with children. If the 5th house from Lagna or Chandra is not so occupied the person will be childless There are 12 kinds of children mentioned in the Sastras and Combinations for all these varieties are quoted from Saravalah by Bhatotpala

The twelve kinds of children are —

1. Ausravas — born to lawful wife
2. Kshetraja — born to one's wife with the consent of husband
3. Datta — given in adoption
4. Kritrima — nursing any one as one's own child
5. Adhama Prabhavan — one born to a wife without the husband's knowledge by a low caste man
6. Gudhotpanna — one born to wife similarly but for men of equal caste
7. Apavidhita — one neglected after birth
8. Pournarbhava — a child born to a second husband after the woman renounces the first
9. Kannya — born to Daughter
10. Sabodha — born to second wife
11. Kritaka — a child purchased
12. Dasiprabhava — born of illegitimate connection

Saravalah thus explains these varieties of children. If the 5th house in a horoscope belongs to a benefic or has its conjunction or aspect the person will have children.

If the 5th house falls in any one of the 6 divisions of Guru or falls in a beneficial sign the person will get legitimate child/en

If the 5th house from Lagna or Chandra, whichever is more powerful, has beneficial aspects the person will have lawful children. If the Navamsa of the 5th house falls in a beneficial sign the number of children will be determined by that Navamsa. If a benefic aspect it the number will be doubled. If this falls in a malefic Navamsa the number of losses will be determined by that Navamsa. If the 5th falls in the Sani’s house aspected by Buda the child will resemble Sani. If Muni, Kuja and Ravi aspect the same the child will be bidd.

If the 5th house belongs to Buda aspected by Sani Kshetraja will be born. If the 5th house belongs to Sani with Sani there aspected by Chandra the son will be adopted. If the 5th house belongs to Buda with Buda there aspected by Chandra, the child will be purchased.

If the 5th house joins Kuja’s Saptaamsa with Sani there unspected by other planets the child will be Kritrima. If the 5th house falls in Sani’s varga with Ravi there aspected by Kuja the child will be Adhama Prabhava. If the 5th joins Kuja’s amsa with Chandra there aspected by Sani, unspected by other planets, the child will be Gudhotpanna.

If the 5th joins Sani’s Varga with Kuja there aspected by Ravi Apavidhita will be born as per Charaka Muni.

If the 5th falls in Sani’s Varga with Sani and Chandra there aspected by Sukra and Ravi, the child will be Pournarbhava.

If the 5th falls in Cancer conjunct or aspected by the Sun the child will be Kannya.

If the 5th falls in Ravi’s or Chandra’s divisions with Ravi or Chandra in it aspectsed by Sukra the child will be Sabodha.

If the 5th falls into malefic signs aspected by powerful malefic unaspected by benefics, the person will have... no children. If the 5th house falls in Sukra's Navamsa, expected by Sukra the children will be from concubines.

If the 3rd falls in Chandra Navamsa with the aspect, similar results must be predicted. If the 5th falls in Sukra or Chandra Navamsa and combined or aspected by him, there will probably be daughters or the child's nature will partake of that Rasi. Similarly if the 7th house from Lagna or Chandra is combined or aspected by benefics or if lord is there, there will be prosperity to wife. If there is no conjunction or aspected for the 7th house there will be no wife. He the author has quoted two Bhavas, 3rd and 7th as examples and thereby shows the readers that these principles may be extended to all other Bhavas. Bhatotpala quotes Yavatkeswara who says that the events of life may be judged at birth from Birth or the Moon. There seems to be some contradiction in the views of the learned Commentator. In Ch 28. 56 in his valuable notes, he says that the different Bhavas must be taken from Lagna and not from Chandra and that is the reason way his author Varkalamba repeats Lagna Dashad Bhagha. See notes. If Venus, Jupiter, Moon or Mercury or all of their occupancy or aspect the 7th or if the 7th falls in the house of any one of these or their divisions then the nature of the wife will be according to the Lord of the sign or the nature of the sign. If the 7th from birth or Moon, whatever is powerful—is comb or aspected by malefics there will be losser destruct to a wife. If the 7th house is occupied by Saturn and Moon his wife will marry separately while he is living. The number of wives will have to be determined by the number of Navamsa, the lord of the 7th has gained or by the number of planets who aspect the lord of the 7th. If the 7th falls in the Amsas of Ravi, Kusa, Guru or Buda, there will be one wife. If the 7th is powerful and occupied by Chandra and Sukra or aspected by them, probably he will have many wives. If Sukra occupies or aspects the 7th there will be many wives. If Guru and Sukra occupy the 7th the wife comes from his own caste. If Ravi, Kusa, Chandra and Saturn occupy or aspect the 7th the girl will be from a lower caste. If Sukra occupies or aspect the 7th the wife probably will behave like a dancing woman or prostitute. If Kanya is birth with the Sun there and Saturn is in the sign his wife will die before him. If in this conjunction Mars occupies the 5th Capricorn the person loses all his children during his life. Kusa is exalted in Makara and still he will kill the issues.

Stanza 2

If cruel planets are in the 4th and the 8th from Venus or if Venus is betwixt malefics or if Venus is not combined or not aspected by benefics, the wife will be killed by fire, fall or ropes.

Notes

In these combinations the fact to be remembered is the death of the wife when the person is living. The cruel planets are the Sun, Mars, and Saturn and if these in any order occupy the 4th and the 8th the person will lose his wife by fire or burning. If Venus has evil planets in the 10th and the 12th houses from him the wife will die by fall from an elevated place. In this case if Venus is in the same house with malefics, but is placed between two evil planets ten degrees the same results must be expected with great force. If Venus does not join with or is not aspected by any benefic, the wife will die by being tied with ropes. Some misinterpret this verse but Bhatotpala supports this explanation by quoting Bhagavan Gargi, who is very clear on this point.

Stanza 3

If the 6th and 12th houses from Lagna are occupied by the Sun and the Moon, the husband and wife will have each one eye. If Venus and the Sun occupy the 7th, 9th or 5th, the wife will be defective.

Notes

In the first half of the verse the 12th and the 6th must be occupied by the Sun and the Moon in any way to produce defect in vision in both the couple. The second half of the stanza requires that the Sun and Venus must be together in the 5th and 9th or the 7th house to produce defect in any particular organ of the wife.

Stanza 4

If Saturn occupies birth, Venus in the 7th when it is in gandanta and if the 5th is unoccupied by benefics the person will become husband of a barren woman. If malefics occupy 12th, 7th and birth with weak Moon in the 5th the person will have no wife or son.

Notes

The last Navamsas of Kataka, Vrischika and Meena are called technically chakra samdhis or important junctions. When these Navamsas happen to become the 7th house with Sukra there, with Yama (Saturn) in the Lagna and when there are no benefics in the 5th, the person’s wife will be a barren woman. This combination can arise only in Makara, Vrishabha, and Kanya. The author uses the expression ranadhya paths. This means that even if he marries two or three wives he will get no children because his wife or wives will be barren. Women. All the malefics may be in 12th, 7th or birth or in any two or three of them, weak Moon must be in the 5th. Under such circumstances he will have no wife or children. See notes on st 5 ch II for Kashina Chandra.

Stanza 5

If Sukra occupies the 7th, which happens to be the Verga of Sami or Kuja and aspected by them the person becomes fond of other women. If Sami and Kuja join Chandra in the 7th and have the aspect of Sukra the person and his wife both become adulterous. If Sukra and Chandra have Sami and Kuja in the 7th the person becomes wifeless or issueless. If female and male planets have Sami and Kuja in the 7th aspected by benefics the couple would be married when old.

Notes

If Sukra occupies any one of the Vergas of Sami or Kuja and is located in the 7th and is aspected by any one of them the person becomes adulterous. If Chandra, Kuja, and Sami are in conjunction in the 7th house and aspected by Sukra who is found in any of the Vergas of Sami or Kuja then the person goes in search of other women and his wife seeks other men. Both become adulterous.

If Sukra occupies the 7th, which happens to be the Verga of Sami or Kuja and is located in the 7th and is aspected by any one of them the person becomes fond of other women. If Sami and Kuja join Chandra in the 7th and have the aspect of Sukra the person and his wife both become adulterous. If Sukra and Chandra have Sami and Kuja in the 7th the person becomes wifeless or issueless. If female and male planets have Sami and Kuja in the 7th aspected by benefics the couple would be married when old.

Notes

If Sukra occupies any one of the Vergas of Sami or Kuja and is located in the 7th and is aspected by any one of them the person becomes adulterous. If Chandra, Kuja, and Sami are in conjunction in the 7th house and aspected by Sukra who is found in any of the Vergas of Sami or Kuja then the person goes in search of other women and his wife seeks other men. Both become adulterous.
If Sukra and Chandra join in any sign having Sami and Kuja in the 7th house from them, the person will have no wife or children. Varabhambira uses वा indicating or and meaning having no wife or children. But the learned commentator asks the readers to interpret the passage as conjunctional for वा and gives a hint to interpret as having no wife and children.

If there are two planets in a house, one female and the other a male and the 7th from them is occupied by Sami and Kuja, and the latter have benefic aspects, the person when old will marry an old woman.

Stanza 6

If the 10th, 7th and 4th are occupied by Chandra, Sukra and malefics respectively, the person destroys his family. If Sami in Kendra aspects the house indicated by the Drakkana joined by Buda, the person becomes a सिफ़्र. If Sukra occupies the 12th, joining the Navamsa of Sami, the person becomes the son of a servient woman. If Ravi and Chandra occupy the 7th aspected by Sami, the person does degrading acts.

Notes

Moon must be in the 10th, Venus in the 7th, and malefics—Sun, Mars and Saturn in the 4th, to make the person's family extinct. There are some persons who represent the last of their families and with whose death, the family name ceases. This is considered to be a great misfortune as he will cause the termination of his family. Bhattacharya quotes Durysthama the eldest son of Kurus as an example. All of them died and their family ceased to exist. Buda occupies some Drakkana. The house indicated by that Drakkana must be aspected by Sami who must be in a Kendra, to produce a सिफ़्र. This term is made to indicate persons living by painting, engraving, etc., hence we may call these artists or skilled men. Some authors interpret this part as indicating the aspect of Buda by Sami in the Rasi Butas; the author clearly uses त्रिसांसय which means Drakkana. Suppose Buda is in Mesha and in the 3rd Drakkana. This will be Dhanas. If in the Rasi, Sami occupies a Kendra from Lagna and aspects Dhanas then the person becomes an artist.

Here it will be seen that if Buda is in the 3rd Drakkana, then it represents Dhanas and Sami is in the 10th from Birth and therefore in a Kendra. He aspects the 7th house from Dhanas and such a combination produces सिफ़्र. But suppose Sami is in Thula. Even then he aspects Dhanas in the 3rd house, but as Thula is the 2nd house from Lagna and not a Kendra, there will be no yoga for producing a सिफ़्र. If Sukra is in the 12th from Lagna and is aspected by the Navamsa of Sami, then he child will be born of a is a menial servant in any capacity. If the Sun and the Moon are in the 7th house from Lagna and aspected by Sani, the person does disgraceful and degrading acts quite beneath the dignity of his family traditions. This can only happen on 24 days when the Sun and the Moon are joined together in a Rasi in every month.

Stanza 7

If Venus and Mars join the 7th house aspected by malefics there will be serious danger from dysentery. If Moon joins the Navamsa of Cancer or Scorpio and is in conjunction with malefics the person will have diseases in the secret places. If Moon joins Lagna, Sun in the 7th and two malefics in the 12th and 2nd, the person will be attacked by serious form of leprosy. If Moon occupies the 10th, Mars in the 7th and Saturn in the 2nd house from the Sun the person will be defective in limbs.

Notes

If Kuja and Sukra are in the 7th and evil planets aspect them the person will suffer from muddhika or dysentery. There is a second reading which runs as slh dh. dh meaning that the man will have half a gut. But this is not supported by the commentator. Among the Europlanets dysentery is dreaded like a great epidemic and sometimes it proves fatal. The Moon may be in any sign. If he joins the Navamsas of Kataka or Vrischika and is in conjunction with a malefic the person will have diseases in private parts, sexual organs etc. Where should the Moon join the malefic in Rasi or Navamsa? The original seems to countenance both. In many places where Navamsas are stated the conjuncts often refer to the Rasi. The Moon should not only join Kataka or Vrischika Navamsas but must also join there with malefics. But suppose Moon is in Kataka or Vrischika Navamsa and an evil planet joins him in the Rasi I should attribute disease in private parts even in this combination.

Chandra should be in Lagna, Rasi should be in the 7th and two evil planets. Kuja and Sani should be in the 2nd and 12th to produce white leprosy. This is one form of hideous disease and there are other forms such as black, red and blue leprosy. The word in the original is Asubhagas evil planets and Bhatotpala interprets this as referring to Sani and Kuja. When the Sun and the Moon are in the 7th house from each other, the days must be Full Moon days. The second house from the Sun at the time of birth is called Vesti. Saturn should be in the 2nd house from the Sun, Moon must be in the 9th house and Mars must be in the 7th house from Lagna to produce defect in the limbs. This means that either the man will have limbs cut off by various weapons or be born without suitable limbs and become what we call defective and deformed.

When the Sun is in Makara, and the Moon between two malefics the person gets asthma, consumption, enlargement of spleen, carbuncle or abdominal tumours. If the Sun and the Moon mutually exchange their places in Rasi or Asams, the person gets ptosis. If these two join together in any one of their houses he may become consumptive or emaciated.

Notes.
The Sun must be in Capricorn, and the Moon, must be between two evil planets, Saturn and Mars to produce asthma, consumption, spleen enlargement, carbuncle (vidrādi) or abdominal tumours. If the Sun is in Cancer and the Moon in Leo either in the Rasi or in the Navamsa the person gets consumption. Some are of opinion that the Sun must be both in the Rasi and the Navamsa of Cancer while the Moon must be similarly situated in Leo to produce this result. But Bhatotpala quotes from Gargi, who plainly supports the first interpretation. If the Sun and the Moon are (1) in Cancer or (2) in Leo, they produce consumption or weakness in the body or emaciation or undesirable leanness and debility. There are some people who are not particularly sick but who are extremely weak.

Stanza 9.
If the Moon occupies the 5th Amsa of Sagittarius or the amsas of Pisces, Cancer, Capricorn or Aries, and aspects by or is in conjunction with Saturn or Mars, the person will suffer from Leprosy.

If Scorpio, Cancer, Taurus or Capricornus becomes one of the thrithonas aspected by or in conjunction with evil planets, the person suffers from Leprosy.

Notes.
If Moon joins the fifth Navamsa of Dhanas viz Simha or the Navamsa of Meena, Kataka, Makara or Mesha having the aspects or conjunction of Kuja or Sani the man suffers from leprosy. Bhatotpala explains that in such conjunctions, suppose there is beneficial aspect the man suffers from cutaneous eruptions or irritation, verging on leprosy. This view of the commentator is supported by a quotation from Varaneshwara which is clear on this point. If Vrischika, Kataka, Vrishabha or Makara happens to be the 5th or 9th from any Laghu having an aspect or conjunction of a malefic the person suffers from leprosy.

Stanza 10.
If Ravi, Chandra, Kuja and Sani occupy 8th 6th 2nd and 12th in any way the person loses his sight by the elevation of that Dhatu which is indicated by the most powerful of these planets.

Notes.
Four planets are indicated here viz Sun, Moon, Mars and Saturn and four houses viz., 2nd 6th 8th and 12th. Any of these planets may be located in any of the houses and the author requires no particular order or method. The dhatus referred to are (1) Vata (wind) (2) Pitta ( bile ) and Sleshma (phlegm). Find out which of these four planets is the strongest and attribute that Dhatu, which is indicated by him (See notes on Ch. II. Sts 8-9-10-11). The sight will be lost or the blindness will be caused by the increase of such complaints, which are caused by the excess of these Dhatus.

Stanza 11.
If Malefics occupy 9th, 11th, 3rd and 5th houses unsuspected by benefics the person will suffer from deafness. If these evil planets are in the 7th house, there will be deformation to the teeth.

Notes

By Malefics we are to understand here Rahu, Chandra, Kanya and Sani. All these planets must be found in the 9th, 11th, 5th and 3rd. They may be in one or two or more houses or one in each of the houses. Then hard hearing or deafness will result. The deafness will be caused by the elevation of that Dhatu, which is governed by the most powerful among these planets. If all these planets are in the 7th house without beneficial aspect the person suffers from bad or ugly teeth. These results must be predicted during the periods and sub-periods of planets causing such combinations (see notes on st 20 Ch VIII).

Stanza 12

If Moon eclipsed by Rahu occupies birth and evil planets are found in trines the person suffers from devils.

If the Sun eclipsed occupies the birth the person becomes blind.

Notes

When the Moon is eclipsed by Rahu and occupies the birth with evil planets in the 5th and 9th houses, the person suffers from spirits, devils, ghosts etc.

If Rahu is eclipsed by Rahu and Kanya and Sani are found in the 9th and 3rd houses the person becomes blind. In the 9th and 5th houses by Mars' is left out but it is to be supplied as in the first ball.

Stanza 13

If Jupiter occupies birth and Saturn is in the 7th the person suffers from windy complaints. If Jupiter occupies Lagna with Mars in the 7th, the person suffers from insanity or madness. If Saturn occupies Lagna and Mars is found in 9, or 7, or 5 the person suffers from insanity. If venus Moon with Saturn joins the 12th house, the same insanity must be predicted.

Notes

Asthadhatu Rogas or the principal complaints arising from the excess of wind are 50 in number, and these take various forms in various constitutions. When Guru is in Lagna and Sani occupies the 7th house (from Lagna and therefore from Guru also) there will be suffering from windy complaints. If in the same conjunction Kupas occupies the 7th instead of Sani, the person suffers from insanity. If Saturn occupies Lagna with Mars in 5, 7 or 9 the person suffers from insanity. If Venus Chandra joins Sani and occupies the 12th from Lagna the man suffers from insanity. Dhatotpala is not explanatory in this connection. In the horoscope of Sri Rama, birth is Anakha with Guru there and Kupas in the 7th Rama was not insane and no body could ever attribute such a state to him. Here as well as other horoscopes with my observa less insanity must be predicted only when the planets are powerless and not in conjunction with others

Dhanas or Vrishabha is aspected by evil planets the person becomes bald-headed. If the Sun is in the 5th or 9th aspected by malefics the person will have weak eyes. If Saturn is so situated he suffers from many complaints; if Mars is so situated there will be defect in organs.

Notes.

Ugly teeth, bald headedness, short or weak vision, suffering from many diseases and possessing defective organs are also classified as misfortunes and no doubt they are so. When the lagna falls in Vrishabha, Mesha or Dhanas aspected by malefics the man will have ugly or ill set teeth. When the birth falls in malefic signs like Mesha, Simha, Vrischika, Makara or Kumbha and also Dhanas or Vrishabha aspected by malefic planets, the person will have bald head. If the Sun is in the 5th or 9th sign from Lagna aspected by malefics the person will have weak eyes.

If Saturn is in the 5th or 9th from Lagna aspected by malefics there will be complaints of many varieties and if Kuja occupies the 5th or 9th aspected by evil planets, there will be some defect in the organs.

Stanza 16.

If evil planets occupy 12th, 5th, 2nd or 9th, the person will be imprisoned according to the nature of that house. If Lagna falls in Bhujaga or Nigada Drekhana, aspected by powerful malefics, the person will be similarly confined.
If all the evil planets are in any one or more of these houses—viz 2nd, 5th, 9th or 12th the person will suffer bandages or imprisonments according to the nature of the house they occupy. If the planets are in Aries, Taurus and Sagittarius the person will be tied by ropes, chains etc. If these evil planets are in Gemini, Virgo, Libra and Aquarius the person will be shaked or lettered. If these evil planets are in Cancer, Capricorn and Pisces the person will be confined in Durga or forts. If these are in Scorpio their confinement will be in underground cells. If both falls in Bhujaga or Nigada Drekkanas and if the Rasi represented by this Drekkanas is aspected by powerful evil planets, the person’s confinement will be similar to that Rasi.

Bhujaga Drekkanas are the 2nd and 3rd of Cancer, the 1st and 2nd of Scorpio and the last of Pisces. Nigada Drekkanas is the 1st of Makara. According to the original it would appear as if the author has given a third Drekkanas called the Pasabrit. But in the enumeration of the 16 Drekkanas in Ch. XXVII no mention is made of Pasabrit as a separate one. Hence Bhatotpala asks the reader to refer this as an adjective to the Bhujaga and Nigada Drekkanas.

Stanza 17
If the Moon with the ring or halo around him joins Saturn and is aspected by Mars, the person will be harsh, suffer from hysteria and consumption. If the Sun, Saturn and Mars are in the 10th house unsuspected by benefics the person will become a servant. If three or two or one of them occupy the 10th, the man becomes inferior, ordinary and superior servant respectively.

Notes
Sometimes we see a halo or ring like appearance round the Sun as well as the Moon. In ordinary patience they denote rain or wet weather. When there is a ring (Purshaka) round the Moon, Saturn joins him and Mars aspects such Moon the person will suffer from the above complaints. Here three different states for Moon are indicated (1) halo round his drek (2) conjunction with Saturn and (3) aspect of Mars. There are also three complaints mentioned by the author, viz. (1) harshness in speech (2) hysteria and (3) consumption. Bhatotpala therefore observes that if the Moon is possessed of one these states the person will have one of these complaints, if two the person will suffer from two complaints, and if all the three states are found the person suffers from the three complaints named. Then the author gives a special combination for servantship. If the Sun, Mars and Saturn unsuspected by any benefic occupy the 10th, the person becomes a menial servant. If there are two of these planets in the 10th, then he becomes a higher menial. If there is only one planet in the 10th, then he becomes the leader of menials or head servant.

End of Chapter XXIII

Chapter XXIV

Strijatakadhayaya

Stanza 1
Such of those females who could not possess or enjoy must be attributed to their husbands.
From the 8th house in a female's horoscope the death of her husband, from the birth sign and the Moon her (female's) own physical beauty and from the 7th house her husband and his love to her must be predicted.

Notes
From the commencement of this work, the author has been detailing results for males and now he specially devotes a chapter to the females with a view to point out certain physical and mental peculiarities which do not happen to males but which are confined only to females. Delivery, conception, attainment of age, appearance of menses etc., are peculiar to females. But suppose a planet indicates health or sickness, a female can have it as well as a male. There are three kinds of results which must be differentiated. First there are some events which must be predicted only for females. Second there are some which must be predicted for their husbands and third there are others which can be shared in both by the females as well as by their husbands. The results indicated in St. 1 Ch. XIII. are applicable to females. Rajayogas etc., must be referred to their husbands as also to them. The results such as produced by susupha, anapah etc., must be applied to both females and their husbands. We have heard of several eminent queens and empresses who have managed their estates and kingdoms with great credit and ability. The nature of the husband, his love to her and qualifications must be predicted from the 7th house in a female's horoscope, as the nature of the wife, her love and her features must be predicted with reference to the 7th house in a man's horoscope.

Stanza 2
If the birth and Moon fall in even signs the female will be modest, if they are aspected by benefics she will be virtuous, if the birth and Moon fall in odd signs she will have masculine temperament and form and if these two are aspected or are in conjunction with malefics she will be sinful, and characterless.

Notes
If Chandra and Lagna both fall in even signs such as Ketaka, Vrushabha etc., she will be natural and possess feminine grace and temperament. If Lagna and Chandra are aspected by good planets, she will be virtuous, modest and full of feminine grace. If these two—birth and Moon—are in odd signs such as Mesha, Mithuna etc., she will become masculine and if aspected by or are in conjunction with evil planets she will become sinful, cruel and masculine in form and temperament. Her thoughts, deeds and behaviour will be devoid of feminine grace. If birth falls in an even sign and Chandra in an odd or vice versa she will be possessed of common temperament. If one of them is aspected by a benefic and another by a malefic the character etc., will be middling i.e., she will be in some acts feminine and in others masculine.

Stanza 3
If the birth or Moon falls in the house of Mars and occupies the Thumsasa of Mars, Saturn, Jupiter, Mercury or Venus the girl will be immoral before puberty, dancing woman, virtuous, double hearted, or sinful respectively

Notes

Thramsamsas have been explained by me under notes to st 7 Ch 1. If the birth or Moon occupies Aries or Scorpio and falls in the Thramsamsa of Mars, she becomes adulterous even before she attains her age. The expression also means that she has connection before marriage. If the Thramsamsa falls under Saturn, she becomes a dancing girl before her puberty, if the Thramsamsa falls under Guru she will be virtuous, if the Thramsamsa falls under Mercury she becomes deceitful or double hearted and if Venus governs that Thramsamsa, she will be sinful or immoral. In this Chapter, the results are indicated with reference to Thramsamsa and Bhatotpala advises his readers to examine them carefully. The Amsa used in the original refers to Thramsamsa as will be clearly explained later on by the author. The word used in Kanya and it means a girl who has not attained her puberty. Kanya also means a girl who is not yet married.

If the birth or Chandra falls in Vrishabha or Thula Rasi and occupies the Thramsamsa of the above planets, she becomes sinful, marrying a second husband, virtuous, skillful in arts and reputed respectively. If birth or Chandra falls in Mithuna or Kanya and occupies the above planetary Thramsamsa, the woman becomes deceitful, impotent, virtuous, good and adulterous respectively.
us and occupies the above Thrimsas; as the woman becomes servant, fond of low men, virtuous, sinful and childless respectively.

Notes

The Thrimsas are running in the following order, Kuja, Raviya, Guru, Guna, Sukra and the results must be attributed to them respectively. If birth of Chandra occupies Katak and is in T. Amsa of Kuja, self will do as she likes. Sami will cause death to her husband. This may be by herself or by prompting others and abetting his murder.

Guru blessed with many admirable qualities.

Buda skilled in refined arts.

Sukra evil tempered or sinful.

If birth of Chandra falls in Simha and is found in the T. Amsa of Kuja, masculine in temperament. Here some read the original as moucha instead of Murtrae and explain it as meaning very talkative and impertinent.

Sani adulterated.

Guru wife of a king or a ruler.

Buda masculine.

Sukra committing adultery among prohibited relations or among forbidden castes and communities. The word used is agamyaa that is going to a person with whom she ought never to have any connection.

If birth of Chandra occupies Meena or Dhan and falls in T. Amsa of Kuja blessed with good qualities.

Sani easily satisfied in sexual intercourse or possessed with weak sexual powers. There are some men and women who are not passionate while there are others who are very lustful.

Guru blessed with all good qualities.

Buda skilled in fine arts.

Sukra immoral.

If birth falls in Makara or Kumbha and occupies the T. Amsa of Kuja, servant.

Sami fond of low or worthless men.

Guru virtuous.

Buda bad or sinful.

Sukra barren or useless.

I have explained these at considerable length because the students may in a hurry misapply the words or expressions and thus fall into errors. T. Amsa stands for Thrimansa. Each Lagna contains 30 Bhagas or degrees and the Thrimansa are distributed among the five planets, Kuja, Sani, Guru, Buda and Sukra.

Stanza 6

The results have now been described for Lagna or Chandra in the various T Amsas, and the results must be ascertained with reference to the strength or weakness of birth and Chandra.

Notes

Lagna as well as Chandra must necessarily occupy some Thrimansa, and this word is now distinctly used by Varaha mihira in this stanza. If both of them occupy the same T Amsa then the results indicated will be powerful whether good or bad. But if one of them occupies a good and another a bad T Amsa then the results will have to be modified according to their sources of strength. If one of them is stronger than the other, then the results must be given for the stronger of the two and not for the weaker. In all these cases there should be no haste. For, to find out the character of a man or woman, there are so many other planetary conjunctions, whose influences should also be taken into consideration.

Stanza 7

If Sani and Sukra are in each other's Navamsas aspecting mutually, or if the birth falls in Vrishabha or Thula, with the navamsa rising in Kumbha, the woman will get sexual satisfaction from females dressed in male attire.

Notes

Here Sani must be in Sukra's and Sukra must be in Sani's Navamsa with mutual aspects or the Lagna must fall in one of the houses of Sukra viz., Vrishabha or Thula, with the rising Navamsa of Kumbha to produce these results. There are some women whose strong passions are not satisfied by men and who resort to women for gratification, with male leather organs attached to their waists. In the history of the world many abominable practices have been recorded from time immemorial and human nature is a most puzzling problem for the philosophers to solve.

Stanza 8

If the 7th house is powerless and unoccupied and不受相位, the husband will be mean. If Mercury and Saturn are in the 7th house, the husband will be impotent. If the 7th is a movable sign, the husband will be constantly travelling. If the 7th is occupied by the Sun aspected by malefics she will be rejected by her husband. If there is Mars in the 7th aspected by evil planets, she becomes a widow early. If Saturn is in the 7th aspected by malefics, she will become old without marriage.

Notes

These combinations must be taken both for Lagna and also for Chandra. If the 7th is occupied by Saturn and Mercury, the husband will be a eunuch or one who has no male organ. Bhatotpals rightly expands the idea suggested by the author about the movable nature of the 7th house. If the 7th house is fixed then the husband will always reside with the wife, but when it is a common sign the husband will be half travelling and half residing at home. Find out whether Chandra or Lagna is powerful and judge of the results from the stronger of the two. A question may be raised as to why these results must be predicted with reference to Lagna or Chandra, since the author makes no mention of Chandra in the original. Bhatotpals rightly suggests that as the results are named for all the planets in the 7th except for Chandra, the author implies clearly that the results must be predicted with reference to both.

Stanza 9

If there are several malefics in the 7th she becomes a widow. If there are evil and good planets there, she will marry a second husband in the same caste. If there is a powerless evil planet in the 7th aspected by a benefic she will be rejected.
by her husband. If Venus and Mars exchange their Navamsas, she will be adulterous. If the Moon joins Venus and Mars in the 7th she becomes adulterous with her husband’s connivance.

Notes

If there are several evil planets in the 7th, the girl is sure to become a widow. If the Sun or Saturn or Mars joins the 7th perfectly powerless and possesses the aspect of a benefic the girl will be rejected by her husband. Venus must be in the Navamsa (Aries or Scorpio) of Mars and Mars must be in the Navamsa (Taurus or Libra) of Venus, to produce an immoral woman. If Venus and Mars are in the 7th with the Moon then the woman commits adultery with the consent or connivance of her husband. Truth is stronger than fiction. Often we see women encouraged to do evil acts by her friends, relations, parents and husbands for various considerations. In royalties and official classes these practices are more rampant on account of the temporal advantages, which the men妄 to flow to them by prostituting their wives and daughters.

Stanza 10

If the house of Mars or Saturn becomes Lagna with the Moon, and Venus there is aspected by malefics the girl becomes adulterous along with her mother. If the 7th Navamsa from the Amsa Lagna falls in a house of Mars, aspected by Saturn the woman’s sexual organ will be diseased. If the 7th Navamsa falls in a benefic house, the woman will be handsome and loved by her husband.

Notes

If Lagna falls in Aries, Scorpio, Capricorn or Aquarius joined by Moon and Venus and aspected by malefics the girl as well as her mother become immoral. There are numberless families in which when mothers are immoral girls also get into such nasty habits. When the 7th Navamsa falls in Aries or Scorpio and is aspected by Saturn, the sexual organ will be rotten or diseased. This can happen only when the Navamsa of the Lagna falls in Taurus or Libra. The woman may keep a general healthy appearance or even possess fairly good health but she will have her private parts diseased. If the 7th Navamsa falls in a beneficial sign her sexual organ will be healthy and she will be loved by her husband. Subhoga and Durboga may also mean handsome or repulsive. Much depends upon the selection of the couple and the attraction and repulsion of their personal electrical currents. These currents are generally of two kinds, external and internal. First a man and a woman may be attracted by external currents and may like each other. But when they join sexually, there will be further discharges of magnetic currents, which if not agreeable make the couple repulsive and miserable. The marriage-relationships must be carefully coupled with reference to astrological principles as otherwise they become failures and cause great misery to the combining parties.

Stanza 11

If the 7th from Lagna or Navamsa falls in the house of Saturn, the husband will be old and stubborn, if the 7th from Lagna or Navamsa falls in the house of Mars the husband will be fond of other women and cruel and if the 7th falls in the house of Venus, the husband will be handsome and loving. If the 7th falls in the house of Mercury, the husband will be learned and intelligent.

Notes

Now the author gives results of the 7th house when it is unoccupied by any planets. The 7th house may be taken from the Lagna or its Navamsa. Take an illustration. This is the horoscope of a living girl born on the 20th September 1895 at about sunrise. Here it will be seen that there are no planets in the 7th house both in the Rasi and also in the Navamsa. Therefore the 7th from Lagna or its Navamsa must be taken. As the 7th from Lagna is Aquarius, one of the houses of Saturn the husband will be aged or old and also will be stubborn.

Stanza 12

If the 7th falls in Cancer, the husband will be passionate and mild. If the 7th falls in Sagittarius or Pisces, the husband will be good and controls his passions. If the 7th falls in Leo, the husband will be mild and hard working.

Notes

If the 7th house falls in Cancer or its Amsa (Cancer), the husband will be passionate and mild. He will be very fond of sexual intercourse but his nature will be mild. The other combinations are easily understood. In the last portion the Sanskrit expression is Atumardravatikanakrit which may be divided into (1) Atumardhu—very mild, and (2) Atikarmakrit—very hard working, when taken as a compound word the meaning is, very mild and passionate. As given under St. 11 if the 7th house in Rasi differs from the 7th house in the Amsa, then the more powerful of the two houses must be taken and attributes referred to it must be predicted.

Stanza 13

If Moon and Venus are in Lagna, the woman will be jealous and fond of happiness. If Moon and Mercury occupy the birth, she will be skilled in arts, happy and blessed with good character. If Venus and Mercury join the birth, she will be handsome, beloved and skilled in fine arts. If three benefics are in birth, the woman will have much wealth, great happiness and fine character.

NOTES

There are five combinations here contemplated although the original refers only to four. The word Aṣṭo (even that or that too) used indicates the combination of Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. Thus, there may be in Lagna (1) Moon and Mercury (2) Moon and Venus (3) Venus and Mercury, (4) Moon, Venus and Mercury and (5) Venus, Jupiter and Mercury. The meaning is plain enough to require further notes.

STANZA 14

The widowhood comes at that age which is indicated by the lord of the Amsa occupied by the lord of the 8th house, when there is an evil planet in the 8th house. If benefics occupy the end she dies before her husband. If the Moon is in Virgo, Scorpio, Taurus or Leo she will have few children.

NOTES

That woman becomes a widow whose 8th house from Lagna is occupied by a benefic planet. When does she get it is the question which the author tries here to solve. The lord of the 8th house must be in some Navamsa and the lord of this Navamsa and ascertain his age. The girl becomes a widow at a time similar to that age.

But this idea does not recommend itself to Bhatotpala and his arguments are summarised for ready reference. Some are of opinion that the ages of planets must be taken as detailed in Chapter VIII. The following are the ages given for the planets:

Chandra = 1 year
Kuja = 2 years
Buda = 9 do
Nukta = 20 do
Guru = 18 do
Rasi = 20 do
Sam = 50 do

The word used in the text is Vayu and it is to be interpreted as referring to periods and subperiods and not to the ages of the planets. Because, if the lord of the 8th is in Moon's or Mars's Navamsa then the age indicated will be one or two years. It is absurd to think that the girls would be married at one or two years of their age and therefore they cannot become widows. Therefore, the right interpretation will be to find out the period or the subperiod of the lord of the Navamsa occupied by the lord of the 8th and predict the widowhood during such times after the marriage. In the original text, the words used are Vayu—thasya—sray and the author clearly says at that age, which is equal to the age of the planet, who is the lord of the Navamsa occupied by the lord of the 8th house. Bhatotpala clearly introduces on his own authority the words after the marriage in the commentaries. If this holds good then the interpretation he condenses is as faulty as his own offered solution. For, if the idea after the marriage is introduced then the girl becomes a widow after one or two or 9 years as indicated by the lord of the Navamsa, after her marriage and not when she is one or two years old. If we take the Dastantar dasa, the same objection rules good until we take the expression after the marriage. For suppose the girl gets the Dasa or the Antardasa of the lord of the Navamsa occupied by the lord of the 8th when she is an infant of one or two years, then the objection raised by Bhatotpala will have to be returned back to harr in his own coin and the same absurdity of widowhood at one or two years has to be pointed out. He may have charged other writers with dropping the expression after the marriage but he has probably overlooked the word danay in the text and this is very important.

If there is a malefic in the 8th and benefics in the 2nd she will die before her husband. In the text benefics is used while Bhatotpala says that even a single benefic in the second will kill her before her husband. When the Moon occupies Taurus, Virgo, Scorpio or Leo, she will have few children.

Stanza 15

If Saturn is moderately powerful, if Venus, Mercury and Moon are powerless and the rest are powerful and if the birth falls in an odd sign the woman will be adulterous. If Lagna falls in an even sign and Guru, Kuja, Sukra and Buda are powerful she will become famous, learned in many sciences, and a vedantini.

Notes

Two combinations are given here. Sanj must be neither powerful nor powerless, Chandra, Sukra and Buda must be entirely powerless and the rest viz Surya, Kuja and Guru must be powerful with the Lagna in an odd sign like Meha, Mithuna, Simha etc., then the woman will have many lovers. Guru, Kuja, Sukra and Buda must be powerful and may be found in any house and when the Lagna falls in an even sign, the woman will become famous, versed in many sciences and a vedantini or one who seeks Pāta Brahma.

Stanza 16

If an evil planet occupies the 7th, she will embrace that Sanyasa, which is represented by the planet occupying the 8th house. These results may be foretold during the wedding, during the search for the girl or during the query.

Notes

The author now introduces a new phase. The results foretold when there are evil planets in the 7th, will only be verified when there are no planets in the 7th house. By this it is clear that when there are planets in the 9th house the former results cannot be predicted. The woman will take to that kind of Pravrajya, which is represented by the planet in the 9th house. See St 1 Ch XV.

These results detailed in this Chapter must be applied only to the horoscopes of females and to none else. The results will have to be predicted at the times at which we have shown them to happen.

Varahamihira has written a work called Vivahapalalam or marriage combinations. We have not seen this work but Bhatotpala refers to two works one Brhat and the other Laghu. When there is any difference between the combinations sketched here during the marriage time and those explained in Vivahapalalam the latter must be given credit. Varahamihira was really a great genius and seems to have traversed all the departments of astrology in a most masterly way.

End of Chapter XXIV.
CHAPTER XXV
HRYANIKAHDHYAYA (Death)
STANZA 1

The man dies from such disease as is indicated by the nature of the planet which aspects the 8th house and in that organ or part of the body which is represented by the 8th house in the division under Kalapurusha. If many planets aspect the 8th house there will be many diseases before death. If the Sun etc., occupy the 8th house, the person dies from fire, water, weapon, fever, disease, thirst, and hunger respectively. If the 8th house is movable etc., the death will happen in foreign country, own land and during travelling respectively.

Notes

This is an important verse showing the nature and pan of death. As represented on several occasions the results shown by the planetary conjunctions may be partly or completely averted by the development of will power in the right direction. Hence consultation and previous knowledge becomes of paramount importance. First the author takes the causes for death by the indications of the aspecting planets. Planets have been given various Draikas as detailed in S. 8910 and it is Ch. II. The meaning is that if the Sun aspects the 8th house the disease will be developed by bile or heat. If Moon aspects the 8th house the disease will be taken up by wind and be. If Mars aspects it, by bile or heat. If Mercury aspects the 8th, the disease will be developed by a mixture of rain, phlegm and bile. If Jupiter aspects the 8th by phlegm, if Venus aspects the 8th by phlegm and wind and if Saturn aspects it by wind. The disease will take a serious form or appear in that organ of the human body which is governed by the Kalapurusha.

Take a horoscope. Here the 8th house from Lagna is Thula and it is occupied by Guru and aspected by Sami and Buda and also by Koja in the 4th. But Thula falls among the organs of Kalapurusha in the abdomen. According to Bhatotpala when there are no planets in the 8th, aspects must be considered but when there are planets in the 8th aspects should not be taken into notice. Thus we find Guru in the 8th and it represents abdominal regions. Guru represents disease of a complicated nature difficult to diagnose, and the man should die from abdominal disorders. If Jupiter is powerful here then the result will result from good work or Subhasharma and if he is powerless, from evil acts or papakarma. Among the medical works in this land of the Vedas diseases may result from good as well as bad work or deeds.
Diseases from good work can be remedied while diseases from evil works are difficult to cure. Suppose the horoscope stands thus:

Here there are no planets in the 8th house, but it is aspected by Moon who is given very much of wind and phlegm. The 8th house is Taurus which represents the Face of Kalapurusha. Accordingly when this man dies, there will be some disorder in the face causing death. Suppose there are no planets in the 8th house and it is unaspect ed the mode of death is detailed further by the author in St. 11 of this Chapter. After finding out the kind of disease the author also proceeds to give the plan of death. If there is Sun in the 8th from Lagna death will be caused by fire, if Moon by water, if Mars by weapons, if Mercury by fever, if Jupiter by complicated disease, if Venus by thirst and if Saturn by hunger. If the 8th is movable, death occurs in a foreign country. If it is fixed in his own country and it falls in a common sign it occurs while travelling.

Stanza 2

If the Sun and Mars occupy the 4th or 10th death will be caused by stones. If Saturn and Mars are in 4th, 7th and 10th respectively, death will be caused by falling into a well. If the Sun and the Moon are in Virgo aspected by malefics he will be killed by his own people. If the birth falls in a common sign with the Sun and Moon in it, the person will be drowned.

Notes

Other modes of death are indicated here. If the Sun and Mars join together and occupy the 4th or the 10th death results from blows or rocks. When Saturn is in 4, Moon in 7 and Mars in 10 the person falls into a well and dies. When Virgo (kanya) is occupied by the Sun and the Moon aspected by Mars or Saturn, the person will be killed by his own men or relations. If birth falls in common signs like Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius or Pisces and conjoined by the Sun and the Moon death will be caused by drowning. The Sun and the Moon join together in a month for only 24 days and then only these combinations are possible.

Stanza 3

If Saturn is in Cancer and Moon occupies Makara the person dies from Jalodara. If Moon occupies the house of Mars and is sextile evil planets the person dies from weapons, or fire. If Moon occupies Virgo between malefics death comes from corrupt blood or consumption. If the Moon occupies one of the houses of Saturn between...
malefics the person dies by ropes, fire or fall

Notes

When Moon is in Capricorn and Saturn is in Cancer, they will be not only occupying watery signs but will also have mutual aspects and they cause a disease called jaldara or a particular kind of dropsy. It may be called Ascites. See Sis 23 and 24. Udara Mudhana in Madhava Nidhava if Moon is in Aries or Scorpio, between any two evil planets Saturn Mars and Sun, death will result from fire or weapons. Here Moon is situated between two malefics and the child dies from watery complaint.

Take another.

Here Moon is in Virgo with Mars in the 2nd and Sun in the 12th. As regards the words betwixt or Madhyagata, it is enough even if the Moon is in the same house between two evil planets. Thus if the Sun occupies the 3rd degree of Aries, Moon occupies the 10th Degree and Mars occupies the 15th degree, the Moon must be considered as being betwixt two malefics, although they are not in the same sign. If the Moon is found in Makara or Kumbha between two evil planets death comes by ropes fire or fall. He may be bandaged or tied by ropes or may die from fire, which takes so many forms or by falling from elevated places.

If the 5th and 9th houses are occupied by malefics unascertained by benefics death comes from bandage. If the Drekkana rising in the 8th house falls in Sarpa or Nagada then similar death occurs. If the Sun is in birth, Virgo falls in the 7th with Moon in conjunction with a malefic and Venus in Aries the person suffers death from female agency in his house.

Notes

If malefics are found in the 5th and 9th houses without benefical aspects the person dies from being tied by ropes or chains. If the 8th house rises in a Serpent or Nagada (Shackle) Drekkana the person dies a similar death. The 2nd and 3rd in Kataka the 1st and 2nd in Vrishika and the 3rd in Meena are called serpent Drekkanas. The Ngada Drekkana is the 1st of Makara. If the birth falls in Meena, with Rasi there, Chandra and a malefic in K or the 7th, and Sukra in Mesha or the 2nd death will result from female intrigue in the house

This combination is possible for only persons born in Meena. By female agency or intrigue the death of the person will be brought about. When the 7th is occupied by evil planets with an evil planet in Lagna and with Sukra in the 2nd house Mesha, there will be much room for suspicion about the character of the wife and other females and they bring about his death.

Stanza 5

If the 4th is occupied by Mars and the Sun and the 10th by Saturn the man will be crucified. If the malefics and Kshana Chandra occupy birth, fifth and 9th the same result happens. If the Sun occupies the 4th Mars in the 10th aspected by the weak Moon, there will be crucifixion. If Saturn aspects the above conjunction, death results from burning.

Notes

There are three combinations for crucifixion here named. First there must be Mars and Sun in the 4th and Saturn in the 10th. In this case all the malefics have mutual aspects and give the man shula. In the second case the Sun Mars Saturn and powerless Moon must occupy birth 5th or 9th to produce death from Shula. In this combination all these four planets may be in birth or 5th or 9th or in any two of them or in the three houses. They must not be outside those houses. The word shula means any sharp pointed iron or wooden pike on which the intended victim would be mounted and torn to pieces. This is a kind of punishment probably now prevalent in semi-civilized countries. Hanging in various ways now prevalent may be safely substituted for these forms of death. The Sun must be in the 4th and Mars in the 4th aspected by powerless Moon for the person to be hanged. If the Sun occupies the 4th and 10th is joined by Mars aspected by Saturn he will be beaten to death by sticks. Here the aspects named by Varabhamihira must be carefully considered. See Ch. II & 13. If Saturn has to aspect Mars in the 10th then he must be in the 4th with the Sun or in the 8th house from Lagna or he must be on the Lagna. All these positions for Saturn are evil.

Stanza 6

If the powerless Moon, Mars, Saturn and the Sun occupy 8th, 10th, birth and the 4th respectively, the death results from blows from rods or clubs of earth. If the same planets occupy 10th, 9th 1st and 5th respectively death comes by smoke.
fire, bandage, or blows on the body.

Notes.
Powerless Moon in the 8th, Mars in the 10th, Saturn in Lagna, and the Sun in the 4th, cause death by blows from iron rods or clubs of earth. If powerless Moon occupies 10th, Mars 9th, Saturn 7th and the Sun 5th death may result from excessive smoke, fire or bandage or blows on the body by sticks etc.

Stanza 7.
If Kuja, Ravi, and Sani occupy 4th, 7th and 10th respectively death results from weapons, fire or the anger of the rulers. If Sani, Chandra, and Kuja occupy 2nd, 4th and 10th respectively the person dies by worms generated in sores or wounds.

Notes.
Kuja must be in the 4th, Ravi in the 7th and Sani in the 10th to produce death related in the first half of the Stanza. If the 2nd is occupied by Sani 4th by Chandra and 10th by Kuja, the person will get wounds or sores and dies from the increase of worms in them.

Stanza 8.
If the Sun occupies the 10th and Kuja is in the 4th, death comes by fall from conveyances. If Sani, Chandra and Ravi occupy the Lagna with Kuja in the 7th, death comes by machinery or rocks. If Kuja, Sani and Chandra are in Thula, Mesha and a house of Saturn respectively, or if powerless Chandra, Ravi and Kuja are in the 10th, 7th and 4th respectively the person falls in night-soil and dies.

Notes.
If Ravi occupies 10th and Kuja is in the 4th, death comes by fall from Vahans or Carriages. These may include all sorts of animals and vehicles used by man for his comforts. When the Sun is in the 10th and Mars is found in the 4th, they will be subjected to mutual aspects. Men are killed often by internal machinery invented by the diabolical genius of man for the destruction and torture, of his fellow creatures Kuja must be in the 7th, with Chand and Ravi in the Lagna for producing the above result. When the Sun is with the Moon the latter is not powerless. There is a difference in the Text Saur andina is substituted for Asin andina. But when the Moon is with the Sun Krishna or powerless, will become a superfluous adjective. If Kuja occupies Thula Sani is in Mesha and Chandra in Makara or Kumbha, the person dies by falling in dirt or night soil. If powerless Moon is in the 10th Sun in the 7th and Mars is in the 4th the person dies by falling into dirty pits.

If powerful Mars aspects powerless Moon with Saturn in the 8th the person dies from worms or fire or instruments in treating of disease in secret parts.

Notes.

Krishna Chandra must be aspected by the powerful Kuja and Sani must occupy the 8th house from Lagna. Then the man gets serious disease in the private parts. He may die by worms generating there or by treatment of those parts by fire or instruments.

Stanza 10

If Ravi occupies the 7th with Kuja and Sani joins the 8th and powerless Chandra is in the 4th death comes by birds. If Ravi, Kuja, Sani and Chandra are in the 1st, 5th, 8th and 9th respectively the person dies by falling from the tops of a mountain or by the fall of lightning or wall.

Notes.

Ravi and Kuja must be in the 7th Sani in the 8th, with powerless Chandra in the 4th to produce the first form of death.

In the latter half of the stanza Ravi must be in the Lagna. Kuja in the 5th Sani in the 8th and Chandra in the 9th to produce the danger indicated there.

Death from birds may mean that he may be killed by birds or his body after death may be eaten by birds for want of a burial or cremation. Bhatot pala however confuses the meaning to the latter explanation.

Stanza 11

The learned in astrology indicate the 22nd Drekhna as the cause of death to the person. The death will be caused by the manner attributed to the lord of this Drekhna or the lord of the Rasi to which it belongs.

Notes.

The author now gives explanation for cause of death in cases where there is no planet in the 8th, where the 7th is not aspected by planets and where none of the combinations named... already is present for causing death. The 8th house or Bhava literally begins with the 22nd Drekhana. There are three Drekhanas for each house and 7 houses from Lagna inclusive will give 21 Drekhanas. Therefore the learned in astrology consider the 22 Drekhana as that of death or Mrituryu. The lord of that Drekhana kills the person by that disease which is attributed to him in the 1st Starz of this Chapter. If not, the lord of the 8th house to which the 22nd Drekhana belongs will cause death as per his nature. Bhatotpala points out that the stronger of the two planets and lord of the 22nd Drekhana and the lord of the 8th house will give death by such diseases as he can cause.

Stanza 12

The death will take in places similar to the Rasi occupied by the lord of the Navamsa, in which birth falls. Further details or specialities must be described by conjunctions and planetary aspects. The time of death has to be identified by the unrisen number of Navamsas in the birth. If the birth lord aspects it, the time must be doubled, aspected by benefics, the time will be trebled.

Notes

The birth falls in some Navamsa, and the lord of this Navamsa occupies some Rasi necessarily. The place of death resembles localities governed by that Rasi. If that Rasi is Mesha the place of death will be frequented by goats etc. If Vrishabha, grazing ground, if Mithuna in a house, if Kataka a well, if Simha a wilderness, if Kanya a well, if it is Shula death will be in a place of merchandise, if Vrischika, low places, if Dhanas places frequented by horses, if Makara, marshy places, if Kumbha a house and if Meena, swamps. Bhatotpala cleverly raises a difficulty and solves it. In the Amstadvayya or Chapter on misfortunes (P. 213) various modes of death have already been detailed. Then how is the reader to be guided when these combinations are present in a horoscope? He assures the students that when such unfortunate combinations exist, death must be predicted as per those jyotis, but when they are not present, the present principles must guide the readers. It is not enough if we look into the nature of the Rasi. The conjunctions and aspects of that Rasi must also be taken into consideration. The word Adi used in the original, further gives scope in extending the meaning, to the nature of the Navamsa sign occupied by the lord of the Navamsa of the Lagna which rises at the birth time. He has thus enumerated four points for consideration:

1) The nature of the Rasi occupied by the lord of the Navamsa rising in the Lagna.

2) The nature of the Navamsa Rasi occupied by the lord of the Navamsa of the Lagna.

3) Planets in conjunction with the Rasi occupied by the lord of the Navamsa rising in the Lagna.

4) The planets who aspect that Rasi occupied by the lord of the Rising Navamsa in Lagna.

When all these are present, in a broad scope or when two or more are there then the nature of the locality of death must be determined by the strongest among these four. The nature of the ground for planets will be the nature of the zodiacal sign which they own. When a planet owns two houses, then the nature of the house where he has his mulabhrkona must be represented: Thus Ravi has Sesha Chandra, has Vrishabha Kaalha, Buda, Kanya, Guru, and Dhanas Sukra has Thula and Sani has Kumbha. Some also say that the places will be those governed by the planets in Chapter II, St. 12 (vide p. 39). But Bhatot pala does not approve of this.

Lagna rises in some Navamsas and there may be other Navamsas yet to rise. Take the total time of the unrisen Navamsas and predict that the time of death will be equal to their total. If the Lagna is aspected by its cord then this total time must be doubled. If a benefic conjuncts Lagna it must be trebled. If Lagna is both aspected by its lord and also has a beneficial conjunction the period must be multiplied sixfold. Take a horoscope. Birth is in Vrishabha and falls in the fourth Navamsa at its end. Then there are five Navamsas yet to rise. Vrishabha extends over 4½ ghats. Thus 2 ghats in Vrishabha have passed leaving a balance of 2½ ghats. The Navamsa of birth consequently falls in Mesha. The Lord of Mesha is Kuja. He occupies

| Thula | and the nature of the locality where this man dies should be such as is represented by Thula. The lord of the rising Navamsa in birth is Kuja occupies Thula. Navamsa and therefore is in Vargottama but Thula is aspected in the Rasi diagram by Guru and Chandra. There are three points now to be considered viz the nature of Thula, the nature of Guru and the nature of Chandra. The place of death will be such as is represented by the strength of these three viz Thula, Guru, and Chandra. Lagna is not aspected by its lord or by any benefic and therefore the time of death will be 2½ ghats. But here is a difficulty. If we simply say 2½ ghats with out saying after sunrise or sunset, or with reference to some definite time, how is the reader to be guided? Bhatot pala is also silent on this point. In Chapter IV, St. 21 (Iv. 69) hints as to the time of the birth of children are clearly given. The same may be conveniently applied here. If the Lagna falls in day sign the time must be taken as referring to day and if it falls in nocturnal sign the time must be referred to night. The details regarding these particulars are shown under notes in St. 10 to Chapter I (p. 19). Vrishabha falls in nocturnal signs, and therefore the man in the above horoscope dies when it is about 24 ghans after sunset.

Stanza 13.

The dead body as per the Drekkana in the 8th house viz. Dahana, Jala, and Mura, will be reduced to ashes by fire or atoms by water and putrefaction by atmosphere respectively. If the 8th house Drekkana is Vyala, the body will be disgraced. The disposal of the dead body must be explained in this manner, and as regards the past and future births, the reader must consult elaborate works on the subject.

Notes.

Here we have rules to guide us in determining the disposal of the dead body. Man seems to have a great desire to have his dead body disposed of according to the most approved methods in vogue in his country. These dispositions are of various forms. Sometimes the dead bodies are subjected to great indignities, as if their departed spirits watch them and feel such degrading cruelties. There are various methods; cremation, banal, drowning, and exposure to atmosphere. The rising Drekkana in the 8th house will be the 22nd from the birth, and if it falls in Dahana Drekkana, the body will be cremated and turned to ashes. Dahana Drekkana are the divisions of evil planets. If the 22nd Drekkana happens to be a jala (watery), the dead body will be thrown into watery places and there allowed to dissolve. The beneficial Drekkana are termed jala Drekkana.

Stanza 14.

Guru, Chandra and Sukra, Ravi and Kupa, and Sami and Buda bring people from Devaloka, Pitruloka, Thiryagloka and Naraka respectively. According to the position of the lord of the Drekkana occupied by the most powerful of the Sun or the Moon, we have to predict the high, middle or low state of the man in his previous birth, &c.
Notes

In the first portion of this verse, the meaning is not clear. Find out who is the stronger of the two in a horoscope, viz. the Sun or the Moon, and ascertain in which Drekkana the stronger of these two is conjoined. Then the man has come from that Loka or existence which is represented by the lord of this drekkana.

If this Drekkana belongs to Guru, predict that he is come from Devaloka.

If the Drekkana belongs to Chandra or Sukra he has come from Pituloka.

If the Drekkana is governed by Rav or Kuja, he comes from Tiryag-loka.

If the Drekkana belongs to Ruda or Sani, he has come from Narakaloka. To find out in what state he was in the previous birth or existence in that loka, the author throws out some hints which are interesting. If the lord of the above said Drekkana is exalted, then he occupied a high status or position in the previous Loka, if he is ordinary then the position was middling, and if the planet is debilitated, he occupied a mean or degraded state. Devaloka, represents a higher world where superior men are supposed to go after death. Here Devas or exalted order of beings are alleged to live enjoying greater privileges and higher prosperity than men.

Pituloka = indicates that order of existence which is inferior to Devaloka, where the spirits of the dead are supposed to live.

Tiryag-loka = represents an inferior order of existence, where men, in the course of evil careers outbalancing their good actions, are supposed to live.

Narakaloka = indicates that order of existence where men with evil deeds far in excess of their good actions have to take their turns of cosmic evolution.

Stanza 15

The Lord of the Drekkana of the 6th, or 8th, or the planet who occupies the 7th house indicates the state of man's future existence after death. If Guru in exaltation occupies 6th, 8th or any kendra, if Meena is Lagna occupying beneficial Naamsa and other planets than Guru are powerless the person attains Moksha.

Notes

Here we have suggestions for finding out the state of existence to which a person goes after his death. If there are no planets in the 6th, 7th and 8th, then find out the Lord of the Drekkana rising in the 6th and 8th and ascertain which of these two is stronger and then attribute that loka to him which is denoted by the planet. If there is a planet in the 6th, 7th or 8th house, then the man goes to that loka which is indicated by that planet. But if there are two or more in these houses then the strongest of the lot determines the loka to which the person proceeds. In the text, only the words Asta (7th) sthota (standing) are used. These preclude the idea of planets being taken in the 6th and 8th houses. Ratnapala whose reading seems to be most comprehensive, explains to as standing for cha (and), and supports this view from quotations from Laghu Jataka of Varaha mihira where the idea is fully expanded.

If Guru occupies 7, 8 or 10 from Lagna and is in Kalaka (his exaltation) or if Meena rises at the time of birth and occupies a beneficial Navamsa and if Guru is powerful and other planets are powerless, the person gets Moksha or final emancipation from all gross forms of existence. These results of future states of existence, may also be predicted from the conjunction of planets at the time of a man’s death. This idea is supported by a quotation from Laghu Jataka.

End of Chapter XXV

CHAPTER XXVI
Nasta Jataka
(LOST HOROSCOPE)

STANZA 1

When a person has no record of his birth time or the time of conception, the birth must be predicted according to the Lagna rising at the time of question. The birth must be predicted in Ootharayana or Dakshinayana as the first or the second hora in the Lagna rises.

Notes

Here the author wishes to help those persons with the construction of a horoscope, who have no recollection of their birth or conception time. It is quite unreasonable to expect a man to know anything about the time of his conception by his mother and in fact, very few persons know or care to know about the details of conception. Even the woman who conceives sometimes does not know of the fact. But generally the birth time is known to many interested in the family. When a person goes to an astrologer and asks him to prepare a lost horoscope or a new one he does so at a definite time. The astrologer should find out the proper Lagna which rises at the time and if the first hora prevails he must say that the man was born in Ootharayana when the Sun was in the 5 signs from Makara to Kataka. But if the second half of the Lagna rises, then the man must have been born in Dakshinayana when the Sun was in the 5 months from Kataka to Makara. This Ootharayana comprises the months of Makara, Kumbha, Meena, Mesha, Vrishabha and Mithuna. Dakshinayana comprises Kataka, Simha, Kanya, Thula, Vrischika and Dhanas. If one knows the time of conception but not the time of birth rules have already been laid down for finding the birth from conception see St 21 Ch IV P 69.

By the rising Drekkana in the Lagna, Guru’s position in 15 or 9 must be ascertained according to the appearance of the querist. If Ravi is in Lagna, the birth takes place in Grishma and so on for other planets as stated before. If the Ratu falls in a wrong Ayana then it must be corrected by the position of the Sun.

Notes

Here the author enables the astrologer to find out the year and the Ratu (Season). If the 1st Drekkana in Lagna rises at the time of query then predict Guru as being in Birth Lagna. If the second Drekkana in Lagna rises then Guru must be placed in the 5th house and if the 3rd Drekkana rises he will be in the 9th. As other places than 1, 5, 9 are not named here Bhatat pala gives hints to find the correct house of Jupiter. Take the rising Dwadasamsa in the query Lagna. If the first Dwadasamsa rises Guru will be in Lagna. If the second rises he will be in the 2nd and if the 10th rises, Guru will be found in the 10th house from the birth Lagna. Some astrologers explain the meaning quite separately. They say that if the 1st Drekkana rises in the question Lagna, then find out the number of the houses, Guru has travelled up to the question time and predict that the person was born in a similar number of years before. If the second Drekkana rises then count from the 5th house of the question Lagna to the position of Guru in the present period and predict that the man was born a similar number of years before. If the 3rd Drekkana rises at the question time, then count from the 9th house of the query Lagna to the present position of Guru in the Zodiac and predict birth before so many years. It would be better understood by an illustration. Take the question time as 11:30 AM on 11th September Friday, 1908 (Sali Vaisiha Sakha 1830). Vrischika Lagna rises at about 11 ghatas after Sunrise 11:30 AM converted gives about 14 ghatas after Sun rise. There fore 3 ghatas out of 5½ ghatas (the extent of Vrischika) have passed and the 2nd Drekkana for Vrischika will be Meena. On this date Guru is found in Simha. We have to count therefore from Meena to Simha and we get 6 years. Say that the child was born 6 years ago or 18 years or 30 years or 42 years or 54 or 66 years according as you find the querist’s person. This interpretation is not approved by Bhatotpala who quo es Yavaneswara to support the first exposition. As Jupiter goes round the whole Zodiac in 12 years the age of the person must be ascertained by the querist’s physical appearance and probable age. When there is a doubt or difficulty in determining these cycles of 12 years or the difference of that period, then ascertain the age of the party according to the Purusha Lakshana explained in Brihat Samhita. See Chapter 70 Stas 24 5 6. The astrologer may ask the querist to touch any organ of his body or the organs of Kalapurusha which he can keep in the form of a picture. If the person touches the feet and the ankles then Guru will be in birth. If he touches knees and calves Guru will be in the second house. If he touches the thighs, sexual organ or testicles in the 3rd if naval or loins the 4th if belly the 5th, if chest or breast the 6th, if shoulders the 7th if neck or lips the 8th, if eyes or brows 9th, if forehead or head the 10th. As only 10 organs have been named and we have 12 years before a complete circle of the Zodiac by Guru we have to divide these 12 years by 10, and account by such counting the position of Jupiter. Thus for each organ, we get 1 year, two months and 12 days. Thus if a person touched the 7th organ then Guru must be predicted in the 9th house, as we have $6 \times 1\frac{1}{2} = \frac{7 \times 6}{5}$, $\frac{42}{5} = 8$ years and $\frac{2}{12} = \frac{4}{5}$ months and $\frac{4}{5} \times 30 \text{ days} = 24 \text{ days}$.

By this process stated in Brihat Jataka the time gained would be that of Jupiter whose Mana is different from the lunar or solar sidereal years. The jovian years may be easily converted into solar years and the methods are explained by Bhatotpala in his commentaries on St 1 of Ch VIII of Brihat Samhita. The four yugas (A maha yuga) Krishna, Treta, Dwapara and Kali... contain 43,200,000 solar years or the Sun would go so many rounds in the zodiac in one Mahayuga. But for the same number of years the jovian years would be 4370688. As jovian years are greater the solar years must be deducted from them thus, 4370688 - 4320000 = 50688 jovian years. When 50688 jovian years are gained in one Mahayuga, what would be the proportion to one solar sidereal year. Thus we have \( \frac{1 \times 50688}{4320000} = \frac{50688}{4320000} \) divided by the common factor \( \frac{50688}{4320000} \).

2304 we get \( \frac{22}{1875} \) years = \( \frac{22 \times 12 \times 30}{1875} \) years. For every 170 1/3 solar years we get 2 jovian years extra. For one solar year we get \( \frac{7920}{1875} \) days for \( \frac{1875}{1875} \) solar years what do we get Thus \( \frac{7920}{1875} \times \frac{1875}{1875} = \frac{7920}{1875} \) days or two years measured by jovian movements in the Nasta Jataka process, we have to multiply the number of years obtained by the position of Jupiter by \( \frac{22}{1875} \) and subtract the same from the number of solar years to get the solar time. Now he gives hints to find out the seasons or Rutub. Among the Aryan astronomy there are given 6 Rutubs. They are:

(1) Vasanta = Chaitra and Vaishaka or Spring April and May
(2) Grishma = Jasra and Ashada or Summer June and July
(3) Varsha = Srawana and Bhadrapada or Autumn August and September, Rainy
(4) Sarat = Asvija and Karkika - O tober and Nov ember - clear or bright season
(5) Hemanta = December and January, Margasira and Poshya - Devy or cold season
(6) Sisra = Magha and Phalguna - February and March - cold season

If the Pratistha Lagna is occupied by the Sun or his house rises as Drekkan, the birth must be predicted in Grishma. If Saturn is in Lagna or his Drekkan rises at the time, then birth takes place in Sisra. If Venus is in Lagna or the Drekkan falls in his house, birth happens in Vasanta. If Mars is in Lagna or his house rises as Drekkan, predict Grishma. If Lagna rises in the Drekkan of Chandra or he is in Lagna predict Varsha Rutub. If Mercury is in Lagna or his Drekkan rises in it, Sarat. If Jupiter occupies Lagna or his house rises as Drekkan, Hemanta. If there are many planets in the question Lagna, then the season must be ascribed to him who is the strongest of the lot. When there are no planets in the Lagna, then alone reference must be made to the rising Drekkan. When a Rutub comes in an Ayana in which it does not fall then predict the Rutub with reference to the Sun. These results, observes Bhatipala, must be referred to the solar movements and not to the lunar (chandramana) which prevails usually in the world. Thus if Vasanta is to be predicted then say that Rutub extends to the season when the Sun moves in Aries and Taurus. According to Chandramana Chaitra may fall while the Sun is still in Pisces and it is called Veena Chaitra or Chaitra which falls in Meena.

Sasta 3

If a Rutub falls in a wrong Ayana then, change Moon, Mercury and Jupiter for Venus, Mars.
and Saturn respectively. If the first half of a Drekkana rises the first month of the Ruthu must be predicted, and the day must be proportionately found out.

Notes

In this stanza Varababhimra gives suggestions for a knowledge of the correct Ruthu in a wrong Ayana, month and the day. There are two Ayanas namely Ootharayana and Dakshinayana. Ootharayana contains 3 Ruthus viz Sisira (Makara and Kumbha) Vasanta (Meena and Mesha) and Grishma (Vrishabha and Mithuna).

Dakshinayana comprises 3 Rutus viz Varsha (Koïka and Simha) Sarat (Kanya and Tūla) and Hemanta (Vrishchika and Dhanas). If Varsha Ruthu comes in Ootharayana then predict it as Vasanta. Chandra is given rainy season and Sukra Vasanta and therefore Sukra must be substituted for Chandra. If Sarat rises in Ootharayana then Grishma must be substituted and the tithi Buda governs Sarat and Ravi and Kṛṣṇa rule Grishma. They must be exchanged similarly work out for other Ruthus and the lords who govern them. As a Ruthu contains two months the author now takes the readers to find out the correct month. Divide the rising Drekkana into two equal divisions and arere the first month of the Ruthu to the first half and the second month to the second half. Each Drekkana contains 10 degrees and therefore the first 5 degrees of it represent the first and the next 5 degrees the second month of the Ruthu. All these must be referred to solar movements and not to lunar or Chandra Masa. Each Rasi is composed of 1800 liptas and therefore each Drekkana contains 600 liptas. Drekkana represents two months and one half of it or one month is represented by 300 liptas. Each month contains 30 days and therefore each day gets 10 liptas, and the particular day will be found out by the rising lipta at the time of question. Take an illustration. A person puts the question in the commencement of the 10th degree of Mesha with the Sun there. The Ruthu therefore will be Grishma. As the last half of the Drekkana rises, the month will be the second of Grishma or Mithuna. But as the Lagna rises in the first hora of Mesha the Ayana will be Ootharayana. The person was born in Ootharayana Grishma Ruthu and Mithuna Masa (Month). The question was put at the commencement of the 10th degree. The first five degrees represented the 30 days of the first month in Grishma or Vrishabha. Therefore in the second out of the 5 degrees four degrees have passed and the 5th is just rising. Each degree gets 60 liptas and therefore 4 x 60 or 240 liptas in the second half of the Drekkana have passed. If 30 days get 300 liptas, each day gets 10 liptas. Therefore 241 liptas give 24 days and a balance of 1 lipta or the commencement of the 25th day in the second month of Grishma.

The learned Brahmin astronomers predict the tithi by reference to the degree of the Sun. The birth must be predicted reversely in the nocturnal and diurnal signs. By the degrees of the Lagna, the time of birth must be ascertained.

Notes

This is a very important stanza, determining the lunar day, the time of the day and the sign of the zodiac in... which a person is born. The learned Brahmin astrologers suggest that the lunar day has to be made out by the degrees etc. the Sun has passed in the Rashi at the time of the query and these represent the number of lunar time which passed at the time of birth. Suppose the Sun at the time of the question is found in the 30th degree, then the lunar day will be the 30th or Dasamsha in the Suklayasheka (or bright half). If he is in the 27th degree, then the lunar day will be the Dwadasa of the Krishna Paksha (or dark half of the month). Bhadotpalasays that if the month is Makara then convert that into the Magha of Chandra-manta, Kumbha for Phalguni and Meena for Chitra etc. In the original there is no authority to say that the kshithies must be counted from the Prathama of Sukla or the 1st day of the bright half of the lunar month. Bhadotpalasupports his interpretation by a clear quotation from Maha-bh. After knowing the day, he now gives the method for finding out the birth during the day or the night. Nocturnal and diurnal signs have been explained in St 10 Ch 1. If the rising lagna at the time of query is nocturnal, then the birth must be predicted during the day and vice versa. After knowing the time of birth during the night or day, the time of birth and hence the correct Lagna of birth will have to be thus ascertained. Take the cheshakas gained over in the Lagna at the time of query and multiply the same with the duration of the day or night of the birth, and divide the result by the swadesha rasas gramana and the quotient represents the time after which the birth of the person during the day or the night, has happened. Work out an example. A man questions an astrologer on the 15th of September 1908 at 5 ghans after sunrise. The solar day is 31 of Simha. The Sun is in the 30th degree of Simha. He has to gain 11 vighaties in Simha. Thus there has passed 11 vighaties in Simha and 4 49 ghats in Kanya at the time of the question. Brining these into cheshakas or vighaties, we get 4 x 60 + 49 or 289 Chs. Kanya measures here (in Madras) 315 cheshakas. Kanya forms a diurnal sign and therefore the birth took place during the night. To find out the correct time of the birth during the night the following method must be pursued. First find out where Guru is at the time of birth. The rising Drekkana in Kanya is the 3rd and so Guru was at the time of birth in Vrischabha. Therefore the child must be 3 or 15 or 27 or 39 etc. years. By other circumstances such as personal appearance he is 3 years old. As it is the 2nd Hora the Ayana was Daksina Buda is in Kanya and the Ruhu was Sarat. The second half of the 3rd Drekkana has risen in Kanya and therefore the second month of the Ruhu Sarat or Thula, masam. The lunar month will be Kartika. Find out now the solar day. In Kanya each Drekkana gets 105 cheshakas and half of it will be 52 1/2 cheshakas. This comprises 30 days. If we get for each day 52 1/2 - 30 - 105/2 x 10 = 105 cheshakas. As per lagnasphuta 60 259 cheshakas have expired, of which the first 210 represent the first two Drekkanas. Therefore in the 3rd Drekkana 79 cheshakas have expired of which 52 1 form the first half of the third Drekkana and the first month of the Sarat Ruhu. Now in the second half of this Drekkana 79 53 1/2 or 26 1/2.
cheshakas have expired. Thus \[\frac{105}{60} \times \frac{60}{2} = \frac{318}{21} = 15\frac{1}{2} \text{ days or the}\] Sun occupies the 16th degree of Tula. As the Sun is in the 30th degree of Simha at the time of question, the lunar day will be the Amavasya of the lunar month Kartika.
The duration of night on the birth-day was 31 1/2 ghatis. Convert these into cheshakas: We get \[31 \times 60 + 1/2 = 1912\]
Multiply this by the number of cheshakas passed in Kanya at the time of question.
We get \[1912 \times 289 = 552568 \text{ cheshakas}\]
These must be divided by the swadesa Lagna Pramana (or the extent of Kanya obtained in any particular place) or 315 cheshakas, governed by Kanya here:
\[\frac{552568}{315} = 1754 \frac{58}{315} \text{ cheshakas}\]
Dividing again this by 60 cheshakas to bring it into ghatis, we get \[\frac{1754}{4725} = 29 \frac{117}{4725} \text{ ghatis}\]
So the birth was after 29 ghatis on the night of that day.

Bhatotpala gives a list of the extent of the cheshakas for the various signs, probably to his native place, and they are—

Stanza 5

Some say that the lunar month has to be made out with reference to the position of the Moon in the Navamsa. The position of the Moon must be made out by the most powerful among the Lagna and thrikon or by the touching of the organs etc of the querist.

Notes

He gives here a different method to find out the month and the Rasi where the Moon is Chandra occupies some Navamsa at the time of question. This is indicated by some constellation. The lunar month will be that in which this constellation figures on its pournama.
There are some stars from which no months take their names. In such cases if the Moon occupies such a constellation, the month must be made out as per movements of Jupiter detailed by Varahamihira in ch VIII st 1 and 2 of Brihat Samhita, Varahamihira thus explains—the two stars Kritika and Robini give rise to Kartika Mrgasna and Andra produce Margasira, Punar vasa and Pushyami give Pushya Aslesha and Makha produce Magha, Pabbha, Oothara, and Hasta give Phalguna,
Chitta and Swati give Chitra
Visakha and Amaradha produce Vaisa
Kha, Jaista and Moola produce Jaiata Parvashada and Uttarashada give Asha, Shavana and Dhanista produce Shavana, Satabisha, Poorvabhadra and Uttarabhadra produce Bhadrapada and Raivath, Aswini and Bharani give Asna. Therefore if Chandra is in the 9th Navamsa of Mesha or the first seven Navamsas of Vrishabha, the person must be declared to have been born in the lunar month Kartika. If Chandra is in the last two Navamsas of Vrishabha or the first six Navamsas of Mithuna, the month will be Margasira.
If Chandra is in the last three Navamsas of Mithuna or the first five Navamsas of Kataka the man will be may be fixed as Mesha. The reader must be very careful in judging of these matters.

STANZA 6

The position of Chandra will be in that Rasi which is equal to the number of Rasis gained by him from the question Lagna. If Chandra is in Meena, then that will be the sign occupied by him at birth. The position of the Moon at birth may also be ascertained by the articles of food, by animals and sounds at the question time.

NOTES

Another method is sketched here for finding out the position of Moon at the time of birth. Put the Lagna at the time of birth and ascertain where Chandra is located. Find out how many Rasis (hou es) he is from Lagna. Then place Moon at the time of birth as a house which is removed as many rasis from Chandra as he is from Lagna. Take an example: Say the query Lagna falls in Cancer and Moon is in Scorpio. Counting from Lagna to the Moon at the time we find him in the 5th house. Then count from Moon the 5th house and it becomes Meena. Predict therefore that the Moon was in Meena at the time of birth. Suppose at the time of question, Chandra is in Meena then place him in that house at the time of birth also. Bhatotpala offers some suggestions here which are very valuable. Different methods have been given above for finding out the position of the Moon at the time of birth. Suppose difference in the position of Chandra arises, then the reader will be in a fix. The correct degree, minute and second Reduce these into kalis Get a place levelled by water and fix the sanka or stick which must be 12 Angulas 8 Yavas make an Angula Yava means a barley grain or some thing like it Four Angulas make a muchot or first and 6 muchots make a Hasta or hand Four Hastas make a Danda or Danas (bow) and 2000 Danas or rods make a Kroua Four kroas make a yogana Hundred yoganas make a Desa (country) and four Desas make a mandala One hundred mandalas make a Khandan (continent) and the Earth contains nine Khandas A hand is roughly about 18 inches or a foot and a half Therefore one Angula roughly means 1 1/4ths of an inch Danda means 61 1/2 12000 It make a Kroua or a miles x 2 furlongs and 40 yards or 2 miles 25 fur A yogana so often repeated in Sanskrit works will be 9 miles y 2 furlongs A country or Desa will be about 900 miles and 4 Desas make a mandala or 3636 miles A Khandan contains 100 Mandalas or 36000 miles and the Earth contains nine Khandas or 3272400 miles See Litrathi stanza 5, Purushasha Prakrama Bhasharacharya Also Suryanandibanta

Twelve Angulas will be equal to about nine inches Take the shadow cast by this stick and multiply kalis by this and divide by twelve The remainder shows the number of the birth sign from Mesha Thus if the remainder is 7 then the birth Lagna will be Tula If it is 11 then it will be Kumbha There is another method to find out the birth Lagna If the querist asks the prashna sitting then the birth Lagna will be the 7th from the prashna Lagna If he asks when lying down the 4th Lagna from the query Lagna will represent the birth sign When the querist is asking then the birth Lagna will be the 10th from Prasna Lagna When the querist is standing at the time, the birth Lagna will be the same as the prasna Lagna This view is supported by quotation from other works Thus, if the man asks the astrologer standing, then his birth Lagna will be that which rises at the time of question Suppose a man comes to an astrologer at mid day in the month of Virgo, then the rising Lagna will be Dhanu If this question is asked when he stands, then his birth house will be Dhanas If this question is put while he is sitting, then the 7th from Dhanas, or Mithuna will represent his birth Lagna If the question is asked when he lies down, then the 4th from Dhanas or Meena will be his birth sign If he puts the query when rising the 10th from Dhanas or Kanya will represent his birth sign

The signs, Taurus and Leo, Gemini and Scorpio, Aries and Libra, Virgo and Capricornus must be multiplied by 10, 8, 7 and 5 respectively The remaining Kanas (signs) must be multiplied by their own number Jupiter, Mars, Venus and Mercury must be similarly multiplied The remaining planets must be multiplied like Mercury This must be necessarily done with the signs When there is a planet in the Lagna, it must also undergo this multiplication

Notes

Here a general summary of the various methods for calculating lost hero
The birth Lagna will be that represented by the rising Navamsa at the time of the query or it will be that Lagna which when counted from the question time is similar in number to the Drekkanae separating the question Lagna from the Sun at the time.

Notes

Take the Lagna which rises at the question time and find its Navamsa. The Birth sign will be that house which the rising Navamsa denotes. Thus if the question time falls in Mesha, when the Navamsa of Kataka rises and predict that the man was born when Kataka was rising as Lagna. This is easy enough. Another method here suggested is a little complicated. Find out the rising Drekkana at the question time, and also the Drekkana where the Sun will be located, then count from the Lagna Drekkana to the Drekkana occupied by the Sun at the time of the query. Take this number and count from the question Lagna to a similar number and predict that sign which falls there as the birth Lagna. Take an example.

The 2nd Drekkana in Mesha rises at the Prama time. The Sun is found in the 3rd Drekkana of Dhanas. Thus the Sun is found in the 26th Drekkana from the Drekkana at the time of question. There are only 12 signs in the Zodiac. Divide 26 by 12, we get a remainder. Now count from the question Lagna, Mesha and add the birth Lagna in the second from it or Vrishabha. Take another example. The first Drekkana in Kataka rises while the Sun is found in the 2nd Drekkana in Thula at the time of query. Counting from the Drekkana at the time of question to the Drekkana occupied by the Sun, we get Lagna as the 11th house from the Lagna at the time of question viz. Kataka Varahamihira says that these principles are put forward by him on the strength of the ancient sciences and not based on his own intelligence or education. The great Varahamihira shows the highest respect for the ancient Maharishis and thus adds dignity to himself and his works.

Stanza 8

Multiply the sputa of the planet in the Lagna or that of the most powerful by Chayanjula and divide it by twelve. The remainder denotes the number of the birth Lagna from Mesha or the birth Lagna will be the 7th, 4th, 10th or Lagna as the question is sitting or lying down or rising or standing respectively.

Notes

He gives here two methods to find out the birth Lagna of the question. One out of there is any planet in the ascendant at the question time or if there is none then find out the most powerful of the planets at the question time and ascertain its sputa or the correct degree, minute and second. Reduce these into kalas. Get a place levelled by water and fix the sanka or stick which must be 12 Angulas 8 Yavas. make an Angula Yava means a barley grain or some thing like it. Four Angulas make a mushtis or first and 6 mushtis make a Hasta or hand. Four Hastas make a Danda or Danas (bow) and 2000 Dandas or rods make a Kosa. Four krosas make a yojana. Hundred yojanas make a Desa (Country) and four Desas make a mandala. One hundred mandalas make a Khanda (continent) and the Earth contains nine Khandas. A hand is roughly about 18 inches or a foot and a half. Therefore one Angula roughly means 2 3/16 inches. Danda means 6 1/4 feet 12,000 ft make a Kosa or 2 miles 2 furlongs and 40 yards or 2 miles 2 1/4 furlongs. A country or Desa will be about 900 miles and 4 Desas make a mandala or 3636 miles. A Khanda contains 100 Mandalas or 363,600 miles and the Earth contains nine Khandas or 3272400 miles. See Liliyath # stanza 5, Panthvibhag Prakritam Dhaskaracharya Also Suryasiddhanta

Twelve Angulas will be equal to about nine inches. Take the shadow cast by this stick and multiply kalas by this and divide by twelve. The remainder shows the number of the birth sign from Mesha. Thus, if the remainder is 7, then the birth Lagna will be Tula. If it is 11, then it will be Kumbha. There is another method to find out the birth Lagna. If the quersus asks the prasna setting then the birth Lagna will be the 7th from the prasna Lagna. If he asks when lying down, the 4th Lagna from the query Lagna will represent the birth sign. When the quersus is rising, then the birth Lagna will be the 10th from Prasna Lagna. When the quersus is standing at the time, the birth Lagna will be the same as the prasna Lagna. This view is supported by quotation from other works. Thus, if the man asks the astrologer standing, then his birth Lagna will be that which rises at the time of question. Suppose a man comes to an astrologer at mid-day in the month of Virgo, then the rising Lagna will be Dhanas. If this question is asked when he stands, then his birth house will be Dhanas. If this question is put while he is sitting, then the 7th from Dhanas or Meena will represent his birth Lagna. If the question is asked when he lies down, then the 4th from Dhanas or Meena will be his birth sign. If he puts the query when rising, the 10th from Dhanas or Kanya will represent his birth sign.

Stanza 9

The signs, Taurus and Leo, Gemini and Scorpio, Aries and Libra, Virgo and Capricornus, must be multiplied by 10, 8, 7 and 5 respectively. The remaining Rasis (signs) must be multiplied by their own number. Jupiter, Mars, Venus and Mercury must be similarly multiplied. The remaining planets must be multiplied like Mercury. This must be necessarily done with the signs. When there is a planet in the Lagna, it must also undergo this multiplication.

Notes

Here a general summary of the various methods for calculating lost hores rising Drekkana is the 3rd, then 9 must be subtracted. After doing this, take the total and divide it by 27. Then the remainder denotes the number of the star from Aswini. Some are of opinion that the grand total, before adding or subtracting 9 must be divided by 27. Take the remainder and then add to or subtract from or do nothing, as the case may be and predict the Constellation from that number. In the case of children, brothers, wife, enemies etc., the author advises the readers to consult similarly from the house, which represents that Bhava from the question sign. Take an illustration. Suppose Mithuna rises at the question time. The seventh from Mithuna is the house of his wife. Take that Bhava, see how many kala's it has passed and follow the multiplication and division process as recommended above and the number that remains there will represent the constellation at the time of the birth of his wife. For other relations and events, take other Bhavas (significations) and predict the constellations working from them as if they are the rising Lagna at the time of question. The age Lagna year etc. for any relations must be worked out as the author has done for the person himself from their Lagna. Bhatopa's gives preference to his explanation.

Stanza 12

By multiplying the total mentioned in stanza 9 by 10 etc., and also by adding to or subtracting from it and by dividing that by the various figures already given, the year, season, month, lunar day, night and day constellation, time, ascendant, Navamsa etc. may be ascertained.

Notes

This stanza is so briefly expressed in Sanskrit that no English translation could do justice to it unless it is supplemented by full and elaborate explanations. Reduce the rising sign to kala's, and then multiply it by the figures given to that Lagna and any planet which may occupy it. Keep this total in four separate places. Multiply one by 10, the second by 8, the third by 7 and the fourth by 5. Then follow the methods for adding to or subtracting from them the figure 9. Then the total must be divided by 120 to get years.

Do—by 6 to get Ruthus
Do—by 2 to get Months
Do—by 27 to get Constellations
Do—by 15 to get Lunar days

And these details are clearly given in the next three stanzas.

Stanza 12

From the total multiplied by 10 to the year, season, and month have to be found out. From the total multiplied by 8, fortnight and lunar day have to be ascertained.

Notes

The total has been desired to be posted in four different places. Take the total multiplied by 10 and divide it by 120 the Patanjalaus or the total length of life mentioned in the earlier chapter. The remainder shows the age in years of the questioning person or the person about whom he puts the query. The same figure divided by 6 will give the Ruthus represented by the eminence from the 5th sign. When that total is divided by 2 and the remainder is one, then it represents the first month of the Ruthus already ascertained. But when an illustration. We shall say the name is Ramakrishna. This name is composed of Ramakrishna Shiva. The total is 51. As 51 cannot be divided by 27, it becomes 18. This number represents the 15th star from Dhanista. It becomes 18 as the remainder Count from Dhanista till you get 18 and then name the star. The 18th from Dhanista is Hasta and it becomes the birth star. Take an English name Edward. It is composed of 4 Sanskrit letters which give 4 Matras. This multiplied by 2 gives 8. Add 5 cheyangulas. The total is 8+5=13. The remainder is 13. The 13th from Dhanista is Pushyamit. It is to be predicted as the birth star of the querist.

Stanza 16

The figures 2, 3, 14, 10, 15, 21, 9 and 8 from the East etc., must be multiplied by 15 and the number of persons looking in the same direction as the querist must be added to the total, and divided by 27, the remainder shows the number of constellation from Dhanista.

Notes

Another method is given here to find out the birth star of the querist. If the querist faces the East, South, S.W., West, North West, North and N. East, are represented by the figures 2, 3, 14, 10, 21, 9 and 8 respectively. If he faces East, then take the number 2 and Multiply it by 15. The total is 30. Suppose 2 persons are also looking towards the East. Then add 2 to the total 30. The total is 32. This must be divided by 27, the remainder is 5. Or, the star Revati, which is the 5th from Dhanista, must be identified as his birth star. Suppose the querist faces the south without any company. 15 represents south and this must be multiplied by 15. The product is 225. Divide it by 27, the remainder is 7. The star 21st from Dhanista or Vraksha must be identified as his birth constellation.

Stanza 17

Various methods have been expounded by me about the lost horoscopes. The real student will accept that which he finds correct after laborious calculations.

Notes

Varahamihira collected his information about lost horoscopes from Vasishta, Parasara, Manthra, Yavana etc., and explained in his chapter the various methods by which the birth time, constellation, week day, lunar day, solar day, month and the year can be ascertained. He here concludes by exhorting the diligent student to try all these by proper and laborious calculations and accept that system which agrees best with his practical experience. It may be questioned as to why Varahamihira does not give one method which is the best out of the lot, and which tallied with the experience of that great astrologer. In B1 7 Ch VII he has clearly stated the reasons which have been duly dealt with by me in my notes for that stanza. The reader may refer to them.

End of chapter XXXVI.
Chapter XXVII
Drekkana Adhyaya

STANZA 1
The first Drekkana of Mesha represents a man with a white cloth round his waist, dark complexion, pretending to protect, fearful red eyes and a lifted axe.

NOTES
There are 12 signs in the zodiac and each sign is divided into 3 equal parts called a Drekkana. Thus there are 36 Drekkanas, whose individual influences, peculiarities and potencies are distinctly explained in this Chapter by Varahamihira. The uses for these Drekkanas are clearly stated in the commentaries of Bhatotpala under stanza 36 of this chapter. Mars rules this drekkana, it is masculine and armed.

STANZA 2
The second Drekkana of Mesha is sketched by Yavanasa as representing a woman with red cloth, fond of ornaments and food, pot belly, horse face, thirsty and single-footed.

NOTES
This is a quadruped Drekkana, feminine in nature and governed by the Sun. The characteristics are those of a woman and hence biped. But Varahamihira classifies this as quadruped because the face is that of a horse—a quadruped. Some say that this is a Rbaga or bird Drekkana.

STANZA 3
The third Drekkana of Mesha represents a man, cruel, skilled in arts, yellowish, fond of work, unpinciplced, with a lifted up stick, angry and covered with purple clothes.

NOTES
This is a masculine Drekkana armed and ruled by Jupiter.

STANZA 4
The first Drekkana of Vrishabha represents a woman with torn ringlets, pot belly, burnt cloth, thirsty, fond of food and ornaments.

NOTES
This represents a feminine Drekkana, fiery in nature and governed by Venus. The hair will be in ringlets but partly torn and protruding belly resembling a pot.

STANZA 5
The second Drekkana of Vrishabha represents a man possessing knowledge of lands, grains, houses, cows, arts ploughing and carts, hungry sheep faced, dirty clothes and shoulders like the hump of an ox.

NOTES
Arts include knowledge in music, drums, dancing, writing, painting, etc. This is a masculine dreekkan, quadruped and governed by Mercury.

STANZA 6
The third Drekkana of Vrishabha is represented by a man with a body like that of an elephant, white teeth, legs like that of sarabha, yellowish color, and clever in capturing sheep and deer.
Notes

Sarabha is an animal at which the lion is supposed to get frightened. It has eight legs of great size and strength. Deer is representative of wild animals. This is masculine, quadruped and ruled by Saturn. Amara Simba thus derives the word Sarabha = Simathu Simham = Sarabha or that which kills the lion. Referring to Mahabharata, we find Sarabha thus described —

Ashapaduredesa sarabha sarabha sarabha vana gocharaka — means that it has eight legs, eyes in the top and lives in the forest. Probably this species is now extinct or may be found in forests yet to be discovered.

Stanza 7

The first Drekkana of Mithuna represents a female, fond of needle work, handsome, fond of ornamentation, issueless, lifted hands, and in menses.

Notes

This is feminine and ruled by Mercury.

Stanza 8

The second Drekkana of Mithuna represents a man, living in garden, in armour, with a bow, warlike, armed with weapons, face like that of Garuda, and fond of play, children, ornamentation and wealth.

Notes

Garuda is the vehicle of Vishnu and is represented as having a crooked nose. This is a masculine and bird Drekkana armed, and ruled by Venus.

Stanza 9

The third Drekkana of Mithuna represents a man, adorned, decked with gems, armoured with quiver and bow, skilled in dancing, drumming and arts, and poet.

Notes

This is a masculine and armed Drekkana ruled by Saturn.

Stanza 10

The first Drekkana of Kataka represents a man, holding fruits, roots and leaves, elephant bodied, residing on sandal trees in the forest, legs like that of Sarabha, and horse necked.

Notes

This is a quadruped masculine Drekkana governed by the Moon.

Stanza 11

The second Drekkana of Kataka represents a female worshipped on the head by lotus flowers, with serpents, full blown youthfulness, living in forests on the branch of palasa and crying.

Notes

This is feminine and ruled by Mars.

Stanza 12

The third Drekkana of Kataka represents a man covered with serpents, flat faced, and crossing the ocean in a boat in search of wife's jewels.

Notes

This is masculine and serpent Drekkana ruled by Jupiter.

Stanza 13

The first Drekkana of Simha represents a vulture and a jackal on the Salinait tree, a dog.
BRIHAT JATAKA.

NOTES
This is a masculine Drekkana ruled by Venus. Measuring here refers to the measure of grains etc. The Yavanas here referred to are the furana or old Yavanas.

STANZA 20
The middle Drekkana of Thula represents a man with a vulture’s face, hungry and thirsty, holding a pot which is ready to fall and thinking of his wife and children.

NOTES
The pot ready to fall because of his weakness by hunger and thirst. This is a masculine but Drekkana governed by Saturn.

STANZA 21
The last Drekkana of Thula, say the Yavanas, represents a man, decked with gems, wearing golden quiver and armour and frightening the animals in the wilderness, resembling a monkey and holding in the hand fruits and flesh.

NOTES
Fruits refer to Mangoes etc. There are two readings:
(1) Kanchana Thuna Varma Brt = wearing gold quiver and armour
(2) Kumara Rupa Brumara = wearing the form of Kumara = a set of celestial beings with horse-like faces
This is a masculine quadruped resembling a monkey and governed by Mercury.

STANZA 22
The first Drekkana of Vrischika represents a woman naked and without ornaments, coming from the middle of a great ocean to the shore, dislocated from her original place, the feet bound by serpents and handsome.

NOTES
This is a feminine serpent Drekkana ruled by Mars.

STANZA 23
The middle Drekkana of Vrischika represents a woman fond of home and happiness for her husband’s sake and covered by serpents with a body resembling a tortoise and a pot.

NOTES
This is a feminine serpent Drekkana ruled by Jupiter.

STANZA 24
The last Drekkana of Vrischika represents a lion with a broad flat face resembling a tortoise, frightening dogs, deer, boars, and jackals, protecting localities covered with sandalwood trees.

NOTES
This is a masculine quadruped lion. Drekkana ruled by the Moon.

STANZA 25
The first Drekkana of Dhanas represents a man with a human face and a horse’s body with a bow in hand residing in a hermitage, protecting sacrificial articles and Mahanishas.
Notes
This is a masculine, quadruped, armed Drekkana ruled by Jupiter
Stanza 26
The middle Drekkana of Dhanas represents a woman, handsome, with the color of Champaca or gold, picking up the gems from the ocean and sitting in the Bhadrasana fashion.

Notes
This is a feminine Drekkana ruled by Mars
There are several postures in which devotees in the Yoga practice are required to sit and contemplate. This is technically called Asana which means a position of the body by which steadiness and concentration can be secured in the search of knowledge after Pra Brahma. The most important Asanas for Yoga practice are
(1) Padmasana
(2) Swastikasana
(3) Bhadrasana
(4) Gomukhasana
(5) Kapalasana
(6) Mayurasana
(7) Hukumatasana
(8) Sambhasa and so forth
Stanza 27
Champaca belongs to the Mangola family and is called Michelia champaca
Stanza 28
The first Drekkana of Makara represents a man covered with much hair, teeth like those of a crocodile, body like that of a pig, keeping yokes, nets and bandages, and with a cruel face.

Notes
Bandages include ropes and chains. This is a masculine, Nigala (chains or bandages) Drekkana governed by Saturn
Stanza 29
The middle Drekkana of Makara represents a woman, skillful in arts, broad eyes like lotus petals, greenish dark, searching all kinds of articles and wearing iron ear ornaments.

Notes
This is a feminine Drekkana ruled by Venus
Stanza 30
The last Drekkana of Makara represents a man, with a body like that of Kinnaras, with a Kumbhalm, with a quiver arrows and bow, and bearing and food being brought to him, with a Kambala, silk cloth and deerskin and a face resembling that of a vulture.

NOTES

This is a masculine Drekkanā, ruled by Sani, represents a man being sorrowful by oils, food, wine etc, being brought to him, with Kambala (woollen cloth), Pattasa, silk cloth, and Krishnajina or deerskin. The face resembles that of a vulture or Gridhara.

STANZA 32.

The second Drekkanā of Kumbhā represents a woman, covered with a dirty cloth in a forest, bearing pots on her head and dragging metals in a burnt cart loaded with cotton trees in it.

NOTES

This is a fiery feminine Drekkanā ruled by Mercury.

STANZA 33.

The third Drekkanā of Kumbhā indicates a man, dark, with ears covered with long hair, wearing a crown and wandering with pots filled with iron, skin, leaves, gum and fruits.

NOTES

This is a masculine Drekkanā governed by Venus. The author uses Thwak which means skin or bark.

STANZA 34.

The first Drekkanā of Meena represents a man decked with ornaments, holding in hand sacrificial vessels, pearls, gems, and conch shells and crossing the ocean in a boat in search of jewels for his wife.

NOTES

As the language is plain and simple in the translation notes have been necessarily short. This is a masculine Drekkanā governed by Jupiter.

STANZA 35.

The second Drekkanā of Meena indicates a woman with a color more beautiful than that of Champaka, surrounded by her attendants, and sailing in a boat decked with long flags in search of the coast of the ocean.

NOTES

This is a feminine Drekkanā ruled by the Moon. Champaka is a beautiful yellow strongly scented flower, pertaining to Magnolia species.

STANZA 36.

The third Drekkanā of Meena represents a man crying in a pit in a forest, naked and covered over his body by serpents and with a mind distracted by thieves and fire.

NOTES

This is a masculine serpent Drekkana governed by Vara.

There are twelve signs and each sign has 8 Drekkanas or there are in all 36 Drekkanas. It has already been explained in several places in the body of this work, about the uses of these Drekkanas. They are specially useful in travelling. Varaha Mihira says in his Yatra pataka thus—'The results of the rising Drekkana at the time of journey must be predicted with reference to their form, actions and nature. If the Drekkana is agreeable, bearing flowers, fruits, gems or treasures or if they are aspected by benefics, then prosperity will attend the traveller's march. If the Drekkana are armed he will be victorious. If aspected by malefics, he will be defeated or beaten. If the Drekkana happens to be serpent or bandage the traveller will be disgraced or imprisoned or will die. These Drekkanas also enable one to know the nature, place and form of the thieves.' Varaha Mihira also observes in his Shatpadi asat—'By the navamsa of the question the nature of the article lost, by the Drekkana, the nature of the thieves by the Lagna, the time, locality and direction and by the lord of the Lagna, the age and caste of the thieves have to be known and predicted.'

The matter may be simplified thus when a question is put to an astrologer about the loss of an article by theft or otherwise he will make the necessary calculation and fix the Lagna and Navamsa for the time of question. When the calculations are correct the Shadavargas—Lagna, Hora Drekkana, Navamsa, Duadasamsa and Thrimsamsa can easily be ascertained and fixed. After having done this he must ascertain the nature of the article lost by the rising Navamsa. Each sign has various significations and governs several articles. The nature of the thieves will have to be predicted by the Drekkana which rises at the time. By the Lagna, the time at which an article has been lost or stolen away the direction in which it has been taken and the place from which it is lost and the locality in which it is deposited or concealed, and by the lord of the Lagna, the age and caste of the thieves. In the second and third chapters of this work all these details are given and the student is referred to them for ready information. In travelling, necessarily the person leaves his house or place of occupation at some time. The Lagna for such a time can easily be ascertained and the rising Drekkana.
known. If the Drekkana is good, he will have a prosperous journey, if it is evil or malefic he will suffer loss, and if it is very bad he will even die. The strength, position, conjunction and aspects must be carefully consulted. Varaha Mihira, and his famous son Pruthuyasas seem to have confined their views of Drekkana to lost articles, thieves and their directions and travellers and their luck or ill luck on their journey. But their uses are more comprehensive than has been stated here. When a person is born in a cruel Drekkana, he will be bad and miserable. When he is born in a beneficial Drekkana he will be good and successful. When the Drekkana is good and evil planets occupy it, or when it is evil and good planets combine in it the results will be mixed. But when it is evil, occupied by a malefic and aspected by an evil planet, the results are very disagreeable, the person will suffer miseries, defeats, poverty, losses, disgraces and various diseases. When the Drekkana is good occupied and aspected by benefics, without malefic influences, the person will be eminently successful, will be happy, will have good and distinguished progeny and will attain a good position and command great respect and influence. (See Vydyanthas Jataka Parajata. Sis 112 to 116 Chapter IX.)

CHAPTER XXVIII.
Upasamhara Adhyaya.
Concluding Chapter.

STANZA 1

The first Chapter is Rasi Prabheda, the second Grahayoni Bheda; the third Vyonjanma the fourth Nishakakala, the fifth Jaura Viyu, the sixth Balarista, the seventh Ayurdaya, the eighth Das Vibaka and the ninth is Astaka Varga.

Notes

Here the author simply quotes the names of the Chapters he composed from the commencement in this work and their meanings have been well explained in their respective places.

STANZA 2

Tenth Chapter is Karma Jiva, the eleventh Rajayoga, the twelfth Varahas Yoga, the thirteenth Chandrayoga, the fourteenth Dwigrshadhyoga, the fifteenth Pravajjayoga, the sixteenth Rasista, the seventeenth Drsti Phala, the eighteenth Bhavashyaya, the nineteenth Asraya, the twentieth Prakeerna.
NOTES

Here he repeats consecutively the names of the Chapters he has composed.

STANZA 3.

The twenty first is Anusthayogam, the twenty second is Strijataka, the twenty third is Nityana, the twenty fourth Nastajataka and the twenty fifth is Drakkanaka. Thus in Horasatra I have composed 25 chapters, and I am going to name other chapters relating to yatra or travelling.

NOTES

Varaha Mihira names only 25 chapters while we have given 28 chapters in this work. In the sixteenth chapter under Rasiyala there have been divided three chapters viz. (1) Rooksha Rasiyala, (2) Chandra Rasiyala and (3) Rasiyala. Thus two more chapters have been added by giving separate names by somebody. But Bhattacharyya concludes each of the 17th and 18th chapters with his name. Therefore we have a good authority in this learned commentator to follow in the division and enumeration of these chapters. It matters very little what the number of chapters are since the same chapter has been converted into 8 chapters dividing the treatment of the subject into (1) results of signs (2) results of signs occupied by the Moon and (3) results of constellations.

STANZA 4

- First Prasna Prabheda (2) Punthi Bala (3) Nakshatra Bhedana (4) Divasa Bala (5) Vara Bala (6) Vrihurtha (7) Chandra Bala (8) Lagna Niscaya (9) Lagna Bheda (10) Graha Siddhi (11) Apavada (12) Vimisra (13) Thanu Vepana

NOTES

Varaha Mihira enumerates the names of chapters he has written in his yatra work but it is very curious to see why he should name the headnings of chapters which go to form altogether a separate work dealing on a different subject and having nothing to do with this book. But the nature of the subjects have interrelations and probably he gave his readers to understand that he has written a separate book called Yatra pataala and they must also read it in order to understand Brihat Jataka well. Or it may be that even if Yatra pataala is lost by the destructive hand of time, people may know what its contents are.

STANZA 5

STANZA 6.

Vivahakala and Graha karma. In this way have been composed works in the three important branches of Jyotisha for the benefit of the astrologers by me viz Varaha Mihira.

NOTES.

He also refers here to Vivaha patala or a work he has composed on marriage. Thus he says his works extend in the three Skandas (Sections of Jyotisha

1) Viz-Siddhantha (Ganitha or mathematical astronomy) as explained in his Pancha Siddhanikha.

2) Hora or astrology (horoscopy) as shown in Brihat and Laghu Jataka.

3) Sambita (treatment of collateral subjects and Physical Phenomenal as shown in his Brihat and Sama Sambitas. Muhurtha, Pracua and Yatra belong to the horoscopy.

When I was in Cochin in 1910 A.D. an excellent carpenter of a low caste was introduced to me who gave extensive quotations from Grantha Samuchaya by Varaha Mihira. The genius of Varaha Mihira, was versatile, comprehensive and unrivalled and hence in the enumeration of the nine literary gems in the court of the famous Vikramaditya Kalidas adds the adjective Khayata (renowned) to Varaha Mihira and to none else. Grantha Samuchaya refers to house building, carpentry and the nature of the materials to be collected for such purposes. His Brihat Sambita is a monument of Varaha Mihira's extensive knowledge, and those, who read carefully that illustrious work will be immensely benefited by the expansion of their intellects, and by the useful knowledge he has stored in his priceless pages. Modern scientific culture of the highest order in agriculture, commerce, industry, discoveries and inventions, has been forestalled and the chapter on the metamorphosis of planets and making them yield fruits and flowers quite foreign to their nature and growing them in the shortest time possible is most interesting and worthy of an early trial (See Chs. VII & VIII Part 2 of Brihat Sambita by the same author.)

STANZA 7:

Other great Rishis have composed extensive works on these subjects. I have made only an abstract of what they have already stated. Let good people excuse faults, if any, in my works as my object is to sharpen the intellect.
his opinion and excels generally in the brevity of expression which is the soul of all literary compositions.

He has given the suggestive ideas with a view to simplify matters and enourage their easy study. By reading his works Varaha Mihira rightly says that the human intellect will be sharpened and much useful knowledge will be acquired. He requests the learned men to excuse him if in his concise expression of extensive ancient works any errors may have unwittingly crept into them. Here there is a double signification First the fact that errors creep into works composed by great men and second that humility and not pride should mark the conclusion of a learned work.

Stanza 8

If the work suffers in its travel and copying the reader must set the errors right by referring them to the most learned. They must also correct any errors, which I may have committed, by my negligence, or by misapprehension of the originals without envy or mean jealousy.

Notes.

As time advances, good works in manuscript, as well as printed ones suffer a great deal at the hands of the ignorant copyists and the careless.
conceived and ignorant priests. It is also possible to think that the author in his anxiety to be concise and short may not have paid as much attention to the sketching of the details as was necessary or he may have misrepresented some ideas put forth in the Sutra form by the renowned Maha rishi Varaha Mihira therefore begs his readers and the learned men into whose hands these works may fall to put away envy and mean jealousy (we may also mention staunch bigotry) so abnormal prevailing among literary men and correct any errors which may have crept into his books from the various sources enumerated above. His works will sharpen their intellects and they will be benefitted by reading what he has so well said.

STANZA 9.

Varaha Mihira the son of Aditya Dasa who imbued his knowledge from his father blessed with the grace of the Sun in all branches of knowledge, born in Kapitha, a town in the country of Avantika having carefully read all the extant literature of the Mahanirvans composed this excellent work.

NOTES

A learned and holy Brahman called...
Prachisatra (Boraty.) Thus for three generations father, son and grandson this Brahmin family maintained a high order of intelligence and genius and in Jataka and Prasna, the father and son yield to none in capacity, brevity or clearness in exposition.

STANZA 10

This work was composed by me after my intellect was elevated by my prostrating upon the feet of the Sun, Maharishis and my Preceptor I bow in reverence to the Purvacharyas or ancient preceptors.

NOTES

Among all great Sanskrit writers, Mangala (or blissful invocation to Gods and Preceptors) or invocation must be used either in the commencement, in the middle or in the end of their works. Some of the authors use this mangala thrice viz in the commencement middle and end. In the 1st stanza he invokes the grace of the Sun and in the middle, he often names Maharishis which is considered to be a Mangala and in the end he invokes their help and blessings. Varaha Mihira thinks (rightly) that his mind becomes pure and elevated by the blessings of the Sun, Maharishis and those of his preceptor (Guru).

Aditya Dasa By referring to the Sun all other planets constellations and Zootrical divisions are implied and by using Maharishis, the greatest intellectual giants of this land, Vinita Bhardwaja, Parasara, Vyasa, Gargi, Atri and others are included, and by referring to Guru, he includes all preceptors including his father who may have instructed him in this as well as in other branches of learning. With these invocations the learned Varaha Mihira concludes his invaluable work.

Bhoutopala thus brings his priceless commentaries to a conclusion. He observes “Varaha Mihira’s works represent a great ocean of knowledge. Upala has written the commentaries called Viniti (Chintamani) and those who desire to possess treasures (real intellectual truths) can use this as a boat to cross the ocean of knowledge to secure them. This commentary is called Chintamani (the heavenly gem which grants all mental desires) and it will be highly endeearing to all learned men.

His commentary contains 7500 Anustup Verses. An Anustup stanza generally contains 37 letters and is prominently used by all great writers. Bhoutopala says don’t accept this commentary out of any love or reject it out of envy in you. Take all that is useful in my commentaries.

Please try and find out those errors.

which have been neglected by me, which have been stated by me inconsistent with high intelligence and which have been explained by me as against the real meaning of the original text. This commentary was completed by me in the saka year 838 on a (Guruva arya) Thursday, on Punchami the 6th lunar day of the bright half of the lunar month Chaitra. Let the Sun who represents the essence of the Thirumurties—Brahma, Vishnu

aries. I here may be some doubt raised about the meaning of the word Saka (Era) as it may refer to Vikrama or Salyabana. Varaha Mihira also simply uses the word saka in his Brihat Samhita (see Ch. XIII St. 3) but that refers to Yudhistira Saka by adding 2626 years to the present vika prevailing in his time. About the age and time of Bhadotpala see note on
P. 73 of this work and my article in the Astronomical Magazine P 193 of
Vol. X of 1901 A. D. It is clearly proved by references that he means Vikramakara, as his illustrious successor Bhrigu rachana after 180 years also may S N pairsaka or Vikramasaka. See also danza 20, ch. VIII, Brihat Sambhita. Here he clearly explains that saka refers to the Era or period, when the Mekhas or sakas were completely conquered by the illustrious Emperor Vikramaditya. The famous Kalidas, one of the nine literary gems who flourished in that Emperor's court, gives clear details of the conquest of these Sakas in his apoha dabharana a work of great merit on Mahurtha and says that the 14th year of the reign of Vikramaditya was marked by the complete defeat of the 55 lacs of troops brought by the Sakas and this grand event, which saved India for some time from the foreign yoke, was marked by the insitution of the Vikramasaka Era which now counts as 1975 (1918 A.D.)

These valuable translations and notes on one of the greatest works in astrology, were finished by me in Bangalore Suryanarayana Rao, on Friday, the 11th of the bright half of the lunar month Jyesta in the constellation Chitta on the 1st June 1917 A. D at 15 after 10 O'clock in the morning at my own residence in Hunsamaranahalli near Bangalore in S. India and the following is the diagram for the time which may be perused to interest and guadance for fixing the age to which my humble labours would remain as useful and be appreciated by the educated public of all times and nations.
I offer these notes with my most humble respects to that final Efful gence and Infinite Wisdom whose visible manifestation is the glorious Sun and whose divine energy alone can give capacity and life for writers to finish their works whether, originals or commentaries.

The astrological diagram for the time at which I, Bangalore Suryanarayana Rao, finished the notes on Brihat Jataka of Varaha Mihira with the help of the invaluable commentaries of Bhatotula is given here for reference and study.

As the constellation Chitta ruled at the time, the period of Mars rules and there is a balance of 5 years, 11 months and 22½ days. The lord of the Lagna (ascendant) is the Sun and he is in the 10th house with the benefic Guru who own the 5th. The lord of the 12th Vraya occupies the 2nd and is aided by Guru and Sun. Sukra lord of 3rd and 10th is in the 11th with Ketu. The lords of Labha (Gains) and Bhringa (9th indicating wealth) Buda and Kuya are in the 4th and the 10th or baryaathana is hemmed in by two benefics Sukra and Buda in the 2nd and 11th houses respectively. Beside, the occupation of the 9th, 10th and 11th houses from Lagna by ketu and Buda, Ravi and guru and Sukra and Ketu, is good and I anticipate that these notes of mine written after much labour and research will have a bright future, will be a source of instruction and plea.
Sure to students, will live long in the literary world and will enlighten the learned. The prejudices created by foreign nations about these valuable Aryan sciences and arts will and must disappear in the destructive folds of all powerful Time, and there will be a time when the Aryan Sciences, Aryan Literature and Aryan genius will appear in their true grandeur and utility.

May God be pleased with my humble labours in the field of Astrology has always been my earnest prayer to Him, who is the Fountain Head of all Mercy, Devotion, Faith, Energy, Protection and Final Beatitude.

MY GENEALOLOGY.

I belong to the Muthakandu Ahbra section of the Brahmin Community, and descended from the stock of the venerable Vasishtha and claim that Grah Twelve generations ago my ancestors resided in Wallaja Nagar, under the patronage of the Nawabs of Arcot and the neighbouring Polyaagar and they had distinguished themselves by performing sacrifices or Yajnas, by simple and holy lives and by the religious behaviour of their exemplary and virtuous lives. My family records give me the following names of my ancestors:

1. Sarina Varjhaba
2. Konda Varjhaba
3. Naga Varjhaba
4. Mallava Dhanu
5. Mallu Sthalu
6. Lingappararu
7. Venkatappararu
8. Venkatagirappararu
9. Paryyagaru
10. Venkataramanayyagaru

These had performed Yajnas or sacrifices.

1. Polgamas and their Brahmins
2. They devoted themselves to path and puuse business and service.

This was my grand father who was born in 1747 A.D. and died in 1828 A.D. having lived 81 years. He married first Narasamma and had two sons by her. After her death, he married Narasamma when he was nearly 60 years. He commanded 600 horse and a suitable corps of infantry under Hyder and Tippu and changing his life into civil, he was Amildar, Peshkar of Kikkeri, Chennamypatna and Devanahalli in which last place Hyder first made his political entry.

My grand father had two daughters and five sons by his second wife and my father Gopala Rao was the third son and the most lucky among the lot.

My father was born on the 17th July 1816 on Friday, the 10th Lunar day of the dark half of the month Ashadh, at about 15 ghats after sunrise when the constellation Bharani ruled with the Dawn of Venus. He was only 12 years when his father... died and had to educate himself as best as he could. He was of slender build, energetic, strong and extremely active in work which I have inherited from him to a large extent. My mother, Rukminiamma, was an intelligent, quiet-going and very handsome woman and she died when I was about 10 years old. My father could read and speak about ten languages and filled various posts in the Ganjam District and became Manager or Devar of Palkiakudim Zemundali. He was an expert in Mantra Sastras and highly religious and obliging. He would never flinch from doing an obligation and brought me up with great care and love. The following is his horoscope.

An incident occurred in my 5th year which has influenced all my life to a remarkable extent. My first Aksharabhyasa, education, began at Patalakumbhi in my fifth year and I slept that night with my father. I dreamt that I was taken to Suryaloka to the presence of the Sun, made to sit on his lap, and given some Payasam (wheat preparation) by his wife Chayadevi. After a great deal of love, the Sun put his hands on my head, observed that I would live long, be happy, and become a great scholar and author. I awoke and related my dream to my father, who had already anticipated some ideas of my future greatness. In my boisterous days I was extremely intelligent, and possessed an excellent memory coupled with a piercing intellect. But as it often happens with intelligent boys, I was irregular in attendance at school, careless of my studies, fond of running and other athletic exercises, and was mischievous to a considerable extent. At the time I felt I would become a great man, and even challenged my teachers with this idea. While I was in the Senior B A class in the Central College at Bangalore, Mr. Cook M A, Principal rebuked me for my want of attention to studies and for not writing notes which he gave very copiously. I was ready with my impertinent answer. I observed in a determined tone that copying notes forms the part of dull headed students and superficial teachers and that bright students like myself need no such process. He remarked that he was a student and amanuensis of Dr. Bains of Psychological fame and that I should obey him. I told him that I would become a greater man than both of them with the result that I was turned out of the class for a day. Mr. Cook was a generous Scotch gentleman. He sent me next day, and asked me whether my belief was right. I said that his treatment of students should be different as the intelligent and spirited could not bear calmly remarks which dull boys may consider as their inheritance. When I met him after publishing some of my works, specially History of Vijayanagar, he had the nobility to address me as a greater man than himself. While I modestly acknowledged his valuable instructions, as the basis for all my scholarship in English I was intended to take the legal line and accordingly finished my legal studies and practised for about 9 years. My astrological instincts were stirred up by a Sastru while I was in the F A class, and I picked up my knowledge in it by reading books on the subject.
Educational service. My eldest son Nanjunda Row assists me in my office work, and I have now one grand son and two grand daughters. God has been pleased to place me above want and though my earning are great, my expenses have not been small; I possess generous instincts and always take delight in helping others who are in need. I am an admirer of all talent in any form in any man and my company is always pleasant and instructive. I possess powers of speech and writing fluently in almost equal degrees and my familiarity with various Western and Eastern sciences, gives me a decided advantage to lead the people wherever I may be. I am a great lover of music and fine arts, and my residence is generally kept in a very fashionable manner. My house is open to all classes alike and I have never withheld my help in any charitable cause when they sought my help. I have had audiences with Viceroy, Maharajahs and Governors and all of them were pleased with my behaviour, spirit of independence, and capacity in conversation and discussion. I have had suitable Khilats or presents from many Maharajahs and the national predictions I made about war, famines, deaths of royal personages, epidemics, and other phenomena have been remarkably fulfilled. My prediction about the present great Anglo-German war, six months before it happened, in my Astrological Magazine has raised my reputation high and my works and lectures have always been appreciated and recognised by the educated public. I am now in my Guru-Dasa and Sukra Bhukti and hence to pull through it and a portion of Sani, through God’s grace I have been leading a religious life in this age of false allurements, of false civilisation, and have felt strongly in my innermost heart that God protects all those who entirely place their confidence in Him and my own independent life is a great illustration of that great principle which lays down complete devotion to God and honest and sincere life under His able and omnipotent guidance. May He shower His blessings on all and make the world happy and cheerful have been my earnest daily prayers.
